NATIONAL LEAGUE RACE BE CLOSE ONE

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Wire)
NEW YORK, Mar. 23.—There will be no odds on favorite in the National league as the eight clubs start along the trail leading to a pennant at the end of September.

At least half of the entries are conceded chances to make it a race and as close an observer of things baseball as John McGraw has called the contest "open" for five bidders.

The defending champions, the Pittsburgh Pirates, may expect stern opposition from St. Louis, Chicago, Cincinnati and New York. On the face of the early spring returns, subject to confirmation in the autumn, the other three places will be divided between Brooklyn, Boston and Philadelphia.

Many forecasters who have made the pilgrimage to Avon Park to look over the Cardinals, expect Bill McKechnie's team to resume the fight with the bold Buccaneers where the same outfit, under Bob O'Farrell, left off last year.

The Pirates are conceded to be in better position to beat back the opposition in 1928 but rosters for the other clubs insist there is more strength in the assaulting forces. The Cardinals supporters have been in particularly good voice in Florida in March.

The addition of Earl Adams to do Pittsburgh's second basing and the resultant switch of George Grantham to first base has plugged the Pittsburgh weakness in the middle of the infield. Bureleigh Grimes' crafty arm may also be expected to help the Pittsburghers and last year's pitcher are back again, with the exception of Vic Aldridge, the Indiana schoolmaster, who may or may not help the Giants.

The Cards, too, have been strengthened, not by the addition of new players, but in improved physical condition of the stock on the shelves. O'Farrell promises to do the catching without the handicap of a balky thumb, Hafey's eyes have responded to treatment and two bad legs, divided between Thevenow and Blades, are believed to be whole again. Flint Rhem will be able to pitch at the season's opening. Alexander seems more than ever a living illustration of the brook which was said to have gone on forever. The passing of Lester Bell, who was far below his 1926 form last season, may leave the Cardinals a third base problem.

Skeptics are found who refuse to believe that the Giants, who finished third last season with Hornsby at second base, can do better with the hard hitter doing his hitting for another club. Frank Hogan to take care of the bulk of the catching, Andy Cohen as Hornsby's successor at second and Jim Welsh and Frank O'Doul added to the outfield complement, mark the major changes in McGraw's team.

The Chicago Cubs have added strongly to their offensive power by the acquisition of Hazen Cuyler, who will not be called on to hit second in the batting order, and in Gabby Hartnett they have a catcher who will run one-two in any balloting for the best in the league. The Cubs' worries if any, center about the infield. Maguire, McMillan, English and Butler may hold the club's ultimate fate in the hollow of their gloves.

Jack Hendricks, manager of Cincinnati, regards his team as a dark horse with red legs.

Hendricks pins his hopes as a contender on improved physical
