

VASES!

This week we are showing a magnificent collection of VASES. These beautiful pieces make most acceptable presents, and it will pay you to look them over, as you can buy now at a material saving.

ONE SPECIAL LOT at 92c each

Begin planning your holiday gifts, and make them something useful that will come in handy every day in the year.

CHURCHILL HARDWARE CO.
THE WINCHESTER STORE

CLASSIFIED SECTION

ALL NEW ADS WILL BE FOUND ON BACK PAGE

FOR SALE

FOR SALE—Good corn. Phone 361.

FOR SALE—Large Christmas cactus. Phone 251-H.

FOR SALE—Baled hay. Phone 1472, T. E. Duncan.

HUBBARD squash for sale, 1c lb, J. H. Porter, Tenmile, Ore.

FOR SALE—Good baled hay. Wm. Haley, 14 mi. east of town. Deer Creek road.

FOR SALE—English walnuts at Edenbower orchard tracts, phone 2673.

WOOD FOR SALE—Oak block and stove, sorted. Address Fuel, New Review.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS for sale at 725 S. Pine St. Mrs. F. A. Fields. Phone 143-L.

LET us figure on shingling or repairing your house. Walter M. Clark & Son, 414 Mill St.

FOR SALE—Lilies of the Valley pips, planted now will bloom in the spring. Mrs. F. A. Fields, 725 S. Pine or phone 143-L.

1927 COLUMBIA bicycle, good rubber, light horn, basket, and in excellent condition. Price $30. George Churchill at Churchill Hardware Co.

FOR SALE—Choice purebred White Holland turkey, toms and hens. Now is the time to get your breeding stock. Write C. F. Gardner, Myrtle Creek, Ore.

VIRGINIA GRILL FOR SALE—Modern and up-to-date in every respect located on one of the principal streets of Roseburg. New equipment throughout. $1500.00. This is a bargain. See E. R. Kenney, Douglas Creditors Association.

FOR RENT

FOR RENT—Apt., use of piano, close in. 331 S. Main.

FOR RENT—Apartments. Downtown, new modern, reasonable. Call 645-J.

FOR RENT—Good 6-room house, garage, $10 per month, 518 S. Main. Phone 1912.

FOR RENT—8-room house; Riverside, 3 blocks from highway. Inquire at Riverside Store.

FOR RENT—4-room downstairs apartment, private bath. 221 W. Washington. Phone 101-R.

FOR RENT—6-room house, 2 baths, garage. Located 401 S. Main. Key at 417 S. Main. Phone 311-R.

FOR RENT—6-room house with large garden spot, also fruit. 505 N. Pine St. Inquire at Fisher's store.

FOR RENT—9-ROOM MODERN HOUSE—Best residential district; reasonable rental. McLENDON REALTY COMPANY, 110 JACKSON STREET.

LOST

LOST—Saturday morning on Jackson St., lady's white gold wrist watch and bracelet. Phone 435-H.

Mrs. Charles Heinline
TEACHER OF
Piano, Harmony and Theory
Suite 1, Kohlhaugen Bldg.
Phone 390

Elite Pleaters
All Kinds of Pleating and Button Making.
MRS. BELLE CASE
Phone 187-R
610 So. Main

CHIROPRACTORS
Drugless Health Center
"Complete Health Service"
SULPHUR VAPOR BATHS
327 West Cass Phone 491

Kohlhaugen Apartments
Furnished apartments, modern in every way.
Within one block of business center of city. Reasonable Rates.
PHONE 58

WANTED

WANTED—25 or 30 ewes on shares, good feed. A. B. Baird, Unquapa.

WANTED—2 more cordwood cutters. Phone 3473. Hoffstad, Dixtonville.

WANTED—A young purebred black turkey tom, early spring turkey. Ray L. Ward.

PHONE 429-RX for painting, paper hanging and kalsomining. A. A. Sprague, 926 S. Main.

WANTED—Plain sewing, prices reasonable. Call at 633 E. Douglas St., after 4 p. m.

WANTED—Ewes, 100 to 200 head, 1 to 4 yrs. of age. N. L. Conn, Roseburg, Ore. Phone 6715.

WANTED—Jersey or Guernsey cows, young cows to freshen soon. Box 600, New Review office.

ROOM AND BOARD with garage in private home $30 per month or will care for semi-invalid, $35 per month. 404 W. Douglas.

WANTED—To trade with owner, a modern house in Albany for a 6-room modern house in Roseburg. Address "Trade," care News-Review.

FEMALE HELP WANTED—Dressing pen or typewriter, spare time. Good pay. Inclose stamped addressed envelope. Advertiser, 1260 Calif. St., San Francisco.

MISCELLANEOUS

WHY suffer with rheumatism when relief can be had. Come to 222 S. Pine St., or phone 436.

CAR OWNER—Don't forget to call 553 when in need of auto parts. Sariff's Auto Wrecking House.

TO TRADE—New five-room house in Eugene, Ore. Will take automobile, team or cows as first payment, and give terms on balance. W. F. Reed, Eugene, Ore., Box 593.

Fencing. Full gauge wire lasts longer. Red Strand fencing is never under gauge. 8-30 Square Deal or hinge joint. $50 per rod at Stearns & Chenoweth, Oakland, Ore.

CHRISTMAS GREETING CARDS—The News-Review exclusive job printing department is showing a nice line of Christmas and New Year Announcements. We have a very complete stock and at very reasonable prices. Place your order now while the stock is complete and pay for them at your convenience. We want your order early so we can be sure of prompt delivery.

DR. DEAN B. BUBAR
OPTOMETRIST
Specialist in the fitting of Glasses
116 Jackson St.

MONEY TO LOAN
ON IMPROVED FARMS

Long term loans with liberal repayment privilege. 5% interest payable annually. Usual commission charges. Ask for folder describing this loan.

G. W. Young & Son
Insurance and Loans
116 Cass St. Phone 417

BRAND'S ROAD STAND

Winter Apples

From 50 Cents a Box Up.

Delicious Jonathans Snow Apples Spitzbergers Ortleys

de Anjou and Comice Pears Garden Valley Grapes

Fresh grape juice by the gallon. Bring your own containers. Order ahead if possible by phone, 80F33.

BRAND'S

Pacific Highway 3 Miles North

The PENNY PRINCESS

by Anne Austin

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Jerry Macklyn, advertising manager for Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., falls in love with Vera Cameron after he transforms her from a plain secretary into a beauty. He is hurt to learn she consents to the transformation only because she falls in love with a man who ignores her—Schuyler Smythe—and she intends to spend her vacation at Lake Minnetonka where Smythe is vacationing.

Smythe and other guests mistake her, in spite of her denials, for Vivian Crandall, ex-princess, who after a Paris divorce is hiding.

Learning of the supposed princess whereabouts, Crandall decides to arrive one night. Vera and Smythe flee in a stolen car. Smythe begs her to marry him at once, but when she tells him the truth about her identity, he is furious, thereby revealing himself to her as a fortune-hunter.

Vera is kidnapped from the car by two masked men and taken by airplane to a shack in the hills where the prince, Ivan, awaits them. The kidnappers doublecross the prince, holding him and Vera for a Crandall ransom. Vera convinces the prince, furious at the discovery that she is not his ex-wife, that they must "play the part."

In New York Jerry finds Vivian Crandall hiding in the Bronx. Agreeing to help find Vera, she guides Jerry to the shack which she remembers the prince was interested in.

They arrive just as Vera is fleeing from the shack. She tells them how she was left alone with Ivan, after one of the kidnappers was killed before their eyes in an airplane crash and the other departed in fear.

The girls become friends and Vivian proposes to Vera she play black turkey tom, early spring turkey. Ray L. Ward.

Paul has consented to my plan, Vee-Vee, largely for your sake. He likes you and wants to spare you all possible unpleasantness. This is the situation: I am on probation, a self-imposed probation, for three months. If at the end of that time I have not become tired of living like this—a wave of her beautiful hand indicated the small, cheap apartment—"and think I can be happy to continue to live on a small income, Paul will marry me. Her lovely voice vibrated, and her eyes sought and held her man's for a moment. "Of course, I am utterly sure now that I want to marry Paul, but he won't believe me."

"She's making me sound like an utter cad," Paul Allison smiled ruefully, reaching across the table to take Vivian's hand. "But I'm sure you two understand. I can't marry a million dollars and keep my self-respect."

"Don't blame you," Jerry applauded in his big voice. "Do you, Vee-Vee?"

"No," Vee-Vee answered hesitantly. Vivian Crandall laughed indulgently, then went on: "In disapproving I certainly had no idea that I would cause such a furore. I believed that, as a woman grown, I had a right to live my life as I pleased. But my parents thought otherwise. I suppose, too," she conceded fairly, "that they were really anxious about me. The very rich are always in terror lest their children be kidnapped or get into some awful scrape or other. The rich have no freedom at all. That is the big reason why I shall be glad to be poor. However, that is beside the point. My parents asked the help of detectives to find me. They undoubtedly believe that the resulting newspaper publicity was responsible for my kidnapping, or rather, the kidnapping of the girl they firmly believe was I. The thing cannot be ignored now. They would not rest until they found me, and the police, even if my parents asked them to give up the search, could not do so—unless I returned. That is the whole point. Vivian Crandall will have to return to her parents—or appear to do so." She stretched the words significantly, her eyes pleading with Vera Cameron.

"How will you manage it," Vee-Vee asked, bewildered. "I will send you to them to-night with a letter from me. They cannot doubt that it is really from me, for they will recognize my handwriting. Its very illegibility makes it appealingly distinctive," Vivian smiled. "The letter will protect you thoroughly. Vee-Vee, will force their acceptance of you as my impersonator."

"But what will your father and mother tell the police and the reporters?" Vee-Vee worried. "Remember that Schuyler Smythe saw you—or rather me—being kidnapped."

"My dear, a man as rich as my father does not have to explain anything," Vivian Crandall told her simply. "I was kidnapped—I have been returned by the kidnappers, or I escaped, or anything else to accept it will mean misery and scandal for all of us. I am more sorry than I can say that I have caused you pain and anxiety, and the disgrace of seeing our sacred name in the headlines. I am sorry, too, that I cannot explain. To explain would be to ruin my chances for happiness forever. Please accept this as absolutely final, and with it my love and remorse for having unintentionally caused you heartache and anxiety. Your daughter, Vivian."

"That," said Jerry, cocking a brilliant blue eye at Vivian reproachfully, "is rather a hard and bitter letter, young woman. I would not say it is calculated to bring any sunshine into your parents' lives. But I think it will turn the trick. It is certainly amazingly definite, not to say menacing."

"The Rufus Worrell Crandalls fear nothing so much as scandal—a newspaper scandal," Vivian replied, her beautiful mouth a little cynical. "I had to use the only weapon in my hands. And my mother and father have not been exactly model parents. I love them in spite of myself."

"Now, how does this child get herself into your home without being caught in the act?" Jerry veered hastily.

"You will take her there in your car, leaving her at a corner about two blocks from the house. She will let herself into the house in a perfectly matter-of-fact way. The rest is entirely on the knees of rich are always in terror lest their children be kidnapped or get into some awful scrape or other. The rich have no freedom at all. That is the big reason why I shall be glad to be poor. However, that is beside the point. My parents asked the help of detectives to find me. They undoubtedly believe that the resulting newspaper publicity was responsible for my kidnapping, or rather, the kidnapping of the girl they firmly believe was I. The thing cannot be ignored now. They would not rest until they found me, and the police, even if my parents asked them to give up the search, could not do so—unless I returned. That is the whole point. Vivian Crandall will have to return to her parents—or appear to do so." She stretched the words significantly, her eyes pleading with Vera Cameron.

"How will you manage it," Vee-Vee asked, bewildered. "I will send you to them to-night with a letter from me. They cannot doubt that it is really from me, for they will recognize my handwriting. Its very illegibility makes it appealingly distinctive," Vivian smiled. "The letter will protect you thoroughly. Vee-Vee, will force their acceptance of you as my impersonator."

"But what will your father and mother tell the police and the reporters?" Vee-Vee worried. "Remember that Schuyler Smythe saw you—or rather me—being kidnapped."

"My dear, a man as rich as my father does not have to explain anything," Vivian Crandall told her simply. "I was kidnapped—I have been returned by the kidnappers, or I escaped, or anything else to accept it will mean misery and scandal for all of us. I am more sorry than I can say that I have caused you pain and anxiety, and the disgrace of seeing our sacred name in the headlines. I am sorry, too, that I cannot explain. To explain would be to ruin my chances for happiness forever. Please accept this as absolutely final, and with it my love and remorse for having unintentionally caused you heartache and anxiety. Your daughter, Vivian."

"That," said Jerry, cocking a brilliant blue eye at Vivian reproachfully, "is rather a hard and bitter letter, young woman. I would not say it is calculated to bring any sunshine into your parents' lives. But I think it will turn the trick. It is certainly amazingly definite, not to say menacing."

"The Rufus Worrell Crandalls fear nothing so much as scandal—a newspaper scandal," Vivian replied, her beautiful mouth a little cynical. "I had to use the only weapon in my hands. And my mother and father have not been exactly model parents. I love them in spite of myself."

"Now, how does this child get herself into your home without being caught in the act?" Jerry veered hastily.

"You will take her there in your car, leaving her at a corner about two blocks from the house. She will let herself into the house in a perfectly matter-of-fact way. The rest is entirely on the knees of rich are always in terror lest their children be kidnapped or get into some awful scrape or other. The rich have no freedom at all. That is the big reason why I shall be glad to be poor. However, that is beside the point. My parents asked the help of detectives to find me. They undoubtedly believe that the resulting newspaper publicity was responsible for my kidnapping, or rather, the kidnapping of the girl they firmly believe was I. The thing cannot be ignored now. They would not rest until they found me, and the police, even if my parents asked them to give up the search, could not do so—unless I returned. That is the whole point. Vivian Crandall will have to return to her parents—or appear to do so." She stretched the words significantly, her eyes pleading with Vera Cameron.

"How will you manage it," Vee-Vee asked, bewildered. "I will send you to them to-night with a letter from me. They cannot doubt that it is really from me, for they will recognize my handwriting. Its very illegibility makes it appealingly distinctive," Vivian smiled. "The letter will protect you thoroughly. Vee-Vee, will force their acceptance of you as my impersonator."

"But what will your father and mother tell the police and the reporters?" Vee-Vee worried. "Remember that Schuyler Smythe saw you—or rather me—being kidnapped."

"My dear, a man as rich as my father does not have to explain anything," Vivian Crandall told her simply. "I was kidnapped—I have been returned by the kidnappers, or I escaped, or anything else to accept it will mean misery and scandal for all of us. I am more sorry than I can say that I have caused you pain and anxiety, and the disgrace of seeing our sacred name in the headlines. I am sorry, too, that I cannot explain. To explain would be to ruin my chances for happiness forever. Please accept this as absolutely final, and with it my love and remorse for having unintentionally caused you heartache and anxiety. Your daughter, Vivian."

"That," said Jerry, cocking a brilliant blue eye at Vivian reproachfully, "is rather a hard and bitter letter, young woman. I would not say it is calculated to bring any sunshine into your parents' lives. But I think it will turn the trick. It is certainly amazingly definite, not to say menacing."

"The Rufus Worrell Crandalls fear nothing so much as scandal—a newspaper scandal," Vivian replied, her beautiful mouth a little cynical. "I had to use the only weapon in my hands. And my mother and father have not been exactly model parents. I love them in spite of myself."

"Now, how does this child get herself into your home without being caught in the act?" Jerry veered hastily.

"You will take her there in your car, leaving her at a corner about two blocks from the house. She will let herself into the house in a perfectly matter-of-fact way. The rest is entirely on the knees of rich are always in terror lest their children be kidnapped or get into some awful scrape or other. The rich have no freedom at all. That is the big reason why I shall be glad to be poor. However, that is beside the point. My parents asked the help of detectives to find me. They undoubtedly believe that the resulting newspaper publicity was responsible for my kidnapping, or rather, the kidnapping of the girl they firmly believe was I. The thing cannot be ignored now. They would not rest until they found me, and the police, even if my parents asked them to give up the search, could not do so—unless I returned. That is the whole point. Vivian Crandall will have to return to her parents—or appear to do so." She stretched the words significantly, her eyes pleading with Vera Cameron.

"How will you manage it," Vee-Vee asked, bewildered. "I will send you to them to-night with a letter from me. They cannot doubt that it is really from me, for they will recognize my handwriting. Its very illegibility makes it appealingly distinctive," Vivian smiled. "The letter will protect you thoroughly. Vee-Vee, will force their acceptance of you as my impersonator."

"But what will your father and mother tell the police and the reporters?" Vee-Vee worried. "Remember that Schuyler Smythe saw you—or rather me—being kidnapped."

"My dear, a man as rich as my father does not have to explain anything," Vivian Crandall told her simply. "I was kidnapped—I have been returned by the kidnappers, or I escaped, or anything else to accept it will mean misery and scandal for all of us. I am more sorry than I can say that I have caused you pain and anxiety, and the disgrace of seeing our sacred name in the headlines. I am sorry, too, that I cannot explain. To explain would be to ruin my chances for happiness forever. Please accept this as absolutely final, and with it my love and remorse for having unintentionally caused you heartache and anxiety. Your daughter, Vivian."

"That," said Jerry, cocking a brilliant blue eye at Vivian reproachfully, "is rather a hard and bitter letter, young woman. I would not say it is calculated to bring any sunshine into your parents' lives. But I think it will turn the trick. It is certainly amazingly definite, not to say menacing."

"The Rufus Worrell Crandalls fear nothing so much as scandal—a newspaper scandal," Vivian replied, her beautiful mouth a little cynical. "I had to use the only weapon in my hands. And my mother and father have not been exactly model parents. I love them in spite of myself."

"Now, how does this child get herself into your home without being caught in the act?" Jerry veered hastily.

"You will take her there in your car, leaving her at a corner about two blocks from the house. She will let herself into the house in a perfectly matter-of-fact way. The rest is entirely on the knees of rich are always in terror lest their children be kidnapped or get into some awful scrape or other. The rich have no freedom at all. That is the big reason why I shall be glad to be poor. However, that is beside the point. My parents asked the help of detectives to find me. They undoubtedly believe that the resulting newspaper publicity was responsible for my kidnapping, or rather, the kidnapping of the girl they firmly believe was I. The thing cannot be ignored now. They would not rest until they found me, and the police, even if my parents asked them to give up the search, could not do so—unless I returned. That is the whole point. Vivian Crandall will have to return to her parents—or appear to do so." She stretched the words significantly, her eyes pleading with Vera Cameron.

"How will you manage it," Vee-Vee asked, bewildered. "I will send you to them to-night with a letter from me. They cannot doubt that it is really from me, for they will recognize my handwriting. Its very illegibility makes it appealingly distinctive," Vivian smiled. "The letter will protect you thoroughly. Vee-Vee, will force their acceptance of you as my impersonator."

"But what will your father and mother tell the police and the reporters?" Vee-Vee worried. "Remember that Schuyler Smythe saw you—or rather me—being kidnapped."

"My dear, a man as rich as my father does not have to explain anything," Vivian Crandall told her simply. "I was kidnapped—I have been returned by the kidnappers, or I escaped, or anything else to accept it will mean misery and scandal for all of us. I am more sorry than I can say that I have caused you pain and anxiety, and the disgrace of seeing our sacred name in the headlines. I am sorry, too, that I cannot explain. To explain would be to ruin my chances for happiness forever. Please accept this as absolutely final, and with it my love and remorse for having unintentionally caused you heartache and anxiety. Your daughter, Vivian."

"That," said Jerry, cocking a brilliant blue eye at Vivian reproachfully, "is rather a hard and bitter letter, young woman. I would not say it is calculated to bring any sunshine into your parents' lives. But I think it will turn the trick. It is certainly amazingly definite, not to say menacing."

"The Rufus Worrell Crandalls fear nothing so much as scandal—a newspaper scandal," Vivian replied, her beautiful mouth a little cynical. "I had to use the only weapon in my hands. And my mother and father have not been exactly model parents. I love them in spite of myself."

Fence and Tile

Coming this week. Take it at the car door and save money.

Corn $2.20 Cracked $2.30
Flour $2.00, $1.90, $1.85 per sack

See Us First—We Can Save You Money

FARM BUREAU COOPERATIVE EXCHANGE

AGENTS FOR
Roseburg FAIRBANKS MORSE & CO. Oakland
Washington St. and S. P. Tracks.

the gods. You will drive straight to your own apartment and await a telephone call from Vee-Vee there, a call which she will make only if my parents refuse to accept her as Vivian Crandall. You will then get in touch with me and I will go to her assistance immediately. And I will stand by her through anything that can conceivably happen as a result of her effort to help me. Does that satisfy you, Jerry Macklyn?" and she smiled at him so adorably that Vee-Vee felt again that little pang of utterly unreasonable jealousy. (To Be Continued)

Does Vivian's plan succeed? Read what happens to Vee-Vee in the next chapter.
Fresh grape juice at Brand's. Bring your own containers. Phone 30793.

IN BANKRUPTCY

In the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.
In the matter of H. A. Woolman, Bankrupt.

To the creditors of H. A. Woolman, of Yoncalla, in the county of Douglas and district aforesaid, a bankrupt:

Notice is hereby given that the said H. A. Woolman was on the 26th day of October, 1927, duly adjudicated bankrupt; and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held at the office of the undersigned referee in Roseburg, Oregon, on the 17th day of November, 1927, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

Dated November 5th, 1927.
C. L. HAMPTON,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

Bremer Tully Radio
Sixes complete $214 to $350
Eights complete $348.50 to $475
The Best in Radio
TAYLOR'S BATTERY AND ELECTRIC STATION
Corner Rose and Oak Streets.

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

This Can't Be Jim

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Sounds Like Aspirin to Oscar

WON'T YOU LET ME HELP JIMMY?

By Martin

SALESMAN SAM

DAWGONNIT, TH' WATER IS SHUT OFF AN' THERE AIN'T A DROP IN TH' PLACE!

IDEA

LUCKY DOG, YOU ALLIGATOR!

YOU WOULDN'TA HAD YOUR BATH!

By Blosser