

Pictures Recount Milestones in Life of Charles A. Lindbergh, Hero of the Day

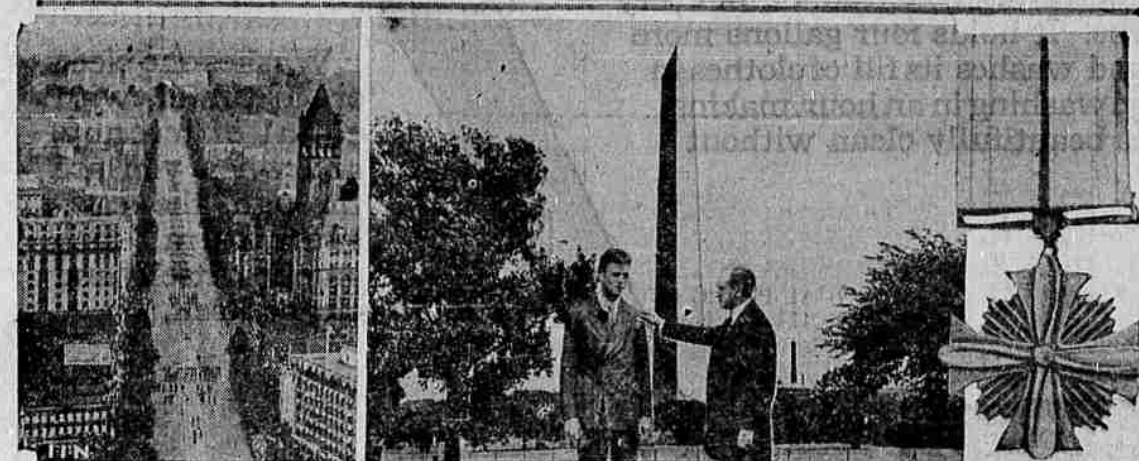

Charles Augustus Lindbergh was born in Detroit, Mich., on February 2, 1902, to Mrs. Eyangeline Land Lindbergh, the wife of Charles H. Lindbergh, a farmer, and later Congressman, of Little Falls, Minn. Pictures above show Charles at an early age, his mother, and his late father, and the young man in his first days as an aviator. Four parachute leaps saved his life on four different times, and he won attention by his skill in handling a machine.

The lure of the New York-to-Paris flight got into Lindbergh, and on May 21 he hopped off to Paris. He made the flight alone without wireless, and with no reserve rations. He succeeded, and became the world's hero overnight. France, Belgium and England paid him tribute, and now America honors him. Picture shows how he appeared over Paris, a closeup, and part of one of the many enthusiastic mobs that besieged him.

Busy Day of Honor Is Bestowed on Col. Lindbergh By a Proud Nation's Chief

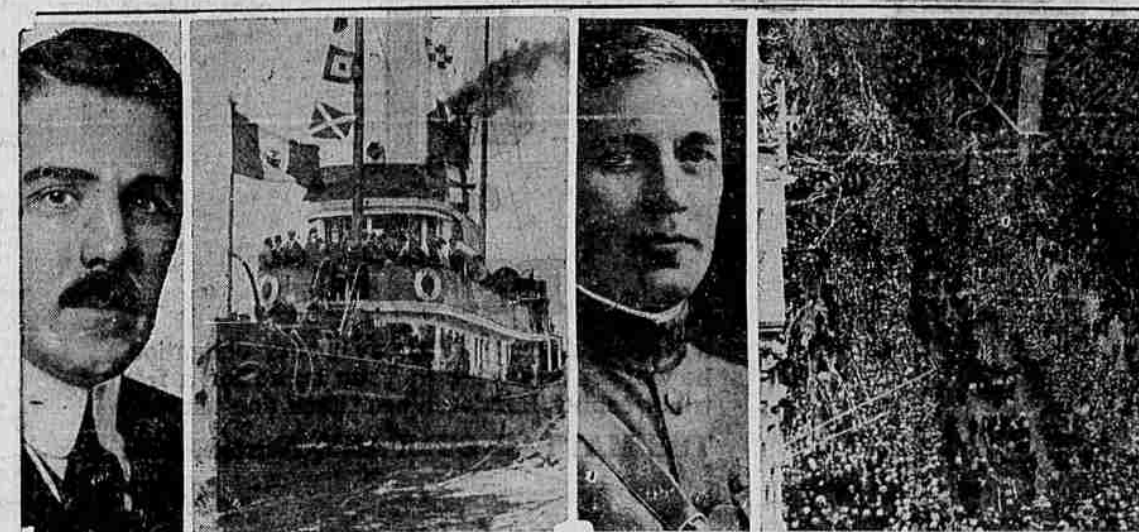

A busy time for Charles A. Lindbergh was planned for his visit to Washington. He was escorted up Pennsylvania avenue, shown at left, to the Washington Monument. There President Coolidge presented him with the Distinguished Flying Cross, making him the first wearer of the decoration.

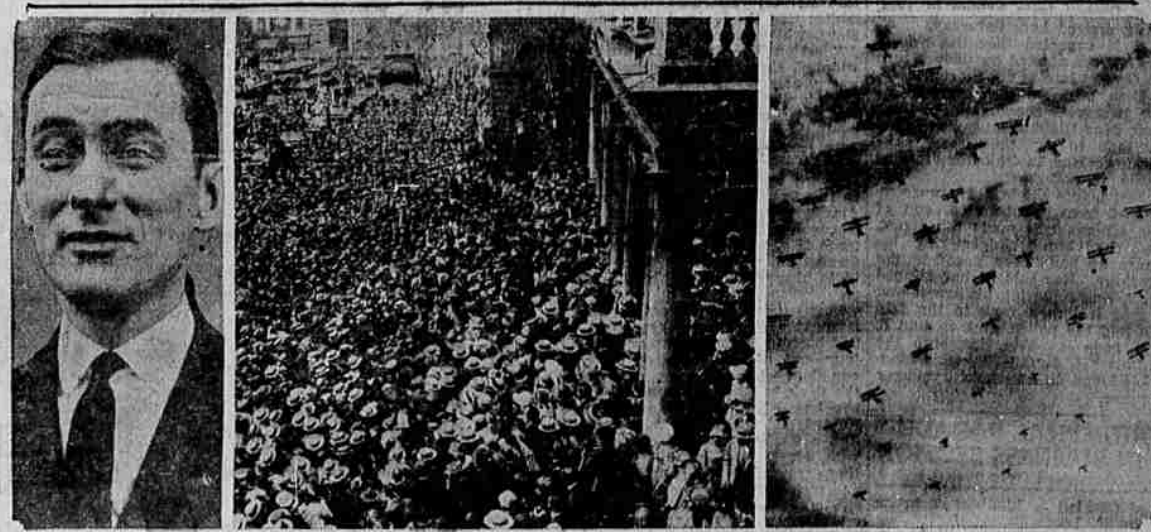

From there Lindbergh went to the temporary White House at No. 15 Dupont Circle, where he and his mother, shown with him above, were guests of President and Mrs. Coolidge. There he attended a Cabinet dinner. On Sunday, after attending church services, Lindbergh placed a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington.

New York Plans to Outdo Itself in the Reception for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh

Grover A. Whalen, left, prepared one of the greatest receptions in New York's history for Charles A. Lindbergh, New York to Paris hopper. The tug Macom brought him to the Battery. From that point, with Major General William N. Haskell, as grand marshal, Lindbergh moved in triumphal procession to the City Hall, amid showers of confetti and ticker tape and the applause of the crowd.

Mayor James J. Walker received the flier at the City Hall. The crowd was thickest at that point, and every square foot of ground and every bit of window space was utilized for a view of the flier. In connection with the reception, New York will stage one of the greatest aerial parades in history. Two hundred planes, of every size and description, flew over the length of the city, making a sight unsurpassed in the past.

MODERN PHARMACY FOR CANYONVILLE

In none of the towns along the highway can one find a more modern or attractive place than Blattner's pharmacy at Canyonville, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Blattner, who opened their store there three years ago, and are making an unequalled success. Housed in a modern concrete building, the drug store carries a large stock. The walls are now being redecorated in cream, with touches of Chinese red in the moulding and panels. Just recently a beautiful soda fountain of the latest improved type, has been installed at a cost of $1800. It is of Italian marble, with black and white Alaskan marble trim. The fountain has a complete Frigidarium system, making its own ice, and keeping all drinks ice cold. Mrs. Blattner is postmaster at Canyonville, and has lately installed new office equipment with the most modern steel automatic lock boxes which the government offers. Postal sales are good in Canyonville, and only a small increase in business would put the office in third class. Both Mr. and Mrs. Blattner are progressive people, who show their faith in Douglas county and their city by the improvements they are making, which makes the pharmacy a credit to a city several times the size of Canyonville.

TRANSIENT FINED BICYCLE THEFT

A transient giving the name of Anthony Uriate, was arrested yesterday near Canyonville by Deputy Sheriff Ed Singleton charged with the theft of a bicycle. The bicycle was the property of Gaylord Bowden and was stolen from the rear of the postoffice building. The deputy sheriff, who had been notified of the theft, was on an auto trip to Canyonville and passed Uriate riding the machine on the highway and placed him under arrest. Uriate has been on a long sea voyage which took him to Japan, China and numerous other points, landed at Seattle a short time ago and has been beating his way back to San Pedro. He entered a plea of guilty when arraigned this morning before Justice of the Peace Hopkins and was fined $20. Having no money to pay the fine he was sent to jail for ten days.

The employees of the Shell Oil company local plant and their families, numbering about twenty-four, motored to Dolee Inn, an attractive spot near Canyonville Sunday and held a picnic with entertainment in the afternoon and evening. The employees of the local plant and their families were met by those from Grants Pass and Medford at a halfway point

Sunday for a picnic, but the affair was postponed until Sunday, June 12. A picnic dinner was enjoyed in the afternoon and sport was found at the river. Baseball was the entertainment in the evening, followed by supper.

COPCO TO DO IRONING FREE

The housewives of Douglas county can forget all ironing troubles this week thanks to the invitation extended by the Copco Electric store which appears elsewhere in this paper. Mr. T. H. Hess, manager of the California Oregon Power company in this district, has a series of demonstrations of the last word in electric ironers to be held all this week at the power company's store and invites all local housewives to bring their week's ironing to be done electrically. The demonstrations are in charge of Miss Neva L. Bridges, factory expert, who will show the ease and simplicity with which the average ironing can be done. Miss Bridges has announced that she will be glad to bring out the new Simplex Ironer and do the ironing in the home if any local housewife will merely step to the phone and call 61. It is expected that many Roseburg ladies will avail themselves of this unusual opportunity.

LIBERTY THEATRE
Symbolical motion picture settings, reflecting with rare fidelity the sentiment and tempo of the action shown against the various backgrounds, are achieved for the first time in "The Beloved Rogue," John Barrymore's first starring vehicle for United Artists, which opened at the Liberty Theatre yesterday. Credit for what is destined to be acknowledged the greatest piece of art direction on the screen belongs to William Cameron Menzies, art director for the Joseph M. Schenck organization. His stupendous and entirely original settings in the latest Barrymore classic climax all his previous efforts, in such productions as "Kiki," "The Thief of Bagdad," "The Eagle," "Rostok," "The Son of the Sheik," "The Bat" and other outstanding screen successes. In "The Beloved Rogue," Menzies has endeavored to make his latest setting, depicting Paris in the Fifteenth century, actually express the "feeling" of the various sequences. That he has succeeded is apparent in the statement of Alastor Crossland, director of the picture, that never before have such animated sets been built for the screen.

Miss Wanda Hinkle, a musician of ability, is giving special music on the pipe organ. To hear her is a treat. The large audiences attending are greatly enthused over her wonderful playing.

ANTLERS THEATRE

"Knockout Reilly," Richard Dix's latest starring vehicle at the Antlers Theatre, is the highly exciting cinema record of the first adventures of a young steel piddler, who almost overnight finds himself on the verge of pugilistic fame, and whose career is as suddenly blasted by a combination of circumstances that land him in prison convicted of a crime of which he is innocent. Episode piles on exciting episode as Dix struggles to retrieve his good name. A smashing denouement results in Dix's emerging a peevish champion. The thread of the story carries a strong theme, with Mary Brian as the object of Reilly's affections. Jack Renault is featured. It is said that director Malcolm St. Clair has succeeded in an unusually perfect blending of humor, pathos and drama. The play was adapted from Albert Payson Terhune's story, "The Hunch."

As an additional feature at the Antlers today and tomorrow, is one hour which includes specialty dances and clever acrobatic stunts that has been seen here for some time. "The Promenaders," are composed of seven girls, one quite young, and a man. Their costumes are very attractive and their numbers which include specialty dances and clever acrobatic stunts are well executed and very pleasing. Don't miss this special treat.
