NOTED TENOR TO GIVE CONCERT IN ROSEBURG FRIDAY

Arthur Johnson, one of the best known singers of the Pacific coast, is to appear in a concert at the First Methodist church in this city Friday, Nov. 4, the concert being sponsored by Elsie Carleton Strang and Frances Lintott, two of Roseburg's music teachers. Mr. Johnson is a tenor, and his voice has won him high praise wherever he has appeared in his numerous concerts.

His visit to Roseburg will give music lovers of the city an opportunity to hear one of the finest musical offerings of the season, and it is expected that there will be a large audience at this musical treat.

Arthur Johnson, tenor, who is to appear in a concert at the M. E. Church, Friday, Nov. 4.

Mr. Johnson will have as his accompanist May Van Dyke, a well known musician and composer of Portland. Both Mr. Johnson and Miss Van Dyke are composers of considerable note and Mr. Johnson is a contributor to some of the leading musical magazines of the country.

His career has been one of continued success and he has followed a definite upward path until he is now considered an artist of the front rank. He is the possessor of a lyric voice and his interpretations are highly praised by critics wherever his concerts have been given.

FEW CHANGES IN WHEAT MARKET

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 29.—There were no marked trends in the markets for the principal grains during the week ending October 29 and prices held fairly steady at about the same level as a week ago, states the weekly grain market review of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Marketings of spring wheat, particularly in Canada, continued heavy but were being readily taken at prices slightly firmer than a week ago. Receipts of corn were larger and new grain from the corn belt was arriving at the markets but prices at the close of the week showed no material change from last week's quotations. The oats market developed some independent strength which caused an advance of about 2 cents in prices of desirable quality grain. Rye and barley also held fairly steady but flax made a further small decline.

The heavy country movement of Canadian wheat which averaged between 5,000,000 and 7,000,000 bushels daily tended to weaken the wheat market but this was offset by strength in foreign markets and contained export demand of fair volume. The new wheat crops in both Argentine and Australia are approaching a critical stage but progress was reported favorable during the week. Prices of native wheats in Europe declined 3-5 cents per bushel except in Italy but Liverpool prices were practically the same as a week ago, reflecting the demand for imported wheat. Native wheat at Hamburg was quoted at $1.62, at Paris at $1.52, at Milan at $1.83 and at Copenhagen at $1.38 per bushel.

The movement of United States wheat to the markets continued large and stocks have been increased to around 30,000,000 bushels which is about 11,000,000 larger than the amount in store at the corresponding time last year. Daily receipts, however, were fairly well taken but milling demand for high protein types of wheat was less active and premiums were materially reduced. 12 per cent protein No. 1 Dark Northern was quoted at Minneapolis at 43 cents over the December price, which closed October 28 at $1.21 7-8. 13 per cent protein was quoted at 16-22 cents over the December and 14 per cent at 23-25 cents over. Best types of Montana wheat were selling at $1.45-$1.50 which compared in a general way with quotations of $1.43 for No. 1 at Winnipeg.

Premiums on durum wheat on the other hand, were well maintained as a result of light offerings of high protein grain. Numbers 1 and 2 Amber durum were the November price, which closed at Duluth at 5-9 cents over October 28th. That market, at $1.14. The demand for the lower grades of durum was rather slow, numbers 1 and 2 durum being quoted at 4 cents over the November price and numbers 1 and 2 mixed durum at 14 cents over, while No. 1 Red durum sold about 7 cents under the November price.

Premiums for hard winter wheat held practically unchanged with prices of milling wheat considerably above an export basis. 12 per cent protein No. 2 Hard winter was quoted at Kansas City at 9-14 cents over the December price which closed October 28 at that market at $1.18 7-8. 13 per cent protein of the same grade was quoted at 17-23 cents over, with the higher premiums being paid for the choice Kansas wheat. No. 2 Hard winter 12 1/2 per cent protein was quoted at Omaha at $1.18-$1.20 per bushel. Export bids were around $1.33-$1.34 for No. 1 Hard winter delivered Gulf ports.

Some wheat for export was reported moving from Omaha and St. Louis. No. 2 Hard winter for November shipment in Liverpool was quoted at $1.46 compared with $1.48 for Argentine Rosita 62 1/2 lb wheat for November shipment and $1.64 for Canadian No. 1 Manitoba for October and November shipment. Premiums for best winter wheat were again advanced 3-5 cents per bushel in the Central western markets, principally because of the scarcity of offerings rather than any increase in demand. No. 2 Red winter was quoted at St. Louis at $1.45, at Chicago at $1.33, at Cincinnati at $1.37 1-8 and at Toledo at $1.35-$1.36.

Quaker Oats Urged Widely by Authorities

FOREMOST educators, editors as well as leading business institutions like General Electric Company, now are widely urging breakfasts that "stand by" as an important aid to success.

That's because it is now known that over 70% of the day's important work, in offices, stores, etc., falls into the four morning hours—the hours from 8:30 to 12:30.

In most American schools, including Princeton, Yale, most State Universities and some 2,000 grade schools throughout the country, 80% of the important classes are held before lunch.

Thus, largely on expert advice, millions now start days with Quaker Oats—food that "stands by" one through the morning.

Excellent balanced in protein, carbohydrates, minerals and the important Vitamin B, this delicious food is ideal for banishing listless mornings.

Today get Quick Quaker that cooks in 2 1/2 to 5 minutes or regular Quaker Oats at grocers.

FARMER WOMAN IN OKLAHOMA

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Because It Gave Her Health and Strength

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing. They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a household of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and tired.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. 9, Box 387, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

FIGHT OVER WIFE ENDS IN JAILHOUSE

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

REDDING, Calif., Nov. 1.—L. L. Lee of Pasadena, Calif., and Art Hardin of Klamath Falls, Oregon, both employed on the Dog Creek bridge construction 23 miles north of here, were placed under arrest last night after they engaged in a fist fight over Lee's wife, authorities said. After Hardin had been knocked down twice he drew a knife and stabbed Lee through the jaw three times. The cuts were not serious.

REPORT REVOLUTION

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 31.—Reports from the Rumanian frontier to the effect that a revolution broke out last night throughout Rumania, directed against Premier Bratianu are published by the local newspapers today.

The reports, however, could not be confirmed.

Dispatches from Bucharest yesterday stated that the situation in Rumania had returned to normal and that it appeared as though Premier Bratianu had extinguished the hopes among Prince Carol's followers that Carol would be restored to the Rumanian throne.

OREGON TEAMS WILL CLASH AT EUGENE NOV. 11

Annual Battle for State Championship to Be Hard Fought.

O. S. C. GIVEN EDGE

Scores Against Stanford Favor Aggies—Weaknesses Shown on U. of O. Team.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Nov. 1.—(Special)—The big game with nothing at stake but ancient rivalry, the state championship and supremacy for 1927, between the University of Oregon and Oregon Agricultural college football teams will come off here November 11 as the climax of the annual homecoming of old grads and former students.

Outclassed in Pacific Coast conference and with no titular hopes remaining the two Oregon eleven's will again put up their annual battle for the empty honor of being state champions.

The Webfoots have twice tasted defeat although they do hold a tie with Idaho while the Aggies claim a victory over Washington State to offset their two losses. In comparison with eastern games the Aggies reign supreme, but as always this game can never be doped.

Against Stanford the Corvallis machine held the Cardinals to a 20 to 6 score in Portland while the best the Webfoots could do was to hold the card reserves and third stringers to a 19 to 9 battle in Palo Alto. This would signify that the Beavermen will swamp Oregon on Armistice Day.

With two weeks to work, though, Captain John J. McEwan, Oregon coach, will have an opportunity to strengthen the weakness that has shown to date in his machine.

The Webfoots will be idle Saturday. McEwan will be able to utilize all his time in pointing his athletes for the annual Aggie fray. Coordination of line and backfield with a better timing of plays will form the basis of the work.

In the Stanford game the poor timing of the backfield men on reverses and spinning plays was outstanding, according to a northern scout who passed through here recently after having viewed the Webfoot-Cardinal game. He also stated that offensively the Oregon line was weak although it proved strong on the defense.

At the start of the season Oregon was supposed to have a weak line with a strong backfield, but now after three conference games have been played, it seems that the backfield is to blame for the poor showing. To date the Oregonians have failed to cross a conference team's goal line.

Poor handling of the ball by the backs is one reason for the inability to score in the Cardinal fray. On the reverse plays a pivot man takes the ball from center and turns around, handing it to a "swing around" half. But in the Stanford game, this pivot back was too slow and time after time the swing around player started on the play without the ball. He was forced to stop and come back and by the time he did get the ball the hard charging Cardinal line-men were on top of him and smothered the play.

Oregon also lacks a power play for scoring when in close. With only light backfield men to work with, McEwan has been handicapped to build a line piling mode of attack. Instead he has reverted to an aerial game for scores, and even this has failed to function.

It seems that every coach in the Pacific coast conference has spent hours developing a defense against forward passing, and in each case it has worked against Oregon.

A fullback with the power and ability of Lynn Jones in his sophomore year at Oregon, is needed—but where is he to come from? Jones played fullback three years at Oregon, terminating his career last fall, but his sophomore year, when he was named all-Coast was his best. That fall he had the ability and stamina to hit the line on three out of four plays and made from one to 10 yards at a crack.

Now the Webfoot backs are new men, mostly sophomores, and need experience as well as hard work before a semblance of perfection can be reached. Any athlete breaking into conference ball must "find" himself before he begins to function properly.

An example of this is the case of Elmer Tesreau, Washington fullback. Elmer, in his first two years as a Husky player, was not spectacular. But this season he is one of their biggest stars. He has "found" himself and is playing a hard brand of ball that is uncanny.

Aggies Hard at Work

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis, Nov. 1.—Coach Paul Schlusser expressed himself as not at all satisfied with the way the Oregon State line was charging on the offensive in the Washington State game so he plans to concentrate on improving this part of the orange tactics this week. The offensive drive of the Orange backs was not what it should be either.

The defensive work of the squad, was very satisfactory to the coach. The line was charging much bet-

Thirty Years Ago

This Month, Roseburg First Called "Central"

For thirty years we have endeavored faithfully to render through the Roseburg Exchange the highest type of telephone service.

Not only have we endeavored to make it possible for anyone to call anyone else anywhere in Roseburg, at any time, but we have tried to make it possible for Roseburg citizens to call, or be called by, anyone, anywhere, any time, in the U. S. Even in Canada, Mexico, and Great Britain, you may call or be called today, as a result of this endeavor.

We are glad that today, it is possible for a considerable group of Roseburg citizens who used our service here thirty years ago, to gather and review the tremendous progress in telephony which their patronage helped make possible. We offer them and to this community our sincere felicitations on this occasion.

ter than in earlier games and the backs were tackling in good style. Sound drill in fundamentals, which Coach Schlusser especially stresses, has resulted in the Orange eleven being among the cleverest in the conference.

The men follow the ball and are ever ready to take advantage of breaks. They play the old Andy Smith California system of kicking and waiting for breaks, but they go the late Andy Smith one better and make their own breaks. The players tackle so hard and accurately, that time after time opposing players drop the ball. Then, too, the Orangemen specialize on get his punt off right away or he can count on having the ball collide with one of the husky Orange linemen.

Melvin Whitlock played a great game against Washington State particularly defensively but in so doing he received a torn ligament in his side and he is now in the hospital. A few minor bruises are the only other Orange casualties. Jule Carlson, guard, is recovering from an injury that kept him out of the W. S. C. clash and he will probably get in the Oregon-Oregon State game November 11.
