The week has passed swiftly with delightful outdoor affairs which have included swimming parties, picnics and informal afternoons of bridge at various attractive country homes. Visitors have been numerous the past month and as a result entertaining has taken on an added gayety as the weeks progress through mid-summer.

Marriages of interest to Roseburg folk have seemed almost endless this season and with others of note scheduled for the month of August there will be a number of pleasant parties and showers for the bride-to-be to enliven entertaining.

Two weddings occurring on Sunday gave interest to circles in the city. Miss Elva Wescott, a former Roseburg maid, became the bride of Phil R. Singleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Singleton of this city at a pretty church wedding in Salem that afternoon. Earlier in the day Miss Neva Walker, also formerly of this city, and Clarence Church were married at a lovely ceremony in a natural grove near Salem, the affair being attended by a number of out of town folk.

The first of the week will find several more groups preparing to leave the city on vacations to northern beaches or nearby resorts.

Daphne Hughes Home From International Older Girls' Meet

Miss Daphne Hughes, one of the Oregon team of girls attending the International Older Girls' camp conference at Geneva, Glen, in the Indian Hills, Colorado, returned to Roseburg today. The Oregon group again this year had the distinction of winning the highly contested conference shield, given each year to the best all around team of girls. The judging was done on individual merits. The girls representing Oregon for the past three years have succeeded in capturing the prize and the trophy automatically becomes the property of the state conference. The names of all the girls from Oregon who have competed will be engraved on the shield.

A group of girls attending the conference were entertained in various delightful affairs. In Denver they were guests of Miss Winifred Watson at the D. D. Watson home and a party of thirty girls were entertained at a theatre party while there. In Portland last night the Oregon girls were guests of Mrs. Daphne Hughes for a dinner at her home. The girls' camp conference team include Una Davis, Reed college student and Frances Marsh, of Mount Tabor Presbyterian church, state delegates; Elizabeth Scraggs, Westminster Presbyterian church; Ada Nelson, First Christian church, all of Portland; Daphne Hughes, Roseburg.

A southern Oregon conference of older girls will be held in Roseburg this fall, at which time the conference trophy will be brought here for display. The girls from Portland will be present for the meeting and assist in giving the reports of the international camp. As a feature of the conference, "The Quest," the pageant given by the Oregon group at the international meet, will be presented.

Elva Wescott and Phil R. Singleton Wed at Pretty Church Ceremony

Large baskets filled with graceful sprays of gladioli in riotous color and tall tapers burning at the altar formed a charming background for the marriage of Miss Elva Wescott, former Roseburg maid, and Phil R. Singleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Singleton of Roseburg, solemnized Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in St. Paul's Episcopal church in Salem.

Rev. H. D. Chambers read the nuptial vows, using the impressive Episcopal service, before a group of very close friends and members of the families of the bride and bridegroom.

Following the ceremony Albert Gilley sang "I Love You Truly," with Miss Myla Chambers at the console. The wedding party entered the auditorium to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Miss Chambers and took their places before the altar.

The bride was lovely in an ensemble of crepe de chine in blue with a large hat to match. She wore a beige fox fur in matching tones with her shoes. Her corsage was of Cecil Brunner roses and sweet peas in pastel shades.

At the close of the service Miss Chambers played the recessional and afterward the bride and bridegroom received their friends informally. They left on a motor trip to Vancouver, B. C., and other northern points and after August 15 will be at home in Medford.

Mrs. Singleton is the daughter of Mrs. Clyde McClung of Salem, formerly of this city, and has a wide circle of friends in Roseburg, having attended school here. Mr. Singleton is a member of a family well known in the city and is a graduate of Roseburg high school. He is employed by the Zellerbach Paper company.

Buhar were hostesses for two charming afternoon affairs this week, asking groups of their friends on Monday for bridge and again on Wednesday for bridge to the Bee's, the country home of the two families, one of the very attractive spots which is a part of the Curry estate bordered by the Umpqua river.

The card tables were arranged on the porch and lawn and the setting was heightened in color with bright summer flowers in tall baskets and bowls.

Quite a lovely affair of Thursday was the lawn party arranged by Mrs. Addie Clough and her daughter, Miss Bess Clough, at their attractive Canyonville home for the pleasure of Miss Clough's girlhood friend, Mrs. Robert Dunlap, charming Cincinnati matron who is spending the summer in Roseburg as the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Campbell, to which thirty Roseburg and Canyonville matrons were bidden to meet and renew acquaintance with the honor guest.

Tables for five hundred and bridge were arranged on the long cool porch and under the trees on the lawn and several served during the afternoon. Gladioli and roses were used in profusions in the rooms of the house and on the porch.

At 6 o'clock covers were placed for dinner for the guests at one large table on the lawn. Here also the summer blossoms were used in colorful motif. Six young girls assisted at the table.

The bride and bridegroom left for Eugene and Portland and at the end of a week will return to make their home in Sutherlin.

Mrs. Smith is one of Sutherlin valley's attractive young women and attended school in that vicinity, finishing her education at O. A. C. Mr. Smith is a building contractor of Sutherlin.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

WHEN A GIRL STARTS THINKING SERIOUSLY ABOUT MARRIAGE, SHE HAS BEEN MARRIED ABOUT A MONTH.

The Negligee Is Now Fluttering Back Into Popularity

Summer Fashion's Open Sesame to Femininity Offers an Opportunity to Return to Its Intimate Own

BY HENRI BENDEL
For NEA Service.
NEW YORK, July 30.—This summer's fashions, fluttering and floating in the most feminine manner, offer negligees the opportunity to come into their own again.
For with house dresses and even aprons making the most of bows, flouncings and other feminine touches, negligees quite properly demonstrate that they are the most feminine of all women's apparel, being the most intimate.
The Psychological Moment
Therefore it seems the psychological moment to sponsor the most fragile, intimate negligee possible, using filmy chiffons, delicate, cobwebby laces and exquisite flowered nets.
Then, too, pajamas—the rivals now for several seasons of the very feminine negligee—seem to be leaving the bedroom for the beach. They are becoming garments for recreation rather than for rest. The womanly woman who has enjoyed feeling naughty wearing sporty pajamas in the privacy of her boudoir, finds that she no longer derives that pleasure when everybody is wearing them in the open.
Many women, therefore, are asking for a distinctive negligee—"something lovely, and soft and floating—and of an unusual color."
Consider the Use
Before planning a negligee I always ask just what type of garment she has in mind. Is it to be a tea gown? Or a lounging gown? Or the most intimate of all, a bodice? To be worn only inside the boudoir?
If it is a tea gown, I plan a softly draped crepe, satin, or georgette on much the same lines as a dress—with perhaps not so tight a swathed hipline and with sleeves looser and cuffs wide. Length, style points, color and textures are the same as dresses. For the day of trailing tea gowns with yards of chiffon sweeping the floor and flowing sleeves that dip in cups has passed.
The tea gown today is a comfortable garment, easily slipped on, suitable for an hour's rest before dinner.
The lounging robe is the second type of negligee. This corresponds to what was formerly called a kimono. It is meant for boudoir wear, when Mlady is having her manicure and getting her hair dressed. It is also ideal for travel and just the thing to take on a fortnight's visit.
Picture today is one of the smartest lounging negligees I have designed this season. It is a stunning print on a dull black background—great decorative flowers splashing their rich Indian orange, rust, wild orchid and deep royal blue and crimson colors in a gorgeous design.
The coolie coat was the inspiration for its cut. But there is a suggestion of the harem in the swathed sash of plait black bordered with the same striped taffeta that edges the hem, sleeves and front of the robe.
Beyond the Reach of Pajamas
Loose sleeves, straight lines, and the gorgeous coloring of this exquisite print give a dash and yet a feminine touch that pajamas could never achieve.
The other pictured negligee I designed for a brunet bride. Rich gold lace and filmy chiffon in a chartreuse green shade are the materials. Fashioned over a matching slip of chiffon topped with gold lace, the upper portion of this negligee is one with the long graceful sleeves that fall well below the knees, their pointed edges finished with deep gold lace.
The lace, edged with chiffon, fashions the semi-circular skirt with its stylish points. Three soft silken slippers in pink, orchid and blue enliven at the gold lace waistline, with streamers of color hanging.
Fashion's Best Features
The neckline is Vionnet, the belt at almost normal waistline and the hem takes points to unexpectedness—all hints from the summer's best fashions. Its exquisite flowing sleeves, with the weight of the gold lace just enough to encourage their hanging in soft folds, give an unbelievable grace and alluring charm.
I always use pastel shades for the most intimate negligees. Blis, peach, sea foam, cherub, flesh and so on. Or White.

Decorative flowers splashed on a dull black background—Henri Bendel's smartest lounging negligee.
