Boys Arrested Here for Auto Theft Get 2 Years
EUGENE, July 27.—Mitchell Walker and James McClusky, the 18-year-old boys arrested at Roseburg a few days ago on a charge of the theft of an ambulance here, were sentenced by Judge G. E. Skipworth of circuit court yesterday to serve a year each in the state penitentiary at Salem.

The boys had waived indictment and pleaded guilty. They were taken to Salem by Deputy Sheriff Melvin Turnbull and W. H. McClain, special officer of the Southern Pacific. The officer also took Robert Doeman, who had been sentenced to serve 18 months for possession of a gun.

Walker and McClusky, who said their homes are at Butte, Montana, stole an ambulance belonging to Frank Gibbs and said they did not know that it was an ambulance until they reached Roseburg with it.

BIG BOATS ARE USING HARBOR AT REEDSPORT

Warren Reed, J. C. Diehl and Robin Reed, prominent Reedspott men, were in Roseburg today attending to business matters. Warren Reed, the founder, of Reedspott, states that the harbor development at the mouth of the Umpqua is progressing very favorably and the port is expected to become of great importance. The new schooner, Dan S. Hanlon, owned by the Hanlon estate is now making regular trips between Reedspott and San Francisco and foreign ports, and came into port yesterday. This vessel is the largest and finest lumber carrier on the coast, handling over one million feet of lumber at each trip. Mr.

Reed points out the fact that the improvement of the Drain-Reedsport highway, is a matter of great importance to Roseburg business men, as there will be an opportunity to secure water freight rates on shipments and by having a water grade to the coast the freight may be handled by boat and auto truck by way of Reedspott more cheaply than can be done by train.

GEHRIG HAS RUTH TOTTERING AS HOME RUN KING

THE GEHRIG EYES

with his bat—as a matter of fact he practically winds up on the ball, to use the parlance of the diamond. As he reaches the top of his swing, the bat is moving fast and he follows through with a rush.

Gehrig, on the other hand, takes the bat back more slowly as he gets ready for his follow through. As he starts his downward swing, it is noticeably much slower than Ruth's but gradually gains momentum, so that, as he reaches the half-way mark, his bat is traveling at full speed. Gehrig gets his power from the half way mark to the point of contact with the ball, while Ruth swings literally from his ears. Perfect timing is more difficult with Ruth's style of swinging. He hits a trifle under more balls than does Gehrig, which explains why he gets so much greater height to balls that he hits in the air.

Another striking difference in the style of the two: Gehrig seldom, if ever, varies his stance at the plate, while the Babe is constantly shifting.

Ruth, having had all the home run thrills possible, tries to upset the opposition by bunting, also reaching out and hitting balls on the outside into left field, in an effort to break up the strategy used in playing for Ruth on the theory that he is a dead right field hitter.

Gehrig may detrone Ruth, but I seriously doubt if there ever will be another hero like the original Babe Ruth.

One year's experience of under- studying Ruth was all that Gehrig needed. He now feels that he can hit the ball as high, far and hard as Ruth and each day is proving that to his own satisfaction as well as to the consternation of the visiting pitchers.

Gehrig, in his quest for home run honors, has set aside tradition to a certain extent at least. While of the opinion that weight makes for power, he just rear- reached the decision that excess weight was a handicap.

During the winter months he went on a strict diet that removed 18 pounds of superfluous flesh.

Since the opening of the season he has religiously adhered to his training system.

A reduced waist line has given him more freedom in his swing and, to Gehrig's way of thinking, has supplied just enough added muscle power to send over the fence balls that formerly just fell short of the goal.

Like all sluggers, Gehrig grips the bat at the extreme end, the hands close together, almost overlapping, feet wide apart. He takes a healthy cut at the ball yet it differs considerably from the Ruth-ian swing.
