

Colds that develop into Pneumonia

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recommended by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. For sale by all druggists.

FIREMEN WAIT BOARD'S DECISION ON PAY INCREASE

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Thirty thousand firemen on western railroads await an arbitration board decision to see whether their pay checks will be increased by $1 a day.

After 55 systems comprising the Association of Western Railroads had refused the request of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers for the increase, the plea went to a federal arbitration board which completed a hearing in Chicago November 11. A decision is looked for November 28, when the board reassembles at Denver.

Both sides cited changed economic conditions in presenting their arguments. The roads claimed the firemen were adequately paid and that the carriers were not able to add to their payrolls annually the $7,500,000 to $10,000,000 necessary to meet the increase asked.

Shrinking agricultural markets and rising overhead costs officials of the carriers asserted, have combined to make it difficult to keep large transportation systems earning a fair return on the capital investment.

A number of firemen testified that promotion to engineer was slow and their wages insufficient to maintain the accepted standard of living. They contended that heavier engines made heavier trains and fewer of them, reducing the number of engineers required and therefore the number of possibilities for promotion.

Donald R. Richberg, counsel for the union, assailed statements of earnings and investments submitted to the interstate commerce commission by the roads. He declared the final value placed on the fifty-five roads by the interstate commerce commission was some $2,000,000,000 less than the value entered by the roads.

It was argued by the carriers' officials that the west cannot bear

Increased rail rates, which they said, must inevitably follow if the firemen are given more money.

The average yearly wage of firemen on western lines was shown in figures submitted by the carriers as $2,200. Figures of the firemen tended to show their yearly earnings to average less than $2,000.

DARTMOUTH AND YALE FURNISH TWO BIG STARS

(Associated Press Leased Wire) NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The best eleven of Dartmouth and the Yale Bulldogs that raised Dartmouth's championship hope, each furnished two men for the all-eastern team for 1927, compiled by The Associated Press today from the consensus of 56 critics, sport writers and officials throughout the sector.

Pittsburgh's partners, chosen to represent the east in the Tournament of Roses clash with Lehigh, Stanford and generally conceded an equal claim with Yale for the mythical eastern title, placed but one man on the first eleven in "Gibby" Welch, rival of Dartmouth's Al Marsters for recognition as the outstanding eastern back of the season.

Princeton, while unable to provide a star for the first eleven, furnished three men for the second team. Through second team selections, Yale and Dartmouth acquired three places and Pittsburgh two. Fourteen colleges were represented by the leading 23 players.

Selection of outstanding ends appeared most difficult with a horde of fine wingmen developed on Atlantic gridirons this season. Amos of Washington and Jefferson, and Connor, New York University quarterback, were general choices to team with Marsters and Welch in the backfield. Influenced, perhaps, by the greater experience, several Army and Navy stars hoisted their college play before entering the service academies, critics gave cadets but one place on the first team. Navy gained one second team choice.

U. S. C. TO MEET THE IRISH AGAIN

(Associated Press Leased Wire) CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Another thrilling intersectional football game between the University of Southern California and Notre Dame was promised today to fans who watched Notre Dame beat the Trojans of the west 7 to 6 Saturday at Soldier Field. The teams have signed another two-year home-and-home agreement. The 1928 game to be played at Los Angeles and the 1929 game somewhere in this region, perhaps at South Bend if Notre Dame's proposed new stadium is completed by that time.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Ticked with his Notre Dame team's victory over Southern California last Thursday, Coach Knute Rockne passed along part of the glory to his coaching assistants in a dinner speech after the great battle.

"Hunk Anderson," said Rockne, "is head coach on the Saturdays we lose. Anderson coaches the team, Tommy Mills does the scouting and all I do is blow up the ball."

At a luncheon yesterday in honor of the boys of Polish extraction on his Notre Dame team which glories in the title of "fighting Irish," Rockne said that his school wanted more boys of Polish blood. Johnny Niemce, halfback and John Polaski, tackle, stars of the first string eleven, were the particular guests of honor.

NOTRE DAME TO PLAY BOTH THE ARMY AND NAVY

(Associated Press Leased Wire) CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—The navy, which played the army at Soldier Field here last year, will be back in 1928, but with Notre Dame as the opposition. The game will be played October 13, Coach Rockne of Notre Dame announced.

The South Bend school will play both service eleven's next year, army already having been scheduled for a game in New York. The

LITTLE HOPE OF PRE-VENTING BUILDING OF THE LONGVIEW BRIDGE

(Associated Press Leased Wire) PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 28.—The Port of Portland commission today received an opinion from its council expressing doubt whether any successful legal action could be taken to prevent the building of the proposed Longview bridge. James B. Kerr of the legal firm of Carey and Kerr gave the opinion at a special meeting of the commission. A joint meeting of the Port of Portland commission, Chamber of Commerce bridge committee, Portland Dock commission and State Highway commission, will be held December 6 at 2 p. m. in the offices of the Port of Portland, further to consider the situation.

Portland interests opposed to the construction of a private toll bridge across the Columbia river at Longview, had threatened to bring legal action as a final effort to prevent erection of the bridge, which was authorized by act of congress. The proposed suit to attack the constitutionality of the act was discussed after final approval of the bridge plans had been given recently by a cabinet committee.

PRISONER ROLLS DICE IN COURT WINS FREEDOM

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Haled before Judge H. H. Abernathy, in the Birmingham court of misdemeanors, a negro miscreant charged with shooting a dice was offered the chance to "pass" his way to freedom.

Onto his knees went the defendant with a pair of dice. From his perch on the bench Judge "Ab" peered down at the voracious crier over the courtroom floor. A dozen wide-eyed spectators leaned forward to watch the outcome.

"Seven it is!" exclaimed the prisoner.

And the jurist who meets residents of Birmingham's negro quarter on grounds with which they are familiar pointed a finger at the kneeling man and gave his decision: "Not guilty."

CLEVELAND DEVISES WATERFRONT PROJECT

CLEVELAND.—At a cost of $100,000,000 Cleveland proposes to turn its swamping lake front into a vast industrial center, with great bulkhead pier terminals for railroads and lake shipping, flanked by high speed boulevards, courses for boat races and an extensive park system.

In the future day when the St. Lawrence waterway is completed, water department business vision of the Cleveland waterfront as serving 40,000,000 persons living as far south as Nashville, Tenn.

That eventually has been considered in plans for the development by City Manager William R. Hopkins, but the improvement also is projected as necessary to the growth of the city.

Hopkins has asked the city council to approve the first step, which would be construction of streets, bulkheads, sewers and a high-speed boulevard with eight traffic lanes. The immediate development would cost $6,500,000, to be borne by the city, railroads, shipping and other private interests.

As an adjunct of the project, the council has asked Mr. Hopkins to present plans for a municipal stadium on the lake front, seating 100,000 persons and costing $2,000,000.

Scattered along the westward sweep of the lake shore now are several municipal parks and some shipping facilities, but the waterfront will have to be virtually remade to conform to the pretentious plans, which have been completed on paper.

Thousands of acres of land will have to be reclaimed by dikes, other thousands made to rise out of the waters of Lake Erie by artificial dumping.

MISS HALDEMAN-JULIUS' VIEWS ON MARRIAGE

"Why should we young people be expected to wait for marriage until we have reached economic independence?"

"When we are ready to make our home together like other married people we shall have children."

"Companionate marriage in my viewpoint means happiness when life is still rosy and filled with laughter."

"I believe that if many of the boys and girls I know were to do likewise there would be fewer tragedies."

GIRARD, Kans., Nov. 28.—Josephine Haldeman-Julius, the 18-year-old high school girl who has startled the country with her announcement of a companionate marriage with a young man she has known since childhood, today told in an exclusive interview with NEA Service and the News-Review why she believes such a marriage is superior to the old-fashioned form.

The girl is the daughter of E. Haldeman-Julius, famous book publisher of this little Kansas town, and in taking this ultra-modern step she will be testing the naive marriage theory of one of her father's closest friends—former Judge Ben Lindsey of the Denver juvenile court. The "companionate bridegroom" is Aubrey Clay Roselle, 20-year-old youth, who formerly was a student in the University of Kansas and is now employed in the editorial department of Haldeman-Julius' publishing house.

In the interview, which was obtained in the presence of her parents, Miss Haldeman-Julius reveals an amazing knowledge of life for one who has not yet obtained a high school diploma. She is convinced that companionate marriage, instead of being immoral, will tend to decrease the immorality of modern youth.

Miss Haldeman-Julius intends to continue her school work and eventually hopes to become a professional dancer.

Not a Trial Marriage.

At the outset, she emphasized the fact that this marriage is in no sense a "trial marriage."

"My most enduring hope is to make our marriage a lasting one, and it is my aim, as I know in the case with Aubrey, to have this tie hold for the rest of our lives," she said.

"At the age of 18 I find myself filled with ideas and impressions of the emotional life I see on all sides. Why should we young people

MOTION FOR NON-SUIT IN HERMANN CASE IN COURT

Argument on a motion to declare a non-suit in the case of the counterclaim in the suit of Schiller Hermann against Albert Hermann continued to occupy the attention of the circuit court this afternoon. Schiller Hermann is seeking to collect $1247 said to be due on an account, while the defendant claims $2500 due for attorney fees. It is contended that the attorney fees are sought for work done in connection with the settling of the Hermann estate and that the widow, Mrs. Flora Hermann, is co-executor. The plaintiffs claim that Schiller Hermann cannot be charged with failure to pay any indebtedness that might be incurred by both executors and a motion was presented to have the counterclaim declared a non-suit. The attorneys late this afternoon were still engaged in their arguments.

CAPTAIN PAMPHLET GRANTED A STAY

(Associated Press Leased Wire) PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 28.—Captain Robert Pamphlet and three others connected with the Canadian run runner Pescawha, were granted 20 days stay of execution today by Federal Judge McNary. Captain Pamphlet was due to surrender to start serving sentence of two years in prison following conviction of violating United States liquor and revenue laws. His appeal for probation will be heard when Federal Judge Bean returns from a trip to California.

ABUNDANT DEATH NOTICES

ROME.—Any prominent Italian business man is sure to have not one but several death notices in the newspapers when he dies. Besides the one issued by the family, giving the day and hour of the funeral, all the firms of which he was a director or partner during his lifetime feel bound to add their lineage of tribute. Frequently the death notices for the same person run up to eight or ten, using up from a third to a half a column.

ACCIDENT NEAR HERE CAUSES DAMAGE SUIT

(Associated Press Leased Wire) PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 28.—Suit for $7500 damages was filed today against H. B. Van Duzer, state highway commissioner, as the outcome of a fatal accident on the state road 33 miles west of Roseburg March 10, 1926.

Albert D. Jones lost his life in the accident, and the action is brought by Guy C. H. Corliss, administrator of the Jones estate.

Jones' car was forced over an embankment, according to the complaint, in an effort to avoid collision with a state truck that was clearing the road of a slide. The overturned car rolled 100 feet down an embankment into the Coquille river, crushing Jones' skull.

SUSPENDED RATES ON OREGON CANNED GOODS

(Associated Press Leased Wire) SALEM, Ore., Nov. 28.—Simultaneously with an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission suspending proposed increased rates on canned goods affecting several western states, the Public Service Commission of Oregon and the utilities commission of the state of Washington today suspended same commodities. The orders lapsed the Interstate rates on the elude condensed milk in the list. Both the Interstate and the Intrastate rates were to become effective today. They are suspended pending an investigation.

Columbia county has $17,098,755 valuation, exclusive of public utilities.

Do we ever give serious consideration to conditions prevailing here which are seriously retarding growth and development?

In propounding the last question we have in mind the general attitude toward local industries. We have in mind the fact that candy made in Medford is marketed as far south as Sacramento, California, while at home that product goes begging for a market. Like the prophet "who is not without honor save in his own country," that product goes unhonored here, yet is of such excellent quality that it is meeting with a growing demand in outside districts.

We are reminded that we are shipping in canned tomatoes, canned peas and other canned products from every direction when the same products are prepared locally with a delectability equal to that of any other district in the world.

In the face of all our achievements, how many of us ever stop to consider the fact that we are merely kidding ourselves with respect to what we are accomplishing in the way of community growth?

We have cited only three specific instances wherein local products and industries are discriminated against locally to a shameful degree, but there are others which go to prove that when we pride ourselves on achievements we are only kidding ourselves.

Until we realize that we will not be hitting our stride until we accord local products a preference over those that are imported we will be far short of hitting our best stride in community development.

It appears that we have a lot to learn and a lot to do before we can rightfully claim that we are anywhere near a hundred per cent efficient in community development. Until we realize that we have been kidding ourselves, at least to a large extent, and go out and go to bat for local industries we will lack a whole lot of being the go-getters we are permitting ourselves to believe we are.—Medford Daily News.

STATE PRESS COMMENT

Time to Quit Kidding
We are a great bunch of kidders, meaning we people here in Medford. We have had a 100 per cent increase in population since 1920. We have nearly $7,000,000 in bank resources. Millions have been spent in the city during the past four or five years in new construction. We have acquired new industries and greatly increased payrolls. All in all, we have made a good record. At least that is what we credit ourselves with doing.

In the face of all our achievements, how many of us ever stop to consider the fact that we are merely kidding ourselves with respect to what we are accomplishing in the way of community growth?

An 18-Year-Old Girl Tells Why She Believes Her Companionate Marriage Will Be a Happy One

Companionate Wedding Principals

Josephine Haldeman-Julius, 18, and Aubrey Clay Roselle, 20, pictured here, announce to the world their "companionate marriage" at Girard, Kansas. Josephine is the daughter of E. Haldeman-Julius, publisher. Roselle, who works for Haldeman-Julius, will assume no financial responsibility for the present and Josephine will continue to go to school. If the marriage "takes," well and good. Otherwise there'll be a divorce. The girl's parents approve.

pitfalls that so often cause tragedy?

"In our own case we have been most fortunate. Father and mother have co-operated with us, have studied our heart problems from the viewpoint of youth, and as a result we are revisiting life instead of discouragement in living normal lives. I shall, though I am married, continue with my school work and Aubrey will continue his. We will meet often—as often as we really desire. We will live in a healthy love instead of bearing the burden of puritanical inhibitions.

Will Face the Facts.
"We shall try to make it last, but if it doesn't we shall face the facts calmly and accept a mistake instead of continuing to live a lie.

"When we are ready to make our home together like other married people we shall have children. We certainly want children eventually, but not until we are ready for them.

"That is what companionate marriage means to me, and I shall strive to uphold my part of the contract. I sincerely believe that if many of the boys and girls I know were to do likewise we should have fewer tragedies. Companionate marriage, to my viewpoint, means happiness and the full life—not in some distant future, when youth is gone, but now when life is still rosy and filled with laughter.

"I know that countless hundreds of thousands of young people feel as I do, but they are bewildered by the conventions of an older generation. Those parents serve their children best, I believe, who are willing to take into consideration the new and great difficulties youth must surmount before they are able to take their formal places in the community.

"Life is short. Why postpone happiness when one may sensibly achieve life's fullness without waiting for youth to pass? It is ridiculous to tell us young people of 18 and 20 that we are not men and women. I am as much a woman today as I shall be 15 years from now. This means, to me, that the intelligent and civilized thing to do is to arrange one's life terms in his best and noblest expressions may be taken before youth is passed.

Legally Married.
"Of course, we are legally married—a license, minister, two rings and the rest. There is no other way while we are waiting for changes in our laws to allow complete companionate marriages.

"I know that this will sound extremely forward to our more conventionally-minded friends, but I cannot, in all honesty, take a different position and still be true to my best ideals.

"I hope my own step and the attitude of our parents may prove an encouragement to other young people and their parents to follow our example."
