EASTERN OREGON IS HIT BY FLOODS

PENDLETON, Jan. 13.—Creeks and streams through Umatilla county were out of their banks today and highways and roads were reported flooded in many sections, following two days and nights of warm weather, thawing the snow and ice, and unusually heavy rains last night.

The local office of the highway department was swamped with telephone calls this morning from all parts of the county asking for relief from water sweeping over the roads, or reporting small slides.

Locally, the flood hit on both the north and south sides this morning and streets leading from the hills were in many cases, running full of water from curb to curb. In the east end of the city water poured over the highway leading from town in such volume that highway officials ordered automobiles detoured over the railroad right-of-way. In the west end Tutulla creek was out of its banks this morning and was flowing over the state highway bridge on the Oregon-Washington highway leading to Pilot Rock and was approaching homes on the flat to the north. Torrential rains fell in the Blue Mountains last night and it was still raining hard at Meacham at 9 o'clock this morning, according to a telephone message received by the East Oregonian from the railroad operator at the mountain town.

The Old Oregon Trail is covered with water in six places between Pendleton and Mission, other reports indicated, but traffic was getting through.

Water pouring down the Milton grade near Milton yesterday struck a gopher hole and undermined a section of the pavement. Temporary repairs were made by highway crews in that district.

Wildhorse Creek was reported over the Oregon-Washington Highway in several places near Adams and water was reported running over a market road north of Adams.

The Umatilla River was a raging torrent here today and was mounting higher hourly.

Conditions on the Washington division of the O. W. R. & N. were reported better today, following high water along the Snake River at Starbuck. High water also caused trouble between Hooper and Lacrosse and train 78, Pendleton to Spokane, returned to Pendleton from Walla Walla. Number 78 left today for Spokane after making connections with number 24, from Portland, and it was expected to get through.

GOV. PATTERSON SCOLDED BY JUDGE

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 13.—Governor J. L. Patterson was taken to task today by Circuit Judge Walter Evans of Multnomah county for a statement the governor made yesterday which Judge Evans declared reflected upon the circuit judges, as well as upon municipal judges.

Governor Patterson said that heavy sentences were being imposed in cases for local effect and that as soon as the prisoner had served a portion of his term steps were taken by the same agencies which sent him to prison to secure his release.

Judge Evans made the statement before the district attorneys of the state, in convention here. He declared the governor's statement was a reflection on the judges, as well as district attorneys.

"There may be some cases in justice courts where that is done merely for show," the judge said, "but I can't take much stock in the governor's statement. It is far fetched."

The district attorneys this morning were addressed by Attorney General E. Van Winkle. This afternoon the prosecutors heard Charles Carpenter, dean of the University of Oregon law school. The sessions are expected to be concluded tomorrow.

DISTRICT ATTORNEYS SCORE SENTIMENTALISTS

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 13.—Sentimentalists and others who make it their business to cry upon the governor's shoulder and who bombard the parole board with letters and petitions seeking the release of prisoners would do the state more good by first conferring with district attorneys and others relative to the records of prisoners before endeavoring to secure their release. In the opinion of the district attorneys of the state in session here.

The matter of "too many paroles" was brought to the floor today by John L. Foote, district attorney from St. Helens, and ex-president of the association.

Influence brought about by persons who constantly are busy working for the release of prisoners was blamed for the many paroles given by the state parole board.

Some of the district attorneys said the parole board should be abolished, while others maintained that a working plan between district attorneys, judges and the parole board could be evolved which would remedy the situation.

In some instances, it was cited, judges, aware of the laxity in giving paroles, often impose much heavier sentences than ordinarily they would impose in order that the full term the prisoner deserved might be served, although given a parole.

Two men sent to the state prison from Eugene early in 1927 for auto theft, were again sentenced later the same year for a similar offense, having been paroled long before their sentences expired, it was revealed.

No action was taken on the matter today, the discussions merely being heard.

CHAMBERLIN AND COMPANION HAVE "A TALE OF WOE"

(Associated Press Leased Wire) ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Gasoline an doll leaks, trouble with flying instruments and sickness from bad food were reported in a note dropped to the ground today by Clarence D. Chamberlin, trans-Atlantic flier, who yesterday began an endurance flight with Roger Q. Williams.

The plane remains in the air until 24 minutes, and 25 seconds after two o'clock tomorrow afternoon, it will have brought back to the United States the endurance flight record which Chamberlin held with Bert Acosta until last August when Johann Ristler and Cornelius Edsard took it to Germany.

Chamberlin, however, said nothing about abandoning the flight, but asked about weather reports, indicating he planned to keep flying.

He requested A. R. Martine, backer of the flight, to ascertain if weather bureau officials advised a better flying weather. Martine learned that unsettled weather conditions were reported at the airport and this information was relayed by megaphone to the two fliers.

Martine said that for the present, the two fliers would remain over Long Island.

Referring to their plight as "our tale of woe," Chamberlin wrote that he and Williams had "a lot of fun last night when we had our first gas leak in the cockpit." He had discovered a "big leak in the left wing tank," at 3 a. m., he said. Whether the leak was repaired was not stated.

The coffee they had carried with them was the "most horrible I ever tasted," Chamberlin wrote and it had made both fliers sick. Most of their sandwiches had gotten soaked with ethyl gasoline, which is poisonous. They had plenty of water.
