SAYS DOG GETS BETTER HOME THAN HUBBY GAVE HER

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Pearl Kelly demanded a home at least as comfortable as that her husband, Robert G. Kelly, furnishes his pet dog, she told Judge Joseph Sabath in asking alimony pending the outcome of a suit for separate maintenance. She claimed the only presents her husband, superintendent of turbines for the General Electric company, had given her in nine years of wedded life were a washing machine, and iron and a kitchen cabinet.

MACGRUDER TALKS TOO MUCH, HE SAYS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, who has been detached from command of the fourth naval district because of his criticism of navy administration, feels that the mistake of his life has been that he has talked too much. "I have been lucky in my career up to this time," he told members of the Fleet Reserve association.

In an address last night, but it has been the mistake of my life that I have talked too much. Navy men are taught to keep their mouths shut. When a navy man opens his mouth he gets into trouble—that has been my experience.

Keen disappointment over President Coolidge's refusal to review his controversy with Secretary of the Navy Wilbur was expressed by the admiral, who stated, however, that he accepted the president's decision as final and would go wherever he was ordered.

Admiral Magruder has been called to Washington by Secretary Wilbur for a conference on or about November 5. His successor, Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, is expected here a few days prior to the date.

PRIZES AWARDED TO BOYS AND GIRLS FOR CLUB WORK

Winner of Corn Display to Receive Rifle—Fancy Ears Gathered by Light of Lantern.

The Boys' and Girls' club work display at the Fruit and Corn Show, which closes at the Armory today, is by far the finest exhibit of project work secured in the county. Entries were made by club workers in nearly every community and many valuable prizes have been won. The exhibit was so good that several local business men have provided special prizes for displays not covered by the regular premium list.

Homer James of Myrtle Creek walked away with the honors in the corn exhibit. The boy has been interested in a corn project for several years and his display is exceptionally good. Roland Parker, country club leader, sent a letter to all of the club workers outlining the prizes to be given. Young James did not get to read his letter until after dark, but when he learned that the first prize was a Winchester rifle and shells he seized a lantern and pushed out to the corn field where he gathered by lantern light the ears that not only won the rifle but a $5 cash prize, a $4 flashlight and an award in the open class. The boy's corn, if entered in open competition, would have taken second place among all of the corn offered, according to the judge of the corn display.

The corn exhibit is to be taken to the Pacific International. The judges have completed the task of awarding the prizes in the club exhibit, the winners being as follows:

SENATOR WITH A MECHANICAL LARYNX SPEAKS

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—A "mechanical larynx" which enables United States Senator T. Coleman to speak, notwithstanding an operation in which his vocal chords were removed, was described today by the New York World.

Dr. John E. Mackenty, senior surgeon of the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, who performed the operation, involving removal of the vocal cords, larynx, and part of the tongue and windpipe, is renowned for his technique in throat and cancer operations.

He declined to comment upon his client's case, although the senator's office announced the ailment as "throat ulcer."

The "mechanical larynx" was described as a perfected type of a device presented to medical science a few years ago by Dr. Harvey Fletcher R. Lane of the laboratories of the Western Electric company and the American Telephone and Telegraph company whose researches were undertaken at the instigation of Dr. Mackenty, who has studied the problem for 20 years.

The device which was said to serve the senator from the penalty of dumbness that once resulted from such an operation as his, is simple, resembling and but little more conspicuous than an underslung pipe.

From the bowl of which a tube extends to an artificial throat opening. The pipe bowl contains the artificial larynx, air from the lungs passes through the tube to the bowl and thence to the mouth through the pipe atom, held in the teeth. A tone is emitted by the man-made larynx, and is modified much as in normal speech by the lips, teeth, tongue and palate. Though the normal voice with its modulations is not retained, a new voice slightly monotonous but clearly intelligible is formed.

COMING "Back to God's Country"

By GENE COHN (NEA Service Writer.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Some years ago, inventing in youth became a hobby with the man who today is national commander of the American Legion.

And now, going over his books, Edward E. Spafford can show you figures proving how sound these investments have been.

Spafford is an eminently successful Wall Street attorney with many business interests. But no undertaking, he says, has given him more personal satisfaction or paid better dividends than this unique philanthropy, though he would be the last person to concede that it is a philanthropy.

All of Youth's Dreams. To date he has made a dozen such investments. They cover a range of activity as wide as the aspirations, dreams and hopes of youth. But they have all been practical. They have covered several infant industries and businesses and several professions. They have backed a manufacturing enterprise and a college student.

There came to his attention, for instance, the case of a young fellow in New York University who was selling his blood to make his way through school. Commander Spafford happened to read about this in a newspaper and decided that a person of this type deserved assistance. So he put up the money to help the student through college.

"And strangely enough," he recalls, "this came close to being my only mistake. I had neglected to consider the psychology of this young man. His blood-selling was not merely a means of getting money—it had, also, a sort of martyr and religious psychology behind it. And so, when this boy had finished school he was off to be an evangelist. With a master's degree in his pocket he was out in the streets preaching to passing crowds. And I saw my investment about to go under.

"However, I called him in and pointed out that I had money invested in him. When this had been paid back, I pointed out, he could do what he pleased. He went out to the coast and began to practice law. He is doing very well and is turning into a good investment. What is more, he is being of greatest religious value to the world than he ever would have been in the

BANDITS ON HOOF WORTH LESS THAN THE DEAD VARIETY

(Associated Press Leased Wire) FOND DU LAC, Wis., Oct. 28.—Dead bandits are bringing twice the figure of bandits "on the hoof" in Fond Du Lac county.

Bankers of this county have offered $1,000 cash for each dead bandit, and a mere $500 each for members of the bank robbing fraternity captured alive and convicted.

The schedule conforms to the vigilante protective plan recommended by the State Bankers association.

FLASHES OF LIFE

(Associated Press Leased Wire) NEW YORK—Mrs. Anna Stotner, blonde of 19, and 5 feet 4, loves her husband, a truck driver, 5 feet 10, notwithstanding bruises visible when she appeared in court.

"I did it myself," she testified in habeas corpus proceedings brought by her parents who complained she had been beaten. "I love my husband." Whereupon Justice Sutherland sent the pair on their way armed with admonitions to keep away from the parents. "The girl," he said, "has selected her mate and she seems to be well satisfied."

LONDON—There is to be less snoring at the cinemas. The county council has directed that private boxes at theaters converted into movie houses shall be kept locked during performances.

PAISLEY, England—Comes a tip from the Duchess of Atholl to women who want the vote when 21: Lower your skirts an inch or two. The duchess thinks that such a procedure might cause the death of the insulting term, "flapper suffrage." English women can't vote now till 30.

Throughout the world the productive Dunlop properties cover so vast an area that if combined into one place—they would form a "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres.

BEFORE Detroit started to make motor-cars, Dunlop had founded the pneumatic tire industry.

Thanks to the automobile, both Detroit and "Dunlop City" have grown tremendously.

Now Detroit reaches out over 52,686 acres, while "Dunlop City" covers over 100,000 acres.

And even greater than the size of "Dunlop City," is Dunlop's world-wide reputation for building uniformly supreme Dunlop Tires.

Supreme quality made possible Dunlop's great size. In turn, Dunlop's great size makes possible this same supreme quality, at lower prices.

Spafford's a Heavy Investor-In Youth

The Profits the New Legion Leader's Won in Young Men, Preferred

Commander Spafford has been most timid in talking about his "youth investment" idea, not the least reason being that he receives a deluge of mail from every section of the earth. However, such method of approach is not likely to get the applicant to first base, Spafford is not apt to get excited about would-be gate-crashers. There are far too many deserving and sincere youths whose cases have come to his attention and many in whom he has not yet invested. There is, he feels, a big field there for men of money.

Edward E. Spafford invests in young men.

"Youth is the greatest asset of any nation, just as it is of any business," says the Legion commander. "Any war will show you that. I certainly saw it in the last war. Of course the general gets down and marks out the plans, but the courage and fire and daring that goes into war or business lies behind it: the brains and the fearlessness of youth.

"You'll find it, too, in any big office or business organization. Back of it all you will find the brains and experience of the Old-Man-of-the-Tribble. But those who carry out the orders and fight and labor and sweat are the millions of anonymous young men.

"No one knows better than I the battles that youth faces.

Many Unable to Answer. "True it is that opportunity goes around knocking at doors. And many a youth hears the doorbell ring, but isn't economically fixed to do anything about it. And that is, in a small way, what I've tried to do.

"It's no fool's errand, nor pamble. I actually invest in these young men. They get their chance and I do what I can to help them. And that's all there is to it. But don't forget this—it has proved to me what youth can do. I always knew it in my heart but, after all, there are so many who don't keep their feet on the ground, coarsen in their hearts and desires in their minds.

"I make no investment without pretty carefully staking up my prospects. Few of them have known how carefully they were going over."
