The PENNY PRINCESS

COPYRIGHT BY Anne Austin

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Vera Cameron, plain business girl, is transformed into a beauty by Jerry Macklyn, advertising manager for Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., who is to use her photographs in advertising booklets. She agrees to the transformation only because she is in love with a man who ignores her, Schuyler Smythe.

Vera spends her vacation at Lake Minnetonka where Smythe is vacationing. He and other guests mistake her, in spite of her denials, for Vivian Crandall, ex-princess, who after a Paris divorce is in hiding.

Learning of the supposed Vivian's whereabouts, Crandall detectives arrive at night. Vera and Smythe flee in a car. Smythe begs her to marry him at once, but when she tells him the truth about her identity, he is furious. Vera is kidnapped from the car by two masked men who take her by airplane to a shack in the hills where the prince, Ivan, awaits them.

In New York, Jerry, acting on a mysterious phone call, finds Vivian Crandall hiding in the Bronx. Agreeing to help find Vera, she guides Jerry to the shack which she has cause to remember. They arrive just as Vera is fleeing, after repulsing the distasteful advances of the prince. She tells them how she was left alone with Ivan after one kidnaper was killed in an airplane crash and the other departed in fear.

Vivian bribes the prince to go back to Paris. She and Vera become instant friends and she asks Vera to pose as Princess Vivian a little longer, giving Vivian a chance to finish her three months' probation, necessary to convince Paul Allison, a poor man whom she loves, that she can live on a modest income. Vera agrees and they go to Vivian's apartment where Paul Allison sanctions the arrangement. Vivian writes a letter which Vera is to take to the Crandalls, asking them to accept Vera as their daughter to avoid publicity until she, Vivian, can return home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

A slight, quick stepping figure ascended the steps of a house on Park Avenue.

A young man, who seemed to be patrolling the vicinity of the Crandall home, wheeled at the sound of her brief footsteps, gave her a long searching look and then, as she fumbled for her fatchkey, broke into a run.

"I say! You aren't Vivian Crandall, are you?" he panted, snatching his straw hat from his head.

"Aren't I?" Vee-Vee smiled demurely, with an upward lift of her enigmatically arched eyebrows, then slipped inside the door and closed it gently but firmly in the astonished face of the reporter.

She opened her handbag to remove the letter with which Vivian had armed her. After all, they could do nothing worse than refuse to accept Vivian's amazing ultimatum, and if they did that Vivian herself would stand behind her.

She was still reviewing the situation in a panic when a tall, gray-haired old man, very dignified and stately in his butler's clothes, came marching majestically down the softly lighted hall.

Something of Vivian Crandall's courage and poise came then to the girl who so closely resembled her. Vee-Vee stepped forward and most nonchalantly greeted the butler with a curt nod.

"Good evening, Soames," Vivian had attended to that detail, too. "Are my mother and father in?"

The butler's eyes flew wide in an expression of surprise. His mouth worked soundlessly for a moment, then he bowed. "Good evening, Miss Crandall. I believe they are still in the library, Miss Crandall."

"Perhaps you had better announce that I am calling," Vee-Vee smiled, her voice as cool and carefree as she knew Vivian's would have been under the circumstances.

She followed close upon the heels of the butler to a door far down the impressive hall, but she waited outside until Soames, behind the closed door, had made his breath-taking announcement. She clenched her hands tightly over the precious letter to strengthen her faltering courage.

"Will you come into the library, Miss Crandall?" Soames asked, his face inscrutable again, as he slipped noiselessly through the door.

"I'm glad they did not rush to meet me with welcoming arms extended," Vee-Vee reflected as she forced herself to advance toward certain unpleasantness.

Her first glance gave her a fairer clear picture of the couple. Vivian's mother was a tall, handsome, almost slender woman of 50, with copper-colored hair, only a little dulled in color than her beautiful daughter's. Vivian's father was more formidable—a tall, gaunt old eagle, at least 15 years his wife's senior. His hair was a bushy mass of white, his eyebrows, in contrast, as black as heavy smudges of ink across his high forehead.

Vee-Vee instantly feared Rufus Worrell Crandall and felt drawn toward the woman who had contributed so generously to Vivian's beauty and patrician bearing. But she had little time to analyze her emotions, for they were advancing toward her, Mr. Crandall frowning prodigiously, Mrs. Crandall with extended hands and a bright smile of welcome in her hazel eyes and on her fine mouth.

"Well," Vee-Vee spoke breathlessly. "I don't want to deceive you for a moment, I am not Vivian."

FLUNKING RULE BEING ADOPTED

Vee-Vee continues to play the game, but she begins to worry about Jerry. Read the next chapter.

WOMEN, WEAK, TIRED, or who suffer ovarian pains, pains in the lower part of the stomach, bearing down pains, female weakness, headaches, backache, indigestion, despondency, nervous derangements, flushes of heat, foot-ling and indolent pains, white, painful or irregular periods, should write to Mrs. Ellen Lovell, 6418 Mass. Kansas City, Mo.

She will entirely FREE and without charge to the inquirer advice of a convenient home method whereby she and other women say they have successfully relieved similar troubles.

The most common expression of these thankful women is "I feel like a new woman." And others, "I don't have any pains whatever anymore." "I can hardly believe myself done so much good for me in such a short time." Write today. This advice is entirely free to you. She has nothing to sell.

GAMBLERS ARE SENT TO JAIL

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 8.—Convicted of fleecing more than 20 men of sums ranging from $2 to $600 by means of a crooked card game, Robert Collins, Edward Hume and Paul Bozanic, were sentenced to six months in jail today and fined $500. Police say they had been operating here since late in July. One of the thru-vit men to a room for a game of cards and there fleece him, evidence showed.
