HERMANN CASES TO BE HEARD IN CIRCUIT COURT

Circuit Court convened here this afternoon to resume the work of the November term. The case of Schiller Hermann against Elbert Hermann was first on the docket. This is a case in which the plaintiff is endeavoring to collect $1,247. It is claimed that this money is due for money loaned and for money paid as security on a note, and it is alleged that acknowledgment of the debt was made in March of this year, but that no payment has been made. The defense on the other hand, denies the debt and sets up a counter claim of $2,500, and to be due for legal services rendered in the settlement of the Hermann estate.

A second, and somewhat similar case, is set to follow this first case, the second being brought by Mrs. Esther Perkins against Elbert Hermann. In this case Mrs. Perkins alleges $1,200 to be due on promissory notes, but the defendant claims lack of consideration and has a counter claim of $3,000 for attorney fees.

FOLSOM PRISON SCENE OF RIOT; ALL SURRENDER

 It was anticipated that their position among the rioters was precarious. The identity of those men still was unknown.

Information leading to the outside was the effect that the uniforms were stripped of their emblems which were done by the ring leaders of the riot and that they were forced to don prison garb and were used by the revolt as shields when they wished to shoot.

The revolt is believed by prison authorities to have been planned for some time and to have been intended to lead to a general delivery.

The quick spread of the alarm however, prevented this.

The dead are: Ray Singleton, assistant turnkey, who was stabbed and shot in the first rush of convicts; Charles Glase, gatekeeper, who dropped dead from excitement and seven unidentified convicts. Among the wounded were: Ernest Hughes, secretary to Warden Smith, shot in the hip.

Charles Corhanon, guard, said to be near death because of knife and gun wounds.

Barnard Dealey, guard, stabbed.

Walter Neil, turnkey, shot in the foot.

Peaceful surrender of the rebellious convicts seemed assured at 7 o'clock this morning when Warden Smith finished a telephone conversation with a ring leader inside the prison, during which it was indicated that the warden's term of surrender would be accepted.

The prisoner, whose name was not learned, agreed that he would talk to his fellow prisoners and assured the warden that if the guards would open the gates at the end of thirty minutes, the convicts would march out in small groups and be taken to another cell house. He pleaded for immunity for all the prisoners but the warden declared that it was beyond his power to grant anything beyond the assurance that there would be no abuse of the convicts and that they would be assured of a fair trial.

The convicts' spokesman also argued about the food to be furnished those placed in solitary confinement and the warden assured that they would be given one solid meal a day.

The terms agreed upon gave the ring leader the option of surrendering at the wicket or remaining in their cells if they wished.

In his conversation with the convict the warden stressed the fact that he was depending upon the honor of the beleaguered men. The spokesman for the prisoners assured him that the guns and such ammunition as remained, would be handed over to the guards at the gate.

Prison officials expressed the belief that had it not been for these weapons in the hands of a few hard criminals, who intimidated the rest, the revolt would have been quelled soon after the first riots occurred.

The end of the rebellion came after a night during which state officials had assembled at the prison all resources of the national guard, machine guns and armored tanks. It was the greatest turnout of state troops since the Wheatland riot of 1913.

An officer and representatives of Governor C. C. Young had gathered at the prison to advise Warden Court Smith and kept a night long vigil. They had planned extreme measures to put into effect today should the prisoners prove obstinate.

It was learned today that Hans Poulson, former head of the competing route of the Victoria Delta, daily newspaper, was a companion yesterday of Warden Smith in his office which was under fire of the rioters. The warden and Poulson made their escape late in the afternoon.

The revolt ended this morning after a parley between Warden Smith and one of the rioters, over the prospect of making the prison on to the warden's office. The spokesman for the convicts tried to secure immunity for the prisoners but was met with a firm refusal. The warden insisted that all leaders of the revolt must be tried in the courts but assured them of a fair trial. It was agreed that the convicts were placed in a solitary confinement, should be given one solid meal a day.

Practically every peace officer in California from the Tehachas mountains to the Oregon boundary and from the Nevada line to the Pacific had been assembled at Folsom prison before the convicts capitulated, freed the guards who still remained in their chutes, and turned over their arms. The surrender marked the end of the greatest attempted break in Folsom prison and one of the greatest in the history of the United States. In numbers of men engaged in the revolt and in numbers of guardsmen, possemen and volunteer civilians who entered into the task of guarding the prison walls from the expected assault by prisoners, all of whom had served at least one prior prison term, the outbreak that ended today replaced all records for California.

MEGFORD DEFEATS ASHLAND

(Associated Press Local Wire)
 MEGFORD, Ore., Nov. 25.—Megford defeated Ashland high school yesterday 13 to 12 in a hard fought football battle. The Megford school used second string men in the first half which ended with the score 6 to 0. In the second half Megford put over two touchdowns with the regulars at work. Ashland played an aerial game throughout, and nearly every play was a forward pass.

"GAY DEVILS"
 Do women prefer them? Answered at Baptist church Sunday night.

District Attorney Neil R. McAlister and Deputy District Attorney Horace E. Eyo arrived at the prison today to question the convicts engaged in the uprising. Seven of the prisoners agreed, in conversation with Warden Smith, to assume complete responsibility for the entire affair.

The six leaders of the revolt included one life term murderer, three robbers, a forger and a burglar. They admitted to Warden Court Smith that they were the leaders of the revolt and are now in solitary confinement and are to be prosecuted in the courts under charges which will make their lives forfeit in case of guilty verdicts.

These men are: Anthony Brown, San Francisco robber, who is serving a 15 year term and who was the actual leader of the revoltors.
