Mrs. Thornton Arranges Afternoon of Bridge

Among the charmingly informal affairs of the week was the afternoon of bridge followed by luncheon which Mrs. Greta Thornton arranged for the matrons of her bridge club and a few additional guests on Wednesday.

Cut flowers were attractively arranged in the rooms. At play were the Mesdames Geo. Johnson, H. J. Nichols, C. S. McElhinny, Geo. Gordon, G. V. Wimberly, Geo. Wharton, J. R. Wharton, Carl Wimberly, S. J. Shoemaker, Ralph Quine, Roy Channing, Kenneth Quine, R. L. Whipple, and guests, Mrs. Clair K. Allen, Mrs. Geo. McNamee of San Francisco and Miss Mylth Hanan of Pine Ridge.

Bride-Elect Is Honor Guest at Shower

An attractive informal affair of Friday evening was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Krantz a group of friends of Miss Elva Krantz, who will be a bride of the summer, arranging a miscellaneous shower as a surprise.

Brightening the rooms were cut flowers in baskets and vases. About forty were included in the group enjoying the affair. At the close refreshments were served.

Family Has Reunion at Dinner

A family reunion took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Coats at Tennille June 26, when the entire family assembled for the first time in a number of years. A dinner was the feature of the reunion. At the table were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Coats, Mrs. Grace Godfrey of Tennille, Mrs. Bertha Osborn, of Stockton, Calif., Mrs. Leatha Watson, Los Angeles, Walter G. of Roseburg, Gerald T. of Powers, Ore., Lester, of Coquille, and Clara of Tennille, members of the family and other guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wells of Roseburg, T. L. Godfrey, Mrs. Walter Coats, Mrs. Gerald Coats, Mrs. Lester Coats, Elita Coats, Mildred Coats, Glen Coats, Donald Coats, Ronald Osborn, Eugene Watson, Jr. and Worth Wells.

Dinner Party Is Affair of Friday

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Heinline were hosts for an informal dinner party on Friday evening, the affair being arranged to observe the birthday anniversaries of Miss Martha Yeo and Mr. M. E. Ritter, which occur on the same date.

Seated about the prettily appointed table were Miss Martha Yeo, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Ritter, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Falbe and Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Heinline.

Mrs. Rathkey Hostess for Circle

Mrs. Amy Rathkey provided a pleasant afternoon for the Tennille Community Circle when she asked the members to her home this week. Following the discussion of business matters, sewing was the diversion arranged by the hostess for the afternoon, after which a social hour was enjoyed. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Emma Swift and Mrs. Elsie Hannah, served a luncheon to the Mesdames Margaret Porter, Nettie Cabot, Anna Bushnell, Elsie Hannah, Elizabeth Breitenbacher, Edna Siegel, Grace Barnes, Dora Culver, Emma Swift, Beale Smith, Katie McDaniel and Anna Watson and the Misses Ruby McDaniel, Pearl Hannah, Freda Watson, Nell Watson, Beth Albright, Miriam Rice, Blanche Barnes, and a visitor from Portland, Mrs. Rathkey's sister.

BEN C. DEY, S. P. ATTORNEY, UNDER SURGEON'S KNIFE

EUGENE, Ore., July 2.—Ben C. Dey, chief counsel of the Southern Pacific railway company, was rushed to the Eugene hospital by boat across Odell lake, by push car to Cascade summit and special train to Eugene last night, following an attack of perforated duodenal ulcer.

Record time was established in getting Mr. Dey to the surgery here where an operation was immediately performed. His stomach had been pierced in the attack, and it was not until after midnight that Mr. Dey was pronounced out of immediate danger.

The chief counsel, with Mrs. Dey and others, was on Odell lake, where he is building a summer home, when he was stricken at 5:40 p. m. A gasoline launch hurried him to the other shore, and from there he was taken on a small tram car to Cascade summit. The special train had been made up in the meantime. Advice from attending physicians this noon gave Mr. Dey's condition as "very good."

SELECTIONS FROM 1000 PARIS HATS

Gloria Turns Her Shopping Toward Chapeaux

Paris, July 2.

Dear Cousin: It was inevitable, of course, in all her shopping, that your friend Gloria would tackle the hat problem. It was something she couldn't miss—and I couldn't, for as you know hats are my particular weakness. I can resist diamond necklaces, and pass by pearls without more than a passing emotion, but a really smart hat fills me with a longing that only possession can satisfy.

Carried Out.

Gloria and I have tried on something like a thousand hats apiece the last week—and Gloria has purchased half a dozen. I had to remove her forcibly from Maria Guy's or she would have been there yet. She was perfectly fascinated by those very fine straws with tiny brims that rolled away from her head and wanted one to match every one of her sport frocks. However, she compromised with one very wide brimmed pink straw, trimmed with a bouquet of white flowers, and a tiny boile de rose straw model, turned up in front, with a crystal ornament on the crown that looks like a miniature glass tree.

Maria Guy is making a very feminine type of hat this year, using very delicate pastels and trimming her small models with flowers, ribbon and funny little feather fancies. Gloria is so pretty that she likes to do perfectly daring things in millinery, and to wear trying models that would make most women look like an appeal for help. I'm sending you photographs of some she selected that are absolutely uncompromising as to line and geometric as to cut, but quite chic.

The straw model is from Lewis, and comes in a delicate green shade with a circular flange, of green across the front and a bit of green foliage, of a much deeper tint than the ribbon, finishes one side. That plain circular line pleases her so much that she was an easy victim for a model of felt, absolutely undecorated, in navy blue, which she decided to wear with her new blue tulleur—of course you know navy blue is extraordinarily smart this year, and it is surprising how many smart Parisiennes who never deserted black before, have stepped in line for navy blue.

A Human Weakness. I suppose it was only human weakness that made her buy that absolutely tricky model which takes that square line across her brows, making it look like an aviator's hat—there are some faces that dare anything. This hat is of tan felt and has a fluffy pom-pom of tan feathers just over one of the ears.

You should see me in this hat! I am unbelievable in it. I had to remove it quickly to convince myself that it really is so, that no one really looked that way except in a nightmare. However, Gloria is smart in it—even Aunt Louise.

who is very conservative about millinery, and believes you owe your face all you can give it, had to admit that Gloria was made for this hat.

Then, probably as a reaction from the circular line, Gloria suddenly crashed out in angles and bought what seemed to be a study in points—a black felt model with a point over the brow, another on the upturned brim, and a triangular buckle set with brilliants. It too, is sharp and difficult to wear, it becomes tractable in Gloria's hand—on her head, I should say.

And can you imagine me, surrounded by all this temptation, emerging with just one purchase clutched in the hand—well, I did. Gloria so overpowered me that I was immune to danger—almost. But when I saw the cunning little model of blue and white plaid tulle, turned down all the way around, and laced up the front of the crown with red ribbon, I realized that I had my vulnerable spot and this hat had pierced it. And of course, I really did need it, for my blue suit, too, needs something to add to its joy in living. Later it has looked a bit and disapproved, and without this bit of red to liven it up, it would not have been long for this life, I fear.

Wants a Car. Gloria is now talking about buying a car for her use over here—she says she wants a nice little roadster to set her off to the best advantage. She probably will do so before long—she says her letter of credit is still working, and that she knows her father wants her to be happy on her first trip to Europe. What a country yours is! And how can the rest of us compete with such expensiveness!

I shall not expect to hear much from you for a short time, but that will not stop my chronicle. It seems to be my form of expression. All my love, GERMAINE.

PARIS WILDLY ENTHUSIASTIC OVER AIRMEN

airmen, however, workmen crowded the car roofs of every train in the vicinity and passengers craned their necks out of windows to their great peril in an effort to chance to present them personally.

Some one presented Commander Byrd with a huge bunch of flowers as he stepped from his train smiling a greeting to those who welcomed him. There were many other bouquets for the fliers, but their bearers did not get much chance to present the merrily so threw them through the air.

Ovation Continuous All the way from Caen to Paris, a four-hour trip, Commander Byrd and his companions were kept busy accommodating autograph hunters, and most of the passengers of the express train left their cars at one time or another to enter the car where the aviators had reserved compartments.

At each station at which the express stopped, crowds were waiting to cheer the fliers and flowers were given them at every halt. In one town a little girl, carrying a single red rose—the French gift to those they would honor—was held up to the window of the car in order to hand the flower to Commander Byrd.

At the railroad station itself 200 police sergeants lined the way to the small waiting room where a reception committee had its chance to shake hands with the airmen and offer them congratulations.

One Mob After Another The crowd could not be held back, however, and the aviators had to elbow and shoulder their way past their enthusiastic admirers.

One of the first to rush up to the fliers and shake hands in congratulation was Charles A. Levine, who arrived in Paris yesterday with the crowd today. Levine had waited 15 minutes surrounded by a crowd of his own admirers who were eager to obtain his autograph.

The ceremony in the waiting room was brief and then the fliers, emerging from the station and preceded by 20 burly policemen, had to force a mob of excited, cheering thousands. As they entered their waiting cars, they smiled and bowed and even kissed hands in acknowledgement of their welcome.

Welcomed By Youth Gurnee Munn, 9-year-old grandson of Rodman Wanamaker, sponsor of the trans-Atlantic flight of the America today formally welcomed Commander Byrd on behalf of his grandfather at the entrance of the Eugene suite at the Continental hotel.

After shaking the commander's hand, the little chap resolutely said: "On behalf of my grandfather, Rodman Wanamaker, I heartily congratulate you on the success of your flight and welcome you to France."

Gurnee then shook Commander Byrd's hand again heartily and the travel-worn aviator thanked him and asked him to give kindest regards to his grandfather.

SOUTH POLE TO BE NEXT GOAL OF GREAT FLIER

gone and that the chances of coming out alive and unhurt after a blind landing under those conditions were slim indeed.

That was one of the reasons why they are quite happy despite their failure to reach their goal.

U. S. Honors for Byrd WASHINGTON, July 2.—Award of the Distinguished Flying Cross to Commander Byrd will be recommended to President Coolidge by Secretary Wilbur. In addition Secretary Wilbur said he would see what could be done to take official cognizance of the part played in the trans-Atlantic flight by Byrd's three companions.

World Flight Pondered WASHINGTON, July 2.—A naval round-the-world flight following the equator has been recommended to Secretary Wilbur of the navy and he is considering its feasibility.

The secretary said today he considered such a flight would be of greater practical value than Byrd's proposed South Pole voyage. It would have greater scientific possibilities, he believed, and would do more for the encouragement of aviation than the polar adventure.

DOROTHY MACKAYE SENTENCED FROM ONE TO 3 YEARS

(Associated Press Local Wire.) LOS ANGELES, July 2.—Dorothy Mackaye, dramatic actress today was sentenced to from one to three years in San Quentin prison following conviction last week of a conspiracy charge brought after the death last April of her actor husband, Ray Raymond of the musical comedy stage.

The pronouncement of sentence seemed to stun the actress, but no sound escaped her lips as she heard the words that will send her to San Quentin, where her often avowed lover and alleged fellow inmate, Paul Kelley, today began serving a sentence for Raymond's death.

Mrs. Mackaye, who was accused of conspiring with Dr. W. J. Sullivan of Hollywood to conceal facts concerning her husband's death two days after a fist fight with Kelley, quickly regained her composure. Friends of the actress swarmed into the enclosure immediately the session ended and there was ten minutes of caring and back patting for the convicted woman.

Jerry Golder, attorney for Miss Mackaye, gave oral notice of appeal based on alleged irregularities in the jury room.

JOHN DEMPSEY MURDERS WIFE, THEN SUICIDES

ter's husband appeared. Dempsey she said, appeared to have been drinking and engaged in an argument with his wife. Mrs. Dempsey had torn up a letter, which she said, according to the inquest, contained "a check that belonged to John."

The couple entered the house a few minutes later and the shooting followed.

Had Been Separated Neighbors said they learned from Mrs. Dempsey when she came to Schenectady, that she and her husband had been separated for a little more than a year. Mrs. Dempsey had her two-year-old son, Bruce, with her when she rented the apartment a short time ago.

Dempsey is said to have come here about three weeks ago. Neighbors said Mrs. Dempsey did not want her husband to know where she was. She had frequently referred to him as a brother of the former heavyweight champion.

Dempsey is said to have told a druggist in the city that he intended opening a gymnasium here.

Schenectady, N. Y., July 2.—The bodies of John Dempsey and his wife, victims of today's murder and suicide, were identified this afternoon by the man's brother, Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, who hurried here from his training quarters at Saratoga lake as soon as he was informed of the tragedy.

Jack Dempsey, who is brother of the dead man's former home, body he sent tonight to Salt Lake City, the dead man's former home, and came to Roseburg 14 years ago. He was a member of the Episcopal church and Modern Woodmen of America. He is survived by his widow and the following children and brother, W. C. Ballou, King Hill, Idaho; J. E. and William Ballou, Bellingham, Wash.; Mrs. Walter Poole, Days Creek, Oregon; and Mrs. Norman Fisher of this city and one brother, Geo. Ballou, of Union, Nev.

Character Vicious SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 2.—John Dempsey, who shot and killed his estranged wife and then ended his own life, is a brother of Jack (William Harrison) Dempsey, former world champion heavyweight prize fighter. He was well known here, where the family has resided for many years after leaving Manassas, Colorado.

The dead man was one of a family of six children of Hiram and Cecilia Dempsey, and police say lived an easy life. He was frequently in minor entanglements with the police, and about two years ago, in a fit of anger, drove his aged father from the home with a butcher knife. He also slashed the throats of two valuable dogs owned by the former champion. He also resisted arrest at the time and languished in the city jail five days. Neither his father nor Jack would sign a complaint, and John was released.

Before leaving here for the East Dempsey was a patient for three weeks at the county hospital under the care of Dr. George N. Roberts.

Dr. Roberts said Dempsey was in a "violent and morbid state, and was a drug addict." He added that Dempsey told him that Mrs. Dempsey had left him but would come back to him if he "would be cured." He was discharged as cured, Dr. Roberts said, and expressed himself as happy now and that he was going to New York and effect a reconciliation.

THE GREAT DAY OF AMERICAN PATRIOTISM

(By Louis Albert Banks)

We have just had flag day celebrations on the fourteenth of June. Flag day dates from June 14th, 1777. But the day that made flag day possible was nearly a year earlier, when the Continental Congress on the Fourth of July, 1776, adopted "The Declaration of Independence." One of the most famous state papers in all human history.

But the flag is so prominent in our thoughts on Independence Day, that it may not be uninteresting to the readers of the News-Review, to recall a fact, which I think has never received as much attention as it deserves, that each state now has its own peculiar star in Old Glory.

This was not true until the time of the administration of President William H. Taft, now our honored chief justice. On October 26th, 1912 President Taft by executive order made special arrangement of the stars according to the order in which each state ratified the constitution of the United States. For instance beginning at the upper left hand corner, Delaware has the honor to be number one; and then going toward the right as follows: Pennsylvania 2; New Jersey 3; Georgia 4; Connecticut 5; Massachusetts 6; Maryland 7; South Carolina 8.

Second row: New Hampshire 9; Virginia 10; New York 11; North Carolina 12; Rhode Island 13; Vermont 14; Kentucky 15; Tennessee 16.

Third row: Ohio 17; Louisiana 18; Indiana 19; Mississippi 20; Illinois 21; Alabama 22; Maine 23; Missouri 24.

Fourth row: Arkansas 25; Michigan 26; Florida 27; Texas 28; Iowa 29; Wisconsin 30; California 31; Minnesota 32.

Fifth row: Oregon 33; Kansas 34; West Virginia 35; Nevada 36; Nebraska 37; Colorado 38; North Dakota 39; South Dakota 40.

Sixth row: Montana 41; Washington 42; Idaho 43; Wyoming 44; Utah 45; Oklahoma 46; New Mexico 47 and Arizona 48.

So it is now possible for every citizen when he looks on "Old Glory" to fasten his gaze on the particular star or stars that on account of birth or residence are specially dear to the heart.

Take my own case as an example. My father was born in Tennessee, so star 16 is interesting to me. My mother was born in Michigan, so star 26 interests me. I was born in Oregon so star 33 is peculiarly dear. But I have been a pastor, and a citizen and voter, for twelve years in Massachusetts so star 6 looks good to me. Eight years in New York, so star 11 is not without interest. Nine years in Ohio, so star 17 has much interest. Four years in Colorado, so star 38 has its interest. Two years in Kansas City so star 24 is remembered. Then for fifteen summers while my children were growing up, I spent my summer vacations on Pinnacle Mountain in New

WOMEN PLAN FOR EXTENSION WORK

The women residing in the three school districts east of Roseburg are planning to hold joint meetings in July and August. It is their plan to take up some of the different phases of crafts work at these meetings, having in mind the making of such articles as may be used in their homes or donated to charitable institutions.

Mrs. Geo. A. Bonebrake, Mrs. C. F. Kroger and Mrs. F. B. Lane are acting as the local committee of arrangements and are being assisted by others of their community. Arrangements have been made through the office of the county agent whereby assistance from the Extension Department of the agricultural college will be available for the work undertaken.

The first meeting will be held at the Pine Grove church on Friday, July 8th, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Mrs. Jessie D. McComb, State Home Demonstration Leader, will be present at that time and have charge of the meeting.

A keen interest in community work and development has been shown and an effort is being made to put it on an established basis which will tend toward the permanent upbuilding of this community.

The women of these communities are all invited to be present at this meeting on July 8th and take part in the discussions.
