CONSTRUCTIVE COMPROMISE

Amicable settlement of the controversy between the City of Eugene and the Lane County Sportsmen's association over the projected new water power dam on the McKenzie river establishes a precedent for meeting similar situations as they may occur in other parts of the state, perhaps on the North Umpqua river at no distant date. The Lane county compromise was effected by alteration of construction plans so as to permit uninterrupted migration of game fish, with which the McKenzie river abounds. But for the vigorous protest of the sportsmen's association, the proposed dam, if built in conformity with the original plan, would have blocked the stream to the fish. The agreement reached by the opposing factions thus assures both an efficient power plant and an unmolested supply of game fish contiguous to the municipality. This is as it should be, not only in Lane county but elsewhere in the state. Down the Rogue river district sportsmen are contending with a threatened fish blockade of that magnificent stream by a power site filling. A compromise should eventuate there, just as it did in Lane county. Progressive communities need both improved hydro-electric service and game fish conservation, the former introducing new capital and promoting industrial growth, the latter perpetuating the naturally inherited right of unmolested angling and a potential asset of thousands of dollars annually from recreation-seeking tourists. New projects should not be discouraged, but those who plan them without thought of migrating game fish should be referred to the fate that befell the fish wheels on the Columbia river. In time the question of new power plant dams will involve the North Umpqua river, with its tremendous power potentialities as yet hardly touched. We want those power stations and we also want unmolested migration of the game fish with which the stream teems. If both sides—the capitalists and the sportsmen—will act reasonably, there will be no need of local strife or legislative warfare. Eugene has pointed out the sensible way. Let all others follow.

The meeting of the Northwest Advisory Board in this city which occurred this afternoon and continues throughout tomorrow is of paramount importance to this section of Oregon. It is the first gathering of the kind held in the smaller communities of the northwest and our people should take more than ordinary interest in the occasion. The main conference of the board will open tomorrow, Friday morning, at the armory. The meeting is open to all and the attendance should be large.

When asked to purchase stock in any proposed enterprise—no matter what its nature—watch your step. Don't be inveigled into parting with your money until you are positive the investment has real merit. About ninety per cent. of the offerings are worthless. You cannot afford to take a chance. If you desire to place your money consult your banker or a local broker whom you have explicit faith in giving you truthful advice.

Our fellow townsman, Hon. A. C. Marsters, has again been reappointed by Governor Patterson as a member of the state fair board. Mr. Marsters has served on the board for practically twelve years, evidence that his connection with this body, and the services rendered, are a worthwhile asset to the state.

PRUNE DICKIN'S

By BERT G. BATES—O

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

The banks are making their reports this week. Showing substantial deposits and a general fine condition in spite of the "N. F. S." checks. Ben returned to this dept.

We wouldn't mind the wife getting the idea of having us repair things around the house—that's a sign of Spring—but why does a wife hafta give a feller neck just 'cause he gets a little paint on his shirt sleeves?

Mister Rosenbaum, goodwill ambassador of the Espee, dropped in to the sanctum this p. m. from his home town of Medford. He was wearin' an overcoat, a rank insult to our climate.

The Elluks will hold a meetin' tonight and it is announced for the benefit of anxious wives, that no dancin' gals will appear.

As this column is short today we hope the sun comes out and makes our gollin' a pleasure.

Its short five weeks of life the baby's heart stopped beating in a struggle against pneumonia. Ten times it was revived, and it probably will live. The doctors did wonders.

There is just a line about the mother. Still weak, following the baby's birth, she gave her blood in transfusion to save her baby's life. Her name is Mrs. G. P. Olmstead, and what she did 10,000,000 other mothers would do gladly.

"Girl dies from alcoholism at drinking party." She was only 26. Surgeon said: "Alcohol poisoning." It is such a common thing under prohibition that you don't even ask the girl's name. Whiskey killed her suddenly. It is killing thousands of others more slowly. Something ought to be done about bootleg whiskey.

CASCADIAN GOES BACK TO PORTLAND FOR FRESH START

EUGENE, Ore., Mar. 8.—The Cascadian hopped off for Portland at 10 o'clock this morning. The plane, originally headed for San Francisco, was to return to Portland today to start a new run for the south.

EUGENE, Ore., Mar. 8.—Mixed over the hub caps of the landing gear in mud, the Cascadian, West Coast Air Transport passenger plane, remained here over night, at the municipal aviation field. The plane came down at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and it was not until after 5 o'clock that it was taken from the middle. The plane tried to take off for the south at 1:30 but had to be shovelled and hauled out of the mire.

Hauled near the hangars of the field, the plane rested on more solid ground, and was to take off this morning.

DIVORCE SEEKER CHANGES LURE IN REA L MARRIAGE

(Associated Press Local Wire)
PORTLAND, Ore., Mar. 8.—Charging that a mock marriage which was performed at Everett, Wash., for publicity purposes for a road show, turned out to be a hoax, Mrs. Marjorie Stinson brought suit here today for annulment.

She alleged that Elton G. Mendenhall, publicity man for the Lovett Brown-Hughes road show, to whom she was "married," proposed after the ceremony that they start their honeymoon, assuring her that she was legally his wife.

The ceremony, she set forth in her complaint, was performed with friends and bridesmaids before Rev. A. B. Hassell of the Congregational church, at Everett, July 2, 1927. She contended that she could not then give consent to a marriage because she was already married to another man. She added that since the Everett marriage she divorced her former husband.

HINCHCLIFFE DATES ATLANTIC FLIGHT NEXT MAY OR JUNE

(Associated Press Local Wire)
LONDON, Mar. 8.—Captain Walter Hinchcliffe, British aviator, announced today he is planning a flight from Europe to the United States in May or June, but will first attempt a non-stop flight from England to India as a preliminary test.

The captain thus cleared up the mystery surrounding his plans. He denied that he had any intention of starting for the United States today or that the Honorable Elsie Mackay, titled British heiress and herself an accomplished aviator, intended to accompany him.

The captain's statement was issued in reply to newspaper reports that he and Miss Mackay were going to take off for the United States today.

Miss Mackay denied reports that she had any intention of making a long distance flight with Captain Hinchcliffe.

To Wed Again

NEA Louisville Bureau
Here's one companionate marriage that has proven a success, according to the principals, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon R. Kinsey. Mrs. Kinsey, the former Anne Marie Viner, sister of an attaché of the French embassy in New York, says that the recent companionate ceremony soon will be followed by a "regular" ceremony. She is going to France and there will be joined by Kinsey, now a prominent attorney of Louisville, Ky.

SEATTLE OFFICER FATALLY WOUNDS FLEEING SUSPECT

(Associated Press Local Wire)

SEATTLE, Mar. 8.—Frank Miller, 33, of Portland, was shot and possibly fatally wounded by Patrolman A. F. Kuehl here today after he refused to alight from the car when the latter tried to arrest him as a suspicious character.

City hospital doctors said Miller had but a slight chance for recovery.

An investigation of the shooting will be made, Chief W. H. Searing said.

Patrolman Kuehl reported that he saw Miller creeping about the side of a building and approached him to question him. When Miller drew a revolver from his pocket and started to run. The officer commanded an automobile and gave chase. He said he fired one shot when Miller refused to stop.

Kuehl said he had arrested here two days ago from Portland and had been held up by a negro last night. He said he had gone to his room to get his revolver to try to get the money back, and wanted to avoid the policeman because he thought he would be jailed for carrying the weapon. He declared he drew the gun to throw it away.

COL. W. H. TAYLOR IS BURIED TODAY

The chapel of the Roseburg Undertaking company was crowded to capacity with friends of Col. W. H. Taylor, pioneer of Roseburg, who gathered to pay him last homage at the funeral services this morning at 10 o'clock.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. E. P. Runkles, vicar of St. George's Episcopal church. There were many beautiful floral offerings evidencing the respect in which the well known man was held in the community. Burial was in the I. O. O. F. cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of M. E. Ritter.

TIRES STEALING CASE IS HEARD BY CIRCUIT COURT

The circuit court today heard the case of the State of Oregon against Herman W. Dunkel, charged with larceny. Mr. Dunkel, according to the state, entered the private garage of J. H. Kruse of Yoncalla and stole two tires off Mr. Kruse's car. Mr. Kruse suspected that the theft had been committed by Dunkel and paid a boy to watch the later's car and to report when the tires were put on the Dunkel's car. Several weeks later the boy told Mr. Kruse that the tires were being used and a search warrant was procured. Mr. Kruse identified the tires to the satisfaction of Deputy Sheriff Daugherty by snag marks, the serial numbers having been removed. The marks of identification were pointed out before the jury.

Dunkel claims that he bought the tires from a wrecking house in Eugene and brought several witnesses who claimed Dunkel was playing cards with them at the time the theft was supposed to have been committed, and also brought in the testimony of the dealer in Eugene from whom he claims the tires were bought, the dealer saying that he got them off an old car which he took in for wrecking.

The arguments to the jury were completed late this afternoon.

NEW RECORD FOR SUSTAINED FLIGHT BEING ATTEMPTED

DETROIT, Mar. 8.—Edna Stinson, Detroit airplane manufacturer, and George Haldeman, trans-Atlantic flier, took off from the ice of Lake St. Clair at 5:29 a. m. eastern standard time, today in an attempt to break the world's record for sustained flight.

The fliers carried a load of 3,315 pounds in their Stinson-Dumont plane, including 820 gallons of gasoline and 20 gallons of oil. This Stinson said would keep them aloft for almost 60 hours. The present world's record, held by two German fliers, is 52 hours, 52 minutes and 21 seconds, and Stinson and his companions must remain in the air at least one hour longer in order to officially better the record.

MALHEUR RAILWAY GIVEN MONTH SUSPENSION PERMIT

(Associated Press Local Wire)
SALISBURY, Ore., Mar. 8.—The Public Service Commission today granted an application of the Malheur Railway company to suspend until June 30 its operation as a common carrier between Burns and Seneca.

The application is granted on condition that the company arrange to handle livestock shipments in lots of five or more cars.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY NAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The candleman rode round about, and then the Tinies heard him shout, "Well, all you Tinies here real good. I'm going to leave you now. I have to find a candle quick to put right in this candlestick. I'm going to ride around until I locate one somehow."

The candlestick then jerked a bit as if someone was pushing it. "It's going to fall," cried Clowny. "See, it isn't riding right." But then it seemed to straighten out, and with a very merry shout, the candleman was on his way, and soon sailed out of sight.

The baker in the tub then sighed. Said he, "I'm tiring of this ride. I'd like to float down to the ground and walk around a while. That will be easy. I expect, if you were Tinies don't object, it will not take us very long. It's only 'bout a mile."

"Oh, we would like it," Scouty said, "so, if you want to, go ahead." And then the baker broke right in. Said he, "Before you stop, I think I'll call my cow and skip. Before me is a long, long trip that I must take tonight so I can reach my butcher shop."

He then stood up and called, "Good! Good!" My, what a funny thing to do. The Tinies laughed quite heartily. Then Copy loudly cried, "Oh, look! There's something coming now. Perhaps it is the butcher's cow." The butcher then said, "Sure! That is the cow I'm going to ride."

The butcher hopped aboard it when it came up very close, and then it made the Tinies laugh to see the cow sail through the air. When it was far, far out of sight, the baker said, "I guess we might loads. On December 1 the company filed its common carrier rate schedule, but finds that business does not justify the operation at present.

An application of the state highway commission to eliminate a grade crossing on Second Street in Springfield by a relocation of the highway was denied by the commission today.

Mrs. Virgil Conn died this morning at her apartments in the Kohlhaugen building following a heart ailment. She was 69 years old and was a native of Cass county, Indiana.

Mrs. Conn was married in 1880 at Logansport, Indiana, and resided there prior to coming west. She made her home the greater part of her life in Roseburg and in Lake county, Oregon. Her husband came to this city in 1884 and engaged in business with Flood and company. Following his marriage he went to Lake county in 1882, engaging in business there. He disposed of his interests in 1922 and two years later he and Mrs. Conn again came to this city.

Mrs. Conn leaves besides her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Vera Stephenson of Alturas, California, and Mrs. Velma C. Thilston, of Lakeview, Oregon. The body has been removed to the Roseburg Undertaking company chapel and funeral arrangements will await word from relatives.
