BRIDGE WORKMEN HAVE CLOSE CALL

John Ulam and George Kilpatrick, who reside east of Canyonville, had narrow escapes from death yesterday while working on a suspension bridge across the South Umpqua river.

The two men were working in the center of the bridge, adding sections to the floor, which they were suspending from the cables, when the upper cable broke and dropped the men about thirty feet into the water.

REBUS MAKES A PLEADING TALK.—CINCINNATI, Dec. 13.—Pent up hatred against Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., harsh criticism of Prosecutor Charles P. Taft, II, and a threat to mandamus Judge Chester R. Shook before the state supreme court were voiced today in a vitriolic twenty minute address by George Remus, the former "big of bootleggers" on trial for his life for orlede.

Remus summoned forbidden language to voice his hatred of Dodge, the former department of justice agent to whom he attributed the blame for all his troubles.

Turning to young Taft he called him and his associates "these no-vices" and accused them of resorting to "subterranean" advantages in their efforts to convict him.

STATE PRESS COMMENT.—The Circuit Rider.—Here are some excerpts from "The Circuit Rider," broadcasted by Prof. J. B. Horner of the Oregon Agricultural College over KOAC on November 8th: "The equestrian statute of The Circuit Rider placed on the capital grounds at Salem as a loving tribute by Hon. R. A. Booth to his father, reminds us that while the sacrifices of the circuit rider were untold, the reward was great. In the course of time school houses were built, and the school buildings came to be utilized also as meeting places. Later a church stood beside the school, and then an academy; finally a college, a university or some charitable institution appeared along the trail of the circuit rider."

"So, as we admire the University of Oregon, let us not forget that it was cradled by the Cumberland Presbyterian church; or that the State Normal School at Monmouth was cradled by the Christian church, first as Christian college; Willamette University, by the Methodists; Pacific University by the Congregationalists; Pacific College by the Friends; Oregon Agricultural College by the M. E. Church South; or that the Missionary university at the upper Nile that Colonel Roosevelt so admired would have been impossible but for the United Presbyterian church that had its origin at Oakville, which will be visited next Sunday by college students and friends."

"Let it also not be forgotten that back in the history of each thrilling story of a circuit rider loyally sustained by his devoted self-denying wife."

Prof. Horner might have gone with a still more extended list of Oregon institutions of learning and hospitals and other monuments to altruistic feelings of the race—

And he might have ranged over the wide world to every land influenced by the precepts of the Nazarene who taught the brotherhood of man, and named practically all the hospitals and asylums and institutions devoted to the alleviation of the sufferings and to the moral well being of the races of men.

The circuit rider has been confined to no church denomination. Paul, apostle to the gentile, was among the first of them. Those who rode after him were legion. The Mavflowyer pilgrims were among the best. They first gave charity and consolation, and then founded the church and the school—and the greatest of America's historic universities followed. The spirit of the circuit riders has scattered missionaries and missionary institutions on all the five continents, and in nearly every island in the seven seas.

If we are to have mutual federation of the forces of brotherhood bringing world understanding and peace among the races of humanity and permanent world peace, it will come from the spirit of the circuit rider—Salem Statesman.

CONDEMN LOAN GIVEN TO HILL.—(Associated Press Leased Wire)—WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The senate today adopted a resolution condemning the action of Commissioner W. S. Hill in securing a loan from a representative of Swayne and Hoyt shipping company of San Francisco and at the same time ordered cancelled the contract Swayne and Hoyt has for the operation of the American, Australia Orient line.

J. J. Bley was the man named in the resolution as having made the loan to Mr. Hill who announced his resignation yesterday after President Coolidge had failed to send his name to the senate for confirmation.

The resolution said there had been before the board for some months the matter of the proposed sale of the American-Australia-Orient line, all operated from the west coast for the board and "pending the consideration and discussion of the matters by the board, Mrs. J. J. Bley, the alleged Washington representative of one of the interested parties, Swayne and Hoyt, consummated a loan of a substantial sum of money to one of the shipping board commissioners, W. S. Hill, which money was obtained on a note signed by Bley and endorsed by Robert H. Swayne, president, Swayne and Hoyt; and a majority of the board that considered and voted upon the report of the committee concerning the matter were in total ignorance of the above facts."

The opinion of the board was that the "offer and acceptance of such loan constituted a grave impropriety, and that the contract should be cancelled.

COMMENDS HEALTH OFFICER LARAWAY.—Commendation of the efforts of County Health Officer Dr. Laraway in combating the spread of the dread infantile paralysis is contained in a letter received here this week from State Health Officer Stricker. Dr. Stricker had the following to say: "The policy of the state board of health is not to interfere with the work of the local health officer when it is well done and I am glad to say that everything possible was done to prevent the spread of infantile paralysis in Douglas county."

"The physicians of Roseburg have cooperated with the health department in every way and that the epidemic has been limited to a small number of cases is to their credit. The work of the health department has been difficult and they should be commended for their activities."

Christmas Is Just Around the Corner Do Your Christmas Shopping Now—For Safety and Avoid the Big Crowds Later

Make her say "Just what I wanted, a beautiful pearl necklace."

As a rule when your wife has something to talk to you about it's about something she hasn't got—maybe that diamond ring you promised her for Christmas is just the thing to make her stop holding up her sister's husband as a pattern—and WHY NOT?

Or make this Christmas one of lifetime remembrance with a beautiful wrist watch, plain or set with diamonds and sapphires. And your boy friend or brother would say just what I wanted if you gave him a wrist watch or real leather pocket book or military set, and we have them. A thousand and one different selections. A small deposit will hold any gift till Christmas.

BUBAR BROTHERS JEWELERS

A new thin model watch engraved white gold, is the ideal gift for son or brother.

When buying Christmas diamonds be guided by store reliability and pay the price of quality.

FINE PROGRAM IS OUTLINED ADVISORY BOARD MEETING

Roseburg delegates to the December meeting of the Pacific Northwest Advisory Board of the American Railway association are assured of very interesting and profitable discussions of the many shipping problems that have a tendency to retard or develop the various sections of the Pacific northwest, and in which southern Oregon is interested.

"Every shipper in Roseburg or Douglas county is affected by decisions and recommendations made in these conferences," state H. J. Arnett, the executive secretary of the board. "People engaged in the lumber shipping business no matter how small their output, should attend these meetings and be ready to make any suggestions they might have," states A. W. Cooper, general chairman of the board and manager of the Western Pine Manufacturers association.

"This is a business meeting," states the circular announcing the program. "These meetings have been kept free from sectional jealousies; the interests of the Pacific northwest are treated as a whole. Local quarrels are not admitted to the program. Personal grievances of men, platitudes and meaningless oratory have no place on our program."

Such men as L. C. Phil Johnson, president of the Boeing Airplane Co., Mr. Wm. Spoule, president the Southern Pacific Co., J. A. Swallow, president Dexter-Horton National Bank, Seattle, and two prominent agriculturists will deliver addresses during the day. Special committees will render reports giving progressively economic conditions prevailing in certain major communities during the past five years.

These reports will be very interesting and replete with data on which business precedents have been established. They will also forecast, based on a study of competent groups of men, the prospective business activities in the major industries of the northwest during January, February and March of 1928. Bankers use these analyses in outlining future banking policies. Railroads use them as a guide in allocating, repairing and renewing mobile units to meet shipping requirements, this minimizing expenditures for car shortages.

Merchants use the reports as a determining factor in purchasing stocks for future consumption.

From a business standpoint this conference is an important asset to local business men, especially shippers, and it is gratifying to know that several from Roseburg expect to attend.

TURKEY PRICE ON DECLINE TODAY

The turkey market today was in considerable of a flurry with buyers receiving a great number of birds to be used in shipments to Los Angeles, San Francisco and other coast centers. Buying started out brisk this morning, but shortly before noon orders were received by local buyers to quit taking birds. Reports from the south were that a heavy shipment of Nevada turkeys into California had threatened to upset the market and had frightened the wholesalers. Early prices this morning were at 38 cents per pound, but this broke to 35 and 36 cents as the day progressed. Receipts were reported to be very heavy and it is estimated that perhaps five or six cars will be shipped out tonight for the Christmas trade.

GETS APPOINTMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Henry L. Stimson of New York was nominated by President Coolidge today to be governor general of the Philippines.

Stimson, who was the president's personal envoy to Nicaragua in the peace negotiations there last spring, was believed to have been the president's first choice for the post for some time, but the appointment came as a surprise because it was understood that Mr. Stimson did not care to assume the responsibilities.

He succeeded the late Major General Leonard Wood, who died in this country last summer while on leave of absence.

In appointing Mr. Stimson to the post, the president took the administration of the Philippines out of the hands of a military officer, but he acted on the assumption that the New York man, a former secretary of war, would carry out General Wood's policies in the Philippines as well as those of Mr. Coolidge.
