

Mel-O-Maid Imparts a Delicious Flavor

to your Vegetables
Meats
Cakes, etc.

An excellent way to test the quality of butter is by spreading it over hot foods. This brings out the flavor to a marked degree. Mel-O-Maid Butter imparts a delicious flavor to all foods because it is churned from rich cream that has been carefully selected and pasteurized. Try it on your hot cakes or vegetables or meats, etc. It will make them taste twice as good!

HANNULA DEFENSE ASKS FOR MISTRIAL ORDER

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

ASTORIA, April 20.—The defense in the trial of George Hannula, 22, charged with the murder of his girl wife, sprung a surprise today when C. W. Robinson, his attorney, asked for a mistrial on the grounds that one of the jurors had expressed prejudice.

In an affidavit presented to the court, Robinson declared that he had been informed that one of the jurors before being empaneled, had told Henry Sarpola, a druggist, that he had definite ideas regarding the case and hoped that he would be excused.

After the jury was completed late yesterday a few state witnesses were called. Arthur "Chuck" Wilson, expected to be a

Durant, Brains of Stock Market Coup, Dined by Men Who Became Millionaires

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

NEW YORK, April 20.—An elaborate dinner of men made millionaires by the stock market was disclosed by the New York Times today.

A group of the biggest operators in the present record activity of the market gathered last night at a private farewell dinner at the Biltmore for W. C. Durant, automobile manufacturer, who is sailing for Europe tomorrow.

Durant has been credited with an important part in the spectacular rise of a number of stocks, including General Motors, Anaconda Copper, International Nickel and U. S. Steel.

Every guest at the dinner, the Times said, was a millionaire, many by virtue of the market. Reporters were barred and every attempt made to keep the elaborate but informal affair secret.

While the dinner was in reality a farewell to Mr. Durant, said the Times, it more than that was a gathering of men who are leaders of broad speculative activity in the stock market and have all become close friends during the last year or so, all of them working in the stock market and many times in the same stocks.

This, the Times pointed out, marked a change from the past. Frequently in the past the biggest operators in the street have been at each other's throats, with ruinous results. In the present market they have all been on one side, the bullish side, and they have profited.

Among the guests named were Frederick and Lawrence Fisher of Detroit, Arthur W. Cutten of Chicago and his nephew, Ruloff Cutten, Duncan Holmes, George Breen and Joseph Higgins of New York, and Matthew G. Brush.

The seven Fisher brothers have been among the most active market traders, and have been credited with making huge profits in the stock of General Motors and Radio Corporation of America, in both of which they are large shareholders.

Arthur Cutten was formerly a big figure in the grain market. Turning to stocks, he joined the limited number of those whose trades, on big days, run into from one to three hundred thousand shares. He is credited with having been a factor in the rise of General Motors, Radio, Greene Cananea Copper, Montana Power, International Harvester and other issues which made new highs recently.

Holmes, Breen and Higgins are described as among the market's boldest operators, whose fortunes have doubled or tripled since the first of the year, but they are among those traders who prefer to shun publicity and work behind the scenes.

Brush is reputed to hold directorships in more corporations than any other man. He is a director in more than 50 corporations.

Awaiting Bremen's Arrival

Among the throng that gathered Friday at Mitchell Field to scan the skies for the first sight of the trans-Atlantic flyers in their monoplane Bremen were relatives of Capt. Hermann Koehl, chief pilot. In the top picture, left to right, are August J. Koehl, an uncle, and Miss Margaret Koehl and Alfred Koehl, two New York cousins. Below is the official welcoming committee: Lindsey Crawford (left), representative of the Irish Free State; Grover Whalen (center), acting for Mayor Walker; Gustav Heuser, acting German consul general of New York City.
