THE KINSHIP OF DARING

The radio is a wonderful invention, but after all it isn't really new. There has always been a sort of natural telepathy, by which men and women scattered all over the world could communicate and share their emotions in times of stress. A few days ago a German monoplane soared up into the air over Ireland, headed west and sped out over the Atlantic, carrying three brave men on a desperate, gallant attempt to fly to America.

READY FOR BARGE LINES

Kansas City is preparing to spend half a million dollars on a municipal dock and terminal facilities, in preparation for the establishment of a government barge line on the Missouri river. This venture doubtless will prove a good one, not only for Kansas City and neighboring cities, but even for the railroads—although some railroad men have been wondering if the barge line will not take away some of their business.

TWO CREWS ON THE S-4

The submarine S-4, which rested on the bottom of the sea off Providence, Mass., for three months, a temporary tomb for her entire crew, has been repaired and is once more afloat, ready to go back into service. One rather imagines that the members of the crew will have to be men of iron nerves. The submarine is, of course, as safe as any other now yet a man with too much imagination might easily get the creeps serving aboard it.

GOOD EVENING FOLKS

It's been a Heckuva time since we've called your attention to BAWTH NIGHT! And as we should now be engaged in Spring housecleaning! We suggest that you scour the tub and soak yerself awhile tonight—

Dwin' to the fact that the village is being dolled up for the numerous conventions to be held here this yr. we suggest that the Business and Prof. Wimmen's Club appoint a committee to tie ribbon bows on the wreckage of the Dysinger mill.

This bein' Saturday and a number of the rural gents bein' in town the candidates were dern busy along the main stem, slappin' friend and enemy alike on the back and at the same time givin' their opponents a kick in the seat of the trousers.

Johnny Thirone dropped into our sanctum this a. m. with a bokoy of roses which he picked white on the way to work this a. m. Up till presstime there has been no complaint rec'd from any folks livin' along the route he traveled.

Leftenant Slaton Miller, formerly a kid in this village, is back from Honolulu with a bride, which is better'n bringin' home a ukiele to his Paw. Slaton deploras the fact that the residential section of the village is extendin' to include some of the neighborin' hills as he is wonderin' wot the kids do on Saturday now.

Another feller has flown over the N. Pole in an airplane which is just another inspiration for the writers of gasoline advertisements.

They hung a couple feller's down to Salem yestiddy while a bunch of sheepish lookin' spectators stood by.

Most of the gals are lettin' their hair grow out as they are gittin' dern tired of washin' their neck and ears.

The Portland newspapers won't hafta publish a comic section tomorrow. All they'd hafta do is issue papers with a headline that says "The Beavers lose a double-header."

Trout fishin' is still the popular pastime, most of the fishermen bein' lucky to have wives that know how to open a can of sardines.

LAFE PERKINS SEZ—"I met a feller yestiddy who lets his wife shave him. Gosh but some men have nerve."

POSSESSION MASH RESULTS SENTENCE ONE YEAR IN PEN

T. P. Leatherwood, of Oakland, who was arrested recently charged with possession of mash was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge J. W. Hamilton today. Leatherwood was arrested when officers found a large quantity of mash near his home. He waived grand jury indictment and entered a plea of guilty to the charge brought on information filed by the district attorney. As this was Leatherwood's second offense he was given a penitentiary sentence. He served 60 days in jail following his arrest in March, 1927, on a similar charge.

J. A. CARAWAY TO HEAD LOCAL STORE MONTGOMERY WARD

May 19 has been tentatively fixed as the date for the opening of the new Montgomery Ward and Company store in Roseburg, according to C. M. Cogswell, field representative in charge of real estate and research work for the company, who was in Roseburg today making the preliminary arrangements for the opening.

J. A. Caraway, for many years connected with the J. C. Penney store in Roseburg, has been appointed manager for the local store, after having spent the past two months in various stores of the mail order firm in other cities studying the methods of Montgomery Ward & Co. Mr. Caraway is expected to arrive in Roseburg soon after May first and will personally direct the receiving and preparation of merchandise preparatory to the opening.

Fixtures for the new store are being built by the Grand Rapids Store Equipment Corporation in the new Portland plant and are of the latest design and planned to give the utmost display arrangement. Fred Laws, installation superintendent for Montgomery Ward & Co., will come to Roseburg as soon as the alterations are completed to install the fixtures.

All work of remodeling has been done by local labor under the personal supervision and direction of S. K. Sykes, owner of the building, whose aim has been to erect the best looking store in Roseburg. The planning and remodeling has been done according to plans furnished by a corps of expert store layout men retained by the company at Chicago who also planned the fixture layout according to the latest ideas in store arrangement.

Local help will be employed in the store which, by the way, is to be strictly a retail store carrying a well selected line of general merchandise selected from the mail order catalog and comprising principally tires and accessories, hardware, sporting goods, house furnishings, furniture, dry goods, shoes, men's and boys' clothing and women's ready-to-wear. In addition to the retail service offered, the store will act as an agency for mail order customers, handling orders, inquiries and adjustments with the firm's usual policy of satisfaction guaranteed, the policy upon which the firm has built its enormous business.

Announcements of the opening Mr. Cogswell says, will be mailed to the 33,415 customers of the mail order firm who reside in the territory surrounding Roseburg. These announcements take some twelve hundred pounds of printed matter. The stamps for the mailing will be purchased in Roseburg.

According to the experience of other cities in which Montgomery Ward stores are located, Roseburg is scheduled to have one of the greatest shopping days in its history on the day the new store opens. The attendance at Eugene, when the store opened there last November, was in excess of 15,000 and the experience at other stores located in Pendleton, Baker, LaGrange, view, Everett, Bellingham and Wenatchee was similar. Local merchants in those towns say they have been agreeably surprised at the impetus given business in all lines by the advent of these stores.

CREW TO START WORK ON NORTH UMPQUA ROAD

Three men with a team will leave Monday for Steamboat to start the work of clearing the North Umpqua road. There are a number of slides to be removed and some grading to be done. The crew will set the road in shape for working with a grader as soon as the weather will permit. Carl Neal, forest supervisor, states that

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON JESUS AND THE HOME

Text: Mark 10:1-16. And he arose from thence, and cometh into the coasts of Judea, by the farther side of Jordan; and the people resort unto him again; and, as he was wont, he taught them again. And the Pharisees came to him, and asked him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife? tempting him. And he answered and said unto them, What did Moses command you? And they said, Moses suffered to write a bill of divorce, and to put her away. And Jesus answered and said unto them, For the hardness of your heart he wrote you this precept: But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female. For this cause shall man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife:

And they twain shall be one flesh; so they they are no more twain, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder. And in the house his disciples asked him again of the same matter. And he saith unto them, Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her. And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery. And they brought young children to him, that he should touch them; and his disciples rebuked those that brought them. But when Jesus saw it, he was much displeased, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God. Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein. And he took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 22, Jesus and the Home. Mark 10:1-16. BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist

A lesson dealing with the Christian family, and the home ideal associated with the teaching of Jesus, brings us to the very heart of one of the most acute problems in American life today. One need only study the statistics of marriage and divorce in the various states to discover that this is true. The proportion varies from about one divorce in ten marriages in the states with the best record to two or three divorces in the states with the worst record. As happens in almost every similar social situation there are those who would seek the cure in encouraging what others would regard as at best a milder form of the disease. This would seem to be involved in the scheme of "companionate marriage" proposed by Judge Hipsey of Denver. Can the disease that affects the home and that has weakened the sanctity of the marriage relation be cured by concession to human weakness or by arrangements that have temporary ends in view?

Can a home, with all that the finest tradition has imparted to the world, be established and maintained where there is no deeper sense of obligation between individuals and in joint relation to society, than is involved in companionate marriage or in any scheme that lessens the sanctity or weakens the bond of marriage as it has attained its climax in Christian ideals? One does not need to take the view that mistakes are never made, and that, having been made, they should never be rectified, to believe that in general there is little hope of the establishment of a sound home life except upon with the assumption that there is something that makes a marriage sacred even when no sense of love or holiness is present in the minds and experiences of those who have assumed it as a legal obligation.

If we perceived more clearly the one sure spiritual foundation of true marriage and home life, we should address ourselves more vigorously toward building up right ideals and right practice rather than to mere superficial manipulation of laws either for radical or for conservative ends. Here, as in the whole range of his teaching, Jesus brings us back to elemental truth and the elemental laws that govern right living. There is no miraculous power that will make the homes of a nation great, or that will make married and family life beautiful, if those who are responsible for these homes neglect their duties and the privileges of love.

Of course one must recognize that many of the most serious evils in the home arise from present conditions, economic and social. It would be interesting to discover how many of the jars and disruptions of family life center around the question of money and of inadequate wages to support one's home and family with reasonable comfort. But even here the world is apt to forget that many of the happiest marriages and of the truest homes have been established and maintained under conditions approaching poverty.

One only needs to read the records of the divorce courts to see that in married life money is not a great promoter of happiness. The Children Perhaps we touch the deepest of all things in relation to the home in the attitude of Jesus toward the children. Where there is no love of children, no appreciation of the meaning and beauty of child life, such as is forever beautifully testified in the attitude of the Master, there cannot be the conditions for an ideal home.

NO CHANGE IN SERVICE HOUR AT EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Rev. Rannels of St. George's Episcopal church in this city today announced that there has been no change in the hour of the evening services at his church and they will start as usual at 7:30 o'clock. An item in last night's News-Review stated that all the churches of the city had changed the hour of starting the evening services to eight o'clock, but Rev. Rannels says the services at the Episcopal church start at 7:30 o'clock throughout the entire year.

THE TINYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The Tinymites were tickled pink, and very much relieved to think that they were absolutely safe from any sort of harm. The birds were kind as kind could be, soon Scotty sighed, and said, "Ah! Two of those that we worried. There is no cause for alarm. I feared the birds would peck us all, and chase us out, and make us fall. What saved us was the crackers that we fed them, I'll just bet. I guess that we will always find it pays to try and be real kind, for in return, it seems to me, it's kindness that you get." The small birds then began to squeak, "Oo, my, they want another meal," said Copsy. "I've some crackers left. Come help me feed them, please. To hold the crackers was a thrill. The birds would snap them with their bill. Wee! Chowyd jerk them back a bit. He was an awful tease. "Oh, watch the sun," somebody cried. "It's sinking over the mountain side. The nighttime's coming on, I guess. We'll sleep right in this nest." And shortly they could hardly see. "Twas just as dark as it could be. The birds and Tinkles cuddled up to get a good night's rest. When morning came the sun rose high to brighten up the peaky sky. The Tinymites woke and stretched a bit. Then Copsy said, "Oh, gee, I wish that we could have a ride out with the birds, to dip and glide. The air is so refreshing that 'twould quite appeal to me." The big birds seemed to understand. Within their bills they coiled a band of vine and stretched it out real straight, and Scotty yelled, "Hurrah! Upon this vine we all will fly! There's room enough for us to fly. And, as they took their places, both the big
