ROSEBURG, OREGON, FRIDAY, JULY 8, 1927.

THRILLS TO HELP WEAK APPETITES.

It is becoming painfully apparent that the best tonic the doctors can prescribe to keep life from becoming a drab, billious, uninteresting companion with a chronic headache and a coated tongue is a serial thrill. People never seem to be getting along as well with themselves, each other, and the wide, wide world as when they have some heroes or arch villains to worry about. This, at least, has been the experience of the world in the past year, for we have gone from one thrill to another with much gusto.

Across the national consciousness have flitted the thrills provided by such hale and hearty beings as Mellic Dunham, who held the center of national interest for weeks with his "Turkey in the Straw" and "Old Zip Coon." Close after him came the inspiring Berlin-Mackay romance. Helen Willis went down fighting after a hectic week or two in the headlines, and Marian Talley came up singing. Browning obliged by marrying "Peaches," and gave the nation something really worth thinking about for a number of weeks. Countess Cathcart and the Earl Carroll bathtub provided their wholesome, invigorating touches and helped appetites immensely.

There was a touch of adventure in the Byrd and Amundsen expeditions, which were so beneficial that many people who had suffered through the winter months were no doubt enabled to get out of bed and prepare to enjoy the summer. The explosion in the naval ammunition dump in New Jersey caused a temporary relapse, but Gertrude Ederle's swimming of the channel, and Valentino's well-timed passing away had desirable health-giving attributes.

The Florida hurricane was an electrical treatment. Queen Marie nursed along jaded nerves, and the Hall-Mills case really did many people a heap of good. This year, of course, we have had Lindbergh and his flying companions for stimulus. It is not at all improbable that the world, under this treatment, will be able to live through the summer.

Treatment of this sort is good for the nerves. It acts as a counter-irritant and makes average men or women forget the numerous aches and pains with which they are so obviously afflicted.

FINANCE TEACHES THE CHURCH

Prophets, according to Biblical tradition, are supposed to have no honor in their own country, but it happens at times that prophets are made to look most unpropitious when they ramble far afield.

Roger Babson, having piled up fame for himself as a prophet of finance, recently went all the way from his Boston Olympus to Omaha to tell a church convention what was the matter with religion. One of his suggestions was that the Sunday morning service be moved up to 8 or 9 a. m., as the present mid-morning service "breaks up the whole day for the layman." To the vast army who interpret the day of rest commandment to mean late slumber, the Babson prophecy will fall on barren ground.

In any number of states it is becoming more and more evident that there is need of a law to protect the fortunes of widows. Too smart confidence men, having exhausted the gold brick and the money machine possibilities, have turned to the widow with recently acquired insurance and property left by her husband's will as the most lucrative of sources for easy money. The routine followed is usually the same. The confidence man calls upon the widow. He represents himself as a banker or broker, and is properly sympathetic. He would like to be of service, he offers the usual sure thing. Her money will be safe—it will be doubled. The trusting widow leans heavily upon the solicitous sympathy. And falls. If necessary, the confidence man will marry his victim to gain control of her fortune. Once that is secured, he vanishes. It is often known by bankers, attorneys and courthouse officials that women are throwing away their fortunes, but there is no action that they can take. They may caution, they may attempt stronger spade-calling language, but the honeyed words of the confidence man are always, apparently, sweeter to the ear. Until there is state protection, the eternal fleeing of widows is bound to continue.

Livewire merchants realize the value of newspaper advertising but there are still a few of the old timers left who are afraid to advertise for fear somebody will come in and buy out all the stuff they have in stock.

That Coos Bay-Roseburg highway is a real boulevard now. Tell your tourist friends to take a day off and visit the Coos Bay section. It is a trip worth their while.

Don't forget to broadcast to the world that Diamond lake, the greatest trout fishing spot in the world, is in our own Douglas county.

The momentous question tonight is—Will we have to ford Deer creek or can we skim across on a brand new bridge?

Chamberlin and Levine have had a break in their relations. That fellow Levine never looked like a regular hero to us.

No need of going to the beach for a vacation as long as this balmy weather continues.

Next year will be convention year in Roseburg. Let's start early to beautify our city.

PRUNE PICKIN'S

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—
The chiropractors of Oregon are having a convention in Salem this week. And having pity. The poor folks who step out with one of those guys.

You can recognize the typical American anywhere. He is asking somebody for a match.

Most of the big jobs are held by men who couldn't even name three naughty magazines.

So few attain that nice balance midway between inferiority complex and swellhead.

What this country needs, along with a good five-cent cigar, is a five-cent appetite.

The "sticks" is that region where a thief is just a thief instead of a master criminal.

So very many have been doing five days' work and scattering it over six days.

Never cross a stream until you come to it, but wotsa fellow gonna do if we fall to bridge Deer Creek?

KIND WORDS
A young chap who had been celebrating the night before, went into a restaurant the next morning feeling terrible. "Yessuh, Captain," said the waiter, bustling to his table. "What you'll have this mornin'?" Bleary-eyed and nervous, he looked sadly at the waiter and said, "All I want is two fried eggs and a few kind words."

In half an hour the waiter returned. "Heah, Captain," and he deposited two anaemic looking eggs on the table. "That is you' two fried aigs," he said, "an' now I will give y' the few kind words: Don't eat 'em."

It's so dern cold that the gate who're tryin' to show off their one-piece bathin' suits hafta wear ear muffs.

Climb a little higher than the crowd and you will be a target for the knoekers.

The reason the average man can't tell a woman anything is because she would rather talk than listen.

There is one thing about dying—you never have to do it again.

A camouflaged still was raided in New Jersey. It was making stuff camouflaged as whiskey.

There is probably nothing in the world that gives a man that tired feeling quicker than to have another man say, "Why don't you do as I do?"

on my recent investment?
Ans.—You will not make anything on this, as it was misrepresented to you and will never pay dividends.

L. R.—Will my wife be operated on successfully?
Ans.—Yes, she will come through nicely, although her convalescence will be a trifle slow.

C. F.—When will my sister come to visit us? Will she live here?
Ans.—Agnes will arrive Sunday morning and remain about two months.

J. L. W.—Will I succeed in the trade that I am taking up?
Ans.—Yes, you will do quite well with this, and later be in the garage business for yourself.

M. R. S.—We recently moved here from Kansas City. Will we be successful here?
Ans.—Yes, you will do fairly well. However you will move back next March.

L. D.—Is it all right for me to go into business?
Ans.—I would not advise you to start into the business contemplated with the partner you have in mind. Handle this by yourself if you want success.

E. D.—Whom will I marry?
Ans.—I advise you to marry the young man you are now interested in as he really cares for you.

W. J. P.—Should I keep the position here or return home?
Ans.—Your father really needs you to work for him, but I see you doing better financially by remaining here.

M. R.—(Dillard, Ore.) Will my brother give me his baby to raise?
Ans.—Yes, but the present objections will have to be overcome. This can easily be accomplished by ture of these articles. As a result of this survey I confess that I am deeply mortified that this journal, which is intended to be constructive and not destructive, has been used as the medium for recirculating exploded fictions, for giving currency to the so-called protocols of the wise men of Zion which have been demonstrated, as I fear, to be gross forgeries and to occasion that the Jews have been engaged in a conspiracy to control the capital and the industries of the world, besides laying at their door many offenses against decency, public order and good morals.

CEASE ATTACKS ON JEWS, FORD ORDERS EDITOR

I am I appreciate even the editorial nature, to say nothing of the details of these utterances, I would have forbidden their circulation without a moment's hesitation, because I am fully aware of the virtues of the Jewish people as a whole, of what they and their ancestors have done for civilization and for mankind toward the development of commerce and industry, their sobriety and diligence, their benevolence and their unselfish interest in the public welfare.

"Shocked" By Articles
"Of course there are bick sheep in every flock, as there are among men of all races, creeds and nationalities who are at times evil-doers. It is wrong, however, to judge a people by a few individuals, and I therefore join in condemning unreservedly all wholesale denunciations and attacks.

"Those who know me can bear witness that it is not my nature to inflict insult upon and to occasion pain to anybody, and that it has been my effort to free myself from prejudice. Because of that, I frankly confess that I have been deeply shocked as a result of my study and examination of the files of the Dearborn Independent and of the pamphlets entitled 'The International Jew.'

"I deem it to be my duty as an honorable man to make amends for the wrong done to the Jews as fellow men and brothers, by asking their forgiveness for the harm I have unintentionally committed by retreating so far as lies within my power, the offensive charges laid at their door by these publications, and by giving them the unequalled assurance that henceforth they may look to me for friendship and good will."

Cameron Doubts Report
Mr. Cameron said he could not believe Mr. Ford would make public such a statement without advising him inasmuch as he was in control of the publication of the paper and would be the first to be notified of such action.

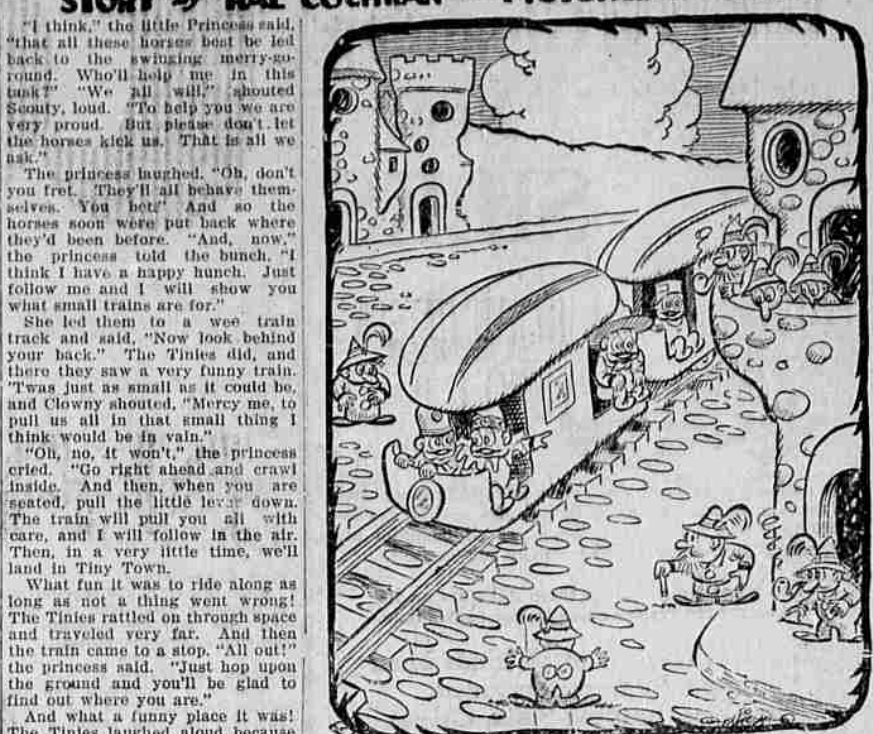

"This is absolutely the first time I have heard of any such statement or intention on the part of Henry Ford," he said. "I most certainly will get in touch with Mr. Ford and find out what is back of this."

The Dearborn Independent has carried many articles about Jews. It has charged that Jews control the money market of the world. Articles in which Sapiro's agricultural activities were attacked formed the basis of the libel suit. Counsel for Mr. Ford filed a plea asserting the truth of 141 statements which Sapiro had claimed were libelous.

At a time when Ford was expected to be called to the stand he was injured in an automobile accident. Federal Judge Fred J. Ray-

FOREST SERVICE OFFICER ON TRIP OF INSPECTION

C. M. Granger, district forester of the U. S. Forest Service, is making a trip of inspection over the Umpqua National forest in company with Forest Supervisor Carl B. Neal. This is Mr. Granger's first trip over the Umpqua forest. He and Mr. Neal went to Wolf Creek today and then crossed, by way of the trail to Steamboat. From the Steamboat station they will work out over the North Umpqua section on a field trip, which will take them to all the principal sections, and will then go to other parts of the forest.

FIRE PREVENTION CREWS APPRECIATE PRESENT WEATHER

The continued wet and cool weather has been greatly appreciated by the forces engaged in forest protection work. While the forests were dry as tinder and fires were numerous in June and July of last year, there have been no fires so far this season, so that the organizations engaged in fire prevention have been able to make up some of their financial losses of last season. The protection crews of the forest service are
