TIMBER OWNERS DECLARE DESIRE FOR COURTHOUSE

expressed concerning the construction of the building, and the proposition is now meeting with general favor throughout the county.

Safe Depository for Valuable Titles Wanted by Concerns Paying Large Taxes.

The courthouse meeting to be held in this city Saturday is to be attended by an enormous crowd, according to present indications. The county court has received word that several of the large timber companies, owning much property, are sending representatives to speak in favor of the building. The Weyerhaeuser Timber company, which pays more than $20,000 annually in taxes in this county, is to have one of its representatives present. An officer of this company recently made the statement that if the present building should be destroyed by fire and the records burned the task of straightening out the titles would take ten years and would cost many times the amount necessary to erect a new building. The Roach Timber company will also have a representative present, while others are expected to make a showing.

IS AWARDED CONTRACT

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 19.—J. E. McCLASKEY, of The Dalles, has been awarded a contract by the state board of control for grading the site at The Dalles for the new state tuberculosis hospital. He agrees to complete the grading within 20 days for 50 cents a cubic yard. As soon as the work is finished architects will start work on the final plans and specifications, and with these as a basis the state will call for bids for the construction of the main building.

PAPAL PRIMACY IS SAID BAR TO CHURCH'S UNITY

Long-Awaited Report on "Malines Conversations" Is Published.

DIFFER WITH POPE

Anglican Delegates Wish Unity But Catholics Ask Right of Pope to Intervene.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Primacy of the pope was indicated to be the bar to unity of the Catholic and Anglican churches in the long-awaited report on the famous "Malines conversations" made public today. The report revealed action taken between 1921 and 1925 by Roman Catholic and Anglican delegates under the presidency of the late Cardinal Mercier.

The publication of the text follows closely upon the rejection by the House of Commons of the revised book of common prayer and the recent encyclical of the pope on church union. Objectors to prayer book changes said they were in direction of Rome, chiefly as concerning the sacrament. The pope said a union of Christians should only come by a return of the dissenting to the original church of Rome.

In regard to papal primacy one of the Anglican delegates said: "We wish for unity, and if the necessary preliminary conditions have been duly met, we should not shrink from the idea of a papacy acting as a center of unity, but in no way do we have in view not a papacy such as exists in theory and practice among Roman Catholics at the present time, but a conception of unity such as may emerge in the future."

Was it possible to interpret the spiritual authority of the pope in such a way that the jurisdiction of the English bishops should not be interfered with, he asked. He inquired if this could be secured side by side with recognition of the right claimed by the pope to intervene in matters concerning the general interests of the universal church.

In reply the Roman Catholic delegates said the right of the pope to intervene anywhere could not be surrendered, but there might be a question as to how far he need exercise it.

The answer of the Church of England to this was that the English were and always had been a practical people and it was important to know from a Catholic standpoint whether it was conceivable such a right might be maintained consistently with the freedom which Anglicans demand to control their own affairs.

Observation of the week might well be more than a mere form. Thrift is a fundamental to good citizenship, and good citizenship is one of the biggest things in state or nation. Thrift is independence, and independence economically means independence in thought and action by the citizen.

Undoubtedly some men are driven by destitution into crime. They take the fatal step as a last resort. If, by thrift, they could have seen fair saving ahead, some of them would have been orderly citizens.

FAMILY KILLED WHEN FATHER GIVES POISON

"Cough Medicine" Proves to Be Deadly—Mother and Sons Die.

FAILURE IS CAUSE

James Potter Slays Family Then Suicides Result of Collapse of Fortune—Was Indicted.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 19.—While police today sought to determine the contents of a bottle of "cough medicine" which last night caused the deaths of James Potter, 45, and the three members of his family here, word came from Steubenville, Ohio, his former home, that Potter was once a prominent capitalist there, before he lost a fortune in oil and coal developments.

An indictment returned against him last week, charging that he had obtained money under false pretenses in connection with a real estate and contracting business taken on as a side line to stave off a financial collapse, was the last record of his business dealings in Steubenville. The victims of the "medicine" in addition to Potter, were his wife, Lulu, 43, and their two sons, James, Jr., 16, and Robert, 14.

Roomers at the house were aroused late last night when Robert and his mother ran screaming from their apartment. Forty five minutes later the entire family was dead in a hospital.

"Daddy has given us some cough medicine, I can feel it coming down," Robert cried and collapsed. His mother fell beside him.

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY TYPICAL OF LIFE IN MODERN FAMILY

The cast of "The Goose Hangs High," junior class play to be presented at the high school Friday evening, have been working very strenuously this week, putting on finishing touches, and the actors feel that they are now ready to give a very lifelike presentation of the Lewis Beach play, Miss Alice Gould, dramatic coach, and Miss Crystal Jacobs, class advisor, are directing the production.

"The Goose Hangs High" is one of the most popular plays of recent years, and has been, with great success, produced by many colleges, high schools and stock companies within the past month. The play is a delightful, sparkling comedy of modern family life. It primarily deals with problems that so often beset American families, chief among which is a sudden slump in the family income. The genuine unselfishness shown by each member of the household in the emergency will win the admiration of the audience.

The characters in the play are very true to life. Mother and Dad are typical American parents who give up their own small wants in order that their children may get the best of life. Granny, a peppery old lady, puts spice into the play by her pessimistic view of everything, especially where the children are concerned. She is disgusted with her daughter and resent in-law for pampering the children and makes the stormy statement, "Wanting and getting means the same in this high."

Because of the unusually high royalty required on this play, the junior class will not give a matinee. The evening performance will start at 8:15. The auditorium seats 1200 persons, but everyone is urged to come early to insure the getting of a good seat.

SENATOR REED URGES SENATE TO OUST SMITH

Asks That Seat of Frank Smith of Illinois Be Made Vacant.

REVIEWS CHARGES

Declares That Samuel Insull of Chicago Paid Huge Sums to Insure Election of Smith.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Calling upon the senate to declare vacant the seat of Frank L. Smith of Illinois, Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, told that body today that there had been presented on behalf of the senator-elect "no argument based upon the justice and merits of his case."

The chairman of the special committee which unseated huge expenditures in Smith's primary campaign declared that no senator "has dared assert that his conduct in seeking the election is free from grave reproach."

Again he said that no senator had dared defend the payment of huge sums by Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities official, to the senator-elect's primary fund and no senator had dared to defend Smith's acceptance of those sums while serving as chairman of a commission having regulatory power over Insull's properties.

"No senator claims that the amount of money expended on behalf of Frank L. Smith was not so excessive as to be clearly unjustifiable," the Missourian continued. "No senator asserts that Frank L. Smith stands here with clean hands or denies that he arrived at the door of the senate over a crooked and dishonorable path."

Senator Reed charged that Smith's supporters had thrown up a smoke screen of legal technicalities, sophistries and refinements, and added: "A majority vote cannot sanctify a fraud. It cannot make black white. It cannot transform evil into good. It cannot change dishonesty into honesty."
