ROSEBURG, OREGON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29, 1927.

PROMOTING BLUE SKYS.

Aviation history is being written at such a rate now that actual flying is having a hard time keeping up to the developments on paper. Today's count of flying fields and planes is out of date tomorrow, while map makers who would chart air routes dare call no graph complete. New flying companies are multiplying with the proverbial rabbit proliferation, bankers are reported as digging down into other people's pockets for the necessary backing, and the country is all but ready for a wild cat boom of the air that will draw in suckers by the thousands and tens of thousands.

No worse setback could be given aviation at this opportune moment than an era of watered airports and allegedly commercial flying companies. Aviation finance thus far has been sound because it has been largely backed by tin cup solicitation. Only governments or individuals of unlimited wealth and unlimited confidence in the future of flying have been able to encourage this infant of transportation properly, for the dreamers and visionaries—the begging inventors and pilots—have been men of brains rather than of money, and their chief liability has been the discouragement of the unbelieving.

But aviation has succeeded in spite of its handicaps, and is now ready for its merited boom. If the financial control of the industry is put in the hands of men as sane as the inventors and the flyers, there will be no grief. For the novice enthusiast in matters of the air to rush in now and support the blue sky promoters can mean only disaster for the enthusiast and a set back for air progress.

LINDBERGH MARCH WILL FEATURE
BAND CONCERT

The Douglas County Concert Band in its regular weekly concert to be held tomorrow night will feature a new snappy military march, "The Spirit of St. Louis," dedicated to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and designated as the official march by Captain Wm. J. Stannard, director of the United States Army Band for the Washington home coming reception for Colonel Lindbergh. The U. S. Army Band led the Lindbergh parade upon his arrival in Washington and at that time played the march written by Dr. R. H. Woods. This number will be the feature of the Thursday program. The selections to be offered by the band will be as follows:

March "The Boomerang," Lithgow.
Medley overture "Superba," arranged by Dalbey.
Waltzes, "Kingdom of Dreams," Barnard.

A terrible calamity has hit Hollywood. Salaries of movie actors have been cut ten per cent. That's what we call a calamity. How're the poor folks gonna be able to buy their gins?

A great uproar took place on the main stem this a. m. when a 5-year-old desperado deliberately set off a baby firecracker and woke up the city peace force who had been parked for two hours tryin' to catch a feller who'd forgotten to move his flivver within the 30-minute allotment. Unless this reckless shootin' of firecrackers is continued it is predicted that even the night cop won't be able to get his rest.

Zane Grey, who spends several weeks of each year at his hunting lodge on Rogue River, will have twelve people in his party this year and will spend six weeks at his place, according to word received here. He is to make the trip in from West Fork and has engaged 30 pack horses to meet him there and take in supplies and equipment. West Fork is to be the supply point for the party during the time the famous author is at the lodge. Arrangements have been made, it is understood, for motion pictures to be made along the trail and at camp, which will give Southern Oregon a great deal of favorable advertising.

ANTI-PEDDLER CAMPAIGN HAS GOOD EFFECT

Canvassers Spreading Word to Steer Clear of Roseburg.

Hosiery and Magazine Agents Claim Endorsement Chamber of Commerce.

The anti-peddler campaign conducted by the Roseburg chamber of Commerce is having an excellent effect, according to H. E. Curry, secretary of that organization. Residents of the city are giving excellent cooperation, he reports, and canvassers are finding hard slogging in the efforts to sell commodities to local residents.

A few peddlers are still bucking the Chamber of Commerce and those supporting the anti-peddler measures, and several instances where residents have been harassed and ridiculed by these house-to-house vendors have been reported.

Several cases have been reported where peddlers have claimed endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce when such endorsement has not been given. A hosiery salesman operated in Roseburg several days, claiming that he had been given verbal authority by the Chamber of Commerce to go ahead with his work. Mr. Curry states that whenever the Chamber of Commerce gives its endorsement to any house-to-house campaign the endorsement will be given in writing and residents approached by peddlers claiming to have such endorsement should ask for the written statement of authority. It is requested that any peddler claiming to have endorsement, and unable to produce papers to that effect, be immediately reported to the Chamber of Commerce office. Any person desiring information concerning a peddler can obtain that information from the Chamber of Commerce.

Quite a number of residents have suggested that some action should be taken to recognize the "No Peddler" signs that have been installed by numerous home owners. Despite these signs some peddlers call at the homes and in some instances have been insulting and abusive to housewives. It is possible that the city council will be asked to pass an ordinance making it a violation of law for a peddler to call at a home displaying a "No Peddler" sign.

"One of the best compliments that has been given our campaign was by a woman who was voicing a tirade against the Chamber of Commerce and Roseburg people in general," Mr. Curry said in commenting upon the present condition. "She said that the Chamber of Commerce was doing a lot of money for Roseburg because peddlers were beginning to spread the word around that it would do no good to visit Roseburg and consequently they were quitting coming to town and the city would lose the revenue it would otherwise receive."

"That is just what we want," Mr. Curry said. "If they will quit coming we will be perfectly well satisfied, for the money we save will more than make up for what little amount they would have brought in, for if they were not carrying away more than they would not come."

NOTICE

Will be absent from office from July 5th to July 9th inclusive. DR. H. C. CHURCH.

The Chamber of Commerce has been receiving excellent cooperation from the residents of the city in this effort. Numerous housewives have called up for information or have phoned in reports on peddlers endeavoring to operate outside the rules. We have received many reports of people turning away unauthorized peddlers and Roseburg is getting a reputation among these fly-by-nights. There has been a noticeable decrease in the number of these persons visiting town, and many housewives have mentioned the welcome relief from their persistent visits.

"The few that still continue are for the most part bold, insistent canvassers, who do not hesitate to revile or ridicule those who turn them down, and for this class we hope soon to have a suitable remedy."

"For the most part our troubles recently have been confined to hosiery salesmen and magazine peddlers and in several of these cases they have represented that they had the Chamber of Commerce endorsement. Their statements were not true as was proven when they were unable to produce the written endorsement. We hope the residents of the city will continue to give the same measure of cooperation which will result in liberating peddlers avoiding the city in the future."

Mr. Curry states that the Chamber of Commerce still has a few of the no peddler signs for free distribution and anyone misused in the first campaign may secure the signs by calling for them at the Chamber of Commerce office.

J. W. Vaughn, of Tiller, was a visitor in this city over Tuesday and was looking after business affairs.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

"We're glad to meet you," Scouty cried. "We're also glad to have this ride. Please tell us where we're going, and what makes this white cloth fly." The little princess said, "Don't fear. You're safe as long as I am here. I think I'll take you Tinties on a long trip up in the sky."

So, on the floating queer cloth flew, and in about an hour or two, weo Carpy said, "It's getting cold. I think it's going to snow." "Why this is summer," Copy cried, "and not the time for snow outside." But shortly all around them little flakes began to shower.

"Don't be surprised. There's nothing wrong," the Princess said. "We'll go along and soon be clear of snow flakes that are filling up the sky. Course down on earth it's very hot, just like you thought as like as not. The reason that it's snowing here is 'cause we're up so high."

The tablecloth then seemed to drop and each one wondered where 'twould stop. They drifted downward through a cloud. The snowflakes disappeared. "Oh, look, the sun is shining bright," said Scouty. "Now we're all right!" And sure enough, through dropping down, the atmosphere had cleared.

The Princess then said, "Listen here. A dandy place is very near. They call this place Amusement Land. How would you like to go?" "Just fine," replied the Tinties. "And there are lots of wondrous sights." "I'll take you there," the Princess said, "and then you'll shortly know."

The tablecloth soon dropped again, real fast toward the earth, and then the Tinties all saw a sight that brought forth joyful

GROWTH, M. D., SAYS

(Associated Press Licensed Wire)

BOISE, Idaho, June 29.—Growth is constant and can be determined definitely by X-ray pictures of the growing ends of bones, Dr. T. W. Ingate Todd, professor of anatomy, Western Reserve University Medical school, yesterday told 250 physicians in attendance at the second day's session of the Pacific northwest medical convention in his paper on "The Anatomy of Growth." Growth of children can now be checked through the known factors of bone growth along with height, weight and muscular development.

Conversely, Dr. Todd declared, as the result of his experiments with X-ray pictures, the age of a person can be fixed on the known factor of definite bone growth.

VANDALS BUSY IN FLOOD
SWEEP TOWN OF WESTON

(Associated Press Licensed Wire)
PENDLETON, Ore., June 29.—Special deputies were sent to Weston this morning by Sheriff R. T. Cookingham to cope with vandals, who are reported looting the piles of articles lodged among debris along the draws and canyons swept by the cloudburst late Sunday afternoon that caused damage amounting to more than $50,000.
Farm machinery, kitchen utensils, harness, personal belongings and other property are being taken by the vandals that operated extensively through the flood swept area last night. Much of the loot was taken from piles of articles that had been salvaged from the mud awaiting distribution to the owners.
The special deputies were appointed following a conference of Weston residents with the county court and the sheriff this morning.

THE W. C. T. U. FIGHTS WETS ON THE PLEA
THAT THE DRY LAW MAKES PROSPERITY

Prohibition Is Only Seven Years Old and Should Get Chance, Says Temperance Head.

BY ELLA A. BOOLE
President National W. C. T. U.

Prohibition will never be removed from the statute books of the United States by the present tactics of the wet association and wet politicians.

The dry side of the argument has its strength in the economic value of the improved conditions, while the wet side seems to concern itself mainly with the "personal liberty" plea and breaking down the law.

Workmen's Efficiency Increased

We have testimony from the best economists that the productivity of the American workman has increased enormously under prohibition. The lack of alcohol in his daily diet has increased the individual output of the workman of the leading industries 34 per cent in the past five years.

I don't mean that the value of his product has been increased; I mean that the actual amount of goods made has increased 34 per cent.

These figures are from the heart of the report made by the British government recently by an official commission which was in this country several months getting at the facts on prohibition.

Prohibition may be a joke to Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the W. C. T. U., who answers the wet forces in the accompanying article for the News-Review.

In outlawing the liquor traffic, America dealt the strongest legal blow against the greatest enemy to complete prosperity. Now that liquor is outlawed, it is at a disadvantage, and the W. C. T. U. opposed to the saloon. But the very nature of the liquor business makes it impossible to keep down the saloon.

Prohibition Biggest Issue

Editor's Note: The wet and dry issue is still the biggest problem in America today. Recent events and coming events have kept it and will keep it in the spotlight.

The medicinal liquor case in Indiana, the prohibition enforcement shakeup in Washington, the new liquor law in Ontario—all covered in special NEA Service dispatches of recent weeks—show the interest in this question.

What are the Women's Christian Temperance Union's policies and ideas on recent developments? The president of the W. C. T. U. gives them in the accompanying article, written especially for the News-Review and NEA Service.

opposed to the saloon. But the very nature of the liquor business makes it impossible to keep down the saloon.

The uncontrollable government control now in experimental stage in Canada is having trouble with the saloon even in those provinces where saloons are particularly outlawed. The Canadian theory of doing all the drinking at home with the wives and children around to see the husband fade into drunkenness, does not take so well, after all. Women don't want liquor at home, and therefore the Canadian buys all he can carry at the government dispensary and goes to a so-called "club" where he meets other drinkers and the old story of the saloon is being repeated.

Prohibition Good Business

The W. C. T. U. is fifty-four years old and has met the liquor question in every public phase. Since we started our fight on it, the wetts have proposed low license, high license, local option, state control, city ordinance and
