CONTRACT ON LOON LAKE ROAD JOB HELD UP

the greater portion of the road, but the upper end of the road, for which the contract is being let, is of very heavy construction. This district has been voting special taxes year after year to build this road, which has been constructed a section at a time. Recently the O. and C. tax refund gave the district a large sum of money, and with the addition of funds from the market road money it is expected that there will be enough to finish the grade this year and give the Loon Lake people a standard road. It is anticipated that this road will immediately result in considerable development and improvement work in the Loon Lake district.

Will Build Bridge

The contract for the construction of the Elkton bridge will probably be let to J. J. Bradraun, of Portland, who was the lowest bidder. This bridge will replace the one washed out during the high water in the spring. The former bridge was moved to Elkton from Winchester and was erected on piers built to the standards of the state market road department. The piers proved to be too short and the water covered the bridge and washed it away.

The new bridge will be considerably higher than the old one so that it will not be affected by high water in the future. The bids submitted were as follows: O. N. Pierce, Portland, $32,325; George F. Reeves, Portland, $35,675; J. J. Bradraun, Portland, $29,930; E. L. Crooks and Co., Portland, $37,250. The contract for the roofing of the Fair Oaks bridge, which was damaged by the fire last year, was let to Clyde Catching, whose bid was $275.

Wm. Woodly, logging operator of Bridge, was in Roseburg today looking after business affairs.
