Society watched a new year in and the old year out in various fashions Saturday eve, for a wide program of enterta.nment was planned by different groups all over the city.

An interesting dance of welcome to the new year was that at the Roseburg Country Club for its members. The gaily decorated rooms made a harmonious setting for the affair. The large room was reserved for dancing and in one of the smaller rooms tables were placed for cards. The festivities of the evening were concluded with a midnight supper. Two other pleasant affairs, among the larger ones arranged as an adieu to the old year, were the dinner-dance at the Rose Hotel and the watch party at which Bethel Number 8 of Roseburg Job's Daughters and the DeMolays joined in entertaining on Saturday evening.

Clubs are turning with interest to the new calendar as evidenced this week by meetings of several groups to elect their officers for 1928. Although the mid-winter season with all its gayety and inspiration is upon us there is room for thought of the spring and what it has in store in the way of large events. Two things of note planned are the yearly meeting of the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs here in May and in that same month the annual meeting of grand lodge of the I. O. O. F.

Miss Torrey and Kenneth Perry Wed At Large Church Service

Quite interesting to circles in Roseburg is the holiday wedding at which Miss Ellenor Torrey, Klamath Falls maid, and Kenneth Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Perry, former Roseburg folk, were married on the evening of December 29. The bridegroom received his preliminary education in Roseburg and later attended O. A. C. He is a nephew of Miss Mattie Perry of Roseburg. An account of the nuptial service from the Klamath Falls Herald is as follows:

Miss Ellenor Torrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Poole, became the bride of Mr. Kenneth Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Perry, at a beautiful church wedding on Thursday evening, December twenty-ninth at the hour of 7:30 o'clock. The quaint interior of St. Paul's Episcopal church which was the scene of the wedding was beautifully decorated in ferns, palms and evergreens. The aisle leading to the altar was lined with ferns and flowers in the pastel shades. At the altar a huge basket of chrysanthemums stood with two equally large baskets of the same flowers graced on either side. Just in front of the altar a spiral arch of ferns and holly formed a frame where the bridal party stood as the vows were exchanged. Rev. J. Henry Thomas performed the ceremony in the presence of forty relatives and friends of the popular young couple.

The bride, a charming young woman, was beautifully gowned in a frock of white georgette, embroidered with rhinestones and pearls. Her wedding veil, of real lace, was caught about her head in cap shape with sprays of orange blossoms and fell in graceful folds to the bottom of her gown. Her shower bouquet was of roses, lilies of the valley and maiden hair ferns.

Miss Ellen McVeigh was bridesmaid and wore a fetching frock of orchid chiffon with picture hat and accessories to match.

Mr. Thomas White Detzell was best man.

The beautiful music was rendered by Mr. Harry Borrel and Mrs. Thomas Thorn. The wedding march from Midsummers Night's Dream by Mendelssohn and the wedding chorus from Lohengrin were beautifully played during the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry left immediately following the ceremony for Portland where they will remain for a fortnight. Upon their return to Klamath Falls they will be at home to their friends on North Third.

Miss Annabel Deno, former Roseburg maid, was a holiday visitor here as the guest of relatives and has returned to Manteca, California, where she is supervisor of music in the high school.

LACE IS NOW SMARTER THAN EVER

Femininity of the Mode Has Brought It Into Its Own

BL HENRI BENDEL
For NEA Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Lace has come into its own in this feminine age of costuming. The lace frock is acclaimed now as proper for afternoon, dinner and evening.

Always delicately decorative, lace this season achieves a position of honor as the entire medium for some of the smartest creations of the season.

I have really been surprised at the many, many times and ways I have hit upon lace to solve this or that problem in getting just the right soft, enhancing effect.

Here, There, Everywhere

As a filmy shoulder decoration on this chiffon dress, as the graceful bow and long streamers at the hip of another gown, as a yoke on a smart blouse of a crepe de chine ensemble, as the floucings on a tiered skirt that needs a fluttering, soft finish, lace has been just about the handiest thing in the world for the courtourier this year.

But it is the lace frock, really, that gave social assurance to the use of lace.

The Vivacity of Color

Colored lace, in vivid greens, blues and reds are as chic as they are delicately vivacious. Black lace is ultra proper for dinner and evening. New metal laces, including silver, gold and bronzes, in luxuriously soft new weaves, are all that a woman needs in the way of beauty.

I show today three interpretations of the lace frock. For high teas and other formal wear there is the bronze tinted metal lace long-sleeved frock.

Smart as it is different, this costume has a hip-length packet with the tiniest little nip in at the waistline that is reminiscent of old-fashioned bodices that topped hooped and paniered skirts.

Its skirt has two tiers of shaded bronze lace, the edges much darker than the top. These swoop to dipping back lines that spell style in the new silouette. Becoming, graceful, this gown is an achievement because with such elaborate material the greatest simplicity is gained.

Typical of Semi-period Vogue

For evening dances, the gold metal cloth with its elaborate gold lace flounce of hip cloth depth is luxurious enough to give great confidence to its lucky wearer. This gown is typical of the new semi-period frocks that are in vogue now. It catches the spirit of the graceful gown of yesteryear and yet embodies all the season's style points.

Unusual is the V-shaped back of the bodice, with its bow-knot of gold cloth draping its ends down the back for further softness. A bread banding of the metal cloth finishes the neck and three fitted bands fashion a wide girdle to the bodice. While the front is slightly shorter than the back, this frock's longer length heralds the approach of longer skirts for spring.

After Dinner Dancing, Too

The perfect dinner gown is black lace, because, pressed into service for an evening dance it suffices. Such a one is shown. Of fine thread lace over black and flesh colored chiffon this model reveals the novel semi-princess silhouette, with slightly flaring skirt, the new yoke-effect achieved by using a yoke of pink on the black slip and the flounce idea, carried out by the same method.

Perhaps it's the scarf motif used in combination with the peacock silhouette that gives this graceful model such charm. Its femininity is accented by this scarf which fall over the shoulders protectingly, fashioning sleeves for the frock.

For afternoon formal wear is this long-sleeved frock of bronze-tinted metal lace.

A luxuriously flounced dance frock, of gold metal cloth and gold lace.

A "perfect dinner gown"—black lace over a flesh-colored chiffon slip.

BEAUTY

How and Why

WASH THE FACE WITH THOROUGHNESS

By Ann Alysis

Since so much waste is deposited on the surface of the skin, our first care must be its removal in such a manner as not to injure the skin's satiny texture. This is best done by means of a hot cleansing bath, using a soap which you have found agreeable. Do not rub the skin of the face too vigorously. Use your hands, or a very soft cloth for that purpose. A rough cloth will do for the body, but the face must be carefully washed if you wish to preserve its beauty of texture.

And when thoroughly washed, with hot water, examine carefully to see whether the pores are clogged with dirt or sebaceous matter. If left in a clogged condition, inflammation will set in, a pimple will form, and eventually break. This is Nature's way of getting rid of the offensive matter. By carefully pressing out the blackheads with fingers, you will prevent the pimple.

When this little operation is over, bathe the face quickly in cold water to close the pores. Usually this is all that is necessary, but the application of an astringent such as extract of witch hazel or cologne diluted with water will have a beautifying value. A piece of ice, wrapped in a towel and applied to the face till it tingles, acts both as an astringent and a stimulant.

Senior High P. T. A. to Hold Meeting This Month

The regular business meeting of the Senior High P. T. A. will be held at the school Tuesday evening, January 10th promptly at 7:30. Owing to the quarantine, there was no meeting held in December, and the business was held over until this meeting.

It is desired that every parent who can attend this meeting, as ways and means for carrying on the year's work will be discussed and decided upon.

After the business session an interesting program will be given. The senior and sophomore classes will hold their interclass debate at this session.

The question to be debated is "Resolved, that the principals of the McNary-Haugen bill should be adopted by congress." The senior debaters will take the affirmative side of the question, and the sophomores will uphold the negative.

To those who have never heard one of these high school debates, this will be a real education, as few realize the amount of time and study these students spend in collecting their material, and the ability shown in handling their subjects.

It is desired that a full house be present to show that their efforts are appreciated.

The regular monthly P. T. A. subject, which for January is "Vocational Effectiveness," will be handled by Mayor Geo. E. Houck, and there will also be a music program given.

Two Receptions Head Gayeties At Washington During the Past Week

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Two White House receptions in a single week with many other lively events thrown in, is the record for President and Mrs. Coolidge during the first week of 1928, while others went sleepily from one engagement to another too tired to really appreciate any of them.

On Monday when the President and Mrs. Coolidge held the New Year's reception, Mrs. Coolidge wore one of the most attractive afternoon gowns of her wardrobe, the skirt with fullness in front being of stamped velvet with a band of black and silver running Balmoral fashion around the hem. The blouse which reached the hipline was brocade silver cloth shot with green. There were several touches of the vivid green showing at effective points. When Mrs. Coolidge attended a concert Tuesday she wore a modish gray velvet fur trimmed coat and a black hat. With her was Mr. Alanson B. Houghton, ambassador to London, who was a White House guest for some days. Because of the illness of her mother, Mrs. Coolidge is spending as little time out of the White House as possible.

The annual reception in honor of Chief Justice Taft of the supreme court and Mrs. Taft, and judiciary, held Thursday is no longer the dreaded ordeal it once was. Instead of the cut and dried formality of walking in and out of the White House the Chief Justice and
