This crowd, the largest ever assembled in Roseburg for a sport event, was also one of the most orlerly, for despite the intense interest and the great size of the audience, there was little confusion or disorder, although there was plenty of noise and enthusiasm manifested by partisan fans.

order, although there was plenty of noise and enthusiasm manifested by partiasn fans.

All ages, from babes in arms to feeble old men, were represented in the great crowd of eager listeners, while women and girls vied with men in crowding into the announcer's platform to be better able to hear the reports.

The tolegraph instrument was mounted out of doors where the operator and amnouncer were seated above the heads of the crowd so that they were in full view. The announcer read directly off the lypewriter used by the operator so that the returns were given instantly as received, making a rapid and accurate service.

The city police department gave excellent co-operation in handfling the traffic and the crowd, traffic being defoured around the block so that the fight fans might not be disturbed by the noise of passing traffic and also avoiding traffic sith the fight fans might not be disturbed by the noise of passing traffic and also avoiding traffic and also avoiding traffic teengestion, as the street was so completely blocked by listeners that cars would not have been able to get through had the street not been closed.

The default and enthusiasm manifested the leading clubs of the National league pennant winners—Pitts-burgh. St. Louis or New York and the park of the New York American league the played in the park of the New York American league the park of the New York American league of first place in that league.

If more than five games are necessary to decide the world chamament winning clubs was authorized to sell tick.

was the fight story dictated that the tight was easily visualized by the excited listeners.

The returns came through with exceptional speed. When Tunney was knocked down in the 7th round, the telegraph carried the news as he dropped to the floor and kept count as the referee toiled off the seconds. In amounting the decision the telegraph was seconds ahead of the radio in giving the outcome, the News-Review crowd starting to break up before a radio audience, a short distance away, had learned the outcome.

It has always been the News-Review policy to furnish this service to sport fans of the city on any major sport events and every effort is made to give the fans the quickest and most reliable news returns available. The next big event will be the World's baseball series and the News-Review is already making arrangements to cover these games in detail and will use the same system as furnished for the fights last night.
