Garden Club members who have started their first small gardens this spring will find particular interest in the annual Rose and Flower show to be sponsored by the Roseburg Woman's Club next week as one of the features of the Strawberry Festival and undoubtedly will have occasion to enter some of their choice blooms in the exhibits. Even though the past fortnight has been crowded with social events both large and small there has been a little time for one to steal away for a few hours into the garden and take in with delight the beauties Dame Nature has set forth the past few weeks. The pleasant sunny days have made it a joy to work among the shrubs and new plants and Roseburg this year is doing itself proud with its many beautiful gardens.

The past several weeks have been busy with plans for the conventions this month and time has slipped by so rapidly that we find the actual days for entertaining the large groups of delegates and visitors are actually here.

The convention of the State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs here this weekend and the I. O. O. F. grand lodge the coming week, with the annual Strawberry Festival closely following on the heels of both go to make one of the busiest weeks of the year.

The convention of business women here is additionally interesting with the presence of Lena Madesin Phillips of New York City, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Groups, too, are renewing friendship with Mozelle Hair of Eugene, the state president, an important visitor in the city during the convention, and Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall is another interesting personality and one of the prominent speakers during the convention.

The Roseburg club has arranged for several entertainments for the large delegation of guests who are here this week-end.

Mrs. H. W. Booth Continues Series of Spring Affairs

Notably interesting and pleasurable among this week's social events was the large bridge afternoon on Wednesday at which Mrs. Harrie W. Booth entertained at her home in Laurelwood, continuing her series of parties this spring.

The rooms in which the hostess received and where five tables of bridge were arranged had a decorative note of iris, sweet rocket and various roses.

General Federation of Women's Clubs Will Have Ten-Day Meet in South

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 19.—(A. P.)—Results of cooperation among 3,000,000 women in promoting American home welfare will vie for interest with election of the new president of the General Federation of Women's clubs at the ten-day biennial convention beginning here May 28.

"The fine art of living; making the federation function in daily life," will be the theme of the convention, with each department of activity contributing to the program its achievement with this end in view.

After the formalities of opening the convention by Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the federation, most of the meeting time will be devoted to programs by the eight large departments—American citizenship, American home, education, fine arts, international relations, legislation, press and public welfare.

The election contest is centered about the two candidates for the presidency, Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Edward Franklin White, of Indianapolis.

Five former presidents of the federation, Mrs. Charles H. Denison, New York; Mrs. Philip North Moore, St. Louis; Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, Los Angeles; Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, Austin, Texas, and Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, Minneapolis, will give special greetings to the assembled women on the first day of the convention. An attendance of 4,000 women is expected.

Outstanding among the reports which will be made to the convention are those on the Better Homes campaign of the past two years, the reports of state presidents on how the club movement "has enriched daily living in my state," and that on the results of questionnaires sent out to determine the extent of feminine interest in politics, elections and the coming presidential campaign.

Speakers at the convention include Gutzon Borglum, sculptor; J. Frank Davis, author of "The Ladder," the play that has been running, now on a seats free basis, for the past eight months in New York; Louis R. Alderman, of the United States Bureau of Education; Sidney Kranz, of the United State Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Lillian Conway, of the National Forest Service; and Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company.

There will be a series of luncheons, teas and dinners during the ten days, and a special religious program will be given on Sunday, June 3.

Many Gorgeous Blooms to Be Seen This Year at Annual Show

Roseburg, which is noted for its gorgeous variety of flowers, will present one of the largest arrays of blooms to be seen in recent years when the annual Rose and Flower show is sponsored by the Roseburg Woman's Club as one of the features of the carnival here next week.

The club each year has been the sponsor of the exhibit and interest has steadily increased in the affair the past few seasons. The show will open Wednesday, continuing through the carnival days in the Bell building on Jackson street opposite the Antlers theatre.

Mrs. Foster Butner is chairman and various groups of the club women will take charge each day to show visitors the flowers, which are to be arranged according to their classes in the two rooms.

Woman's Club Has Full Business Session at Regular Meeting Tues.

A very busy business session was completed Tuesday afternoon for the Roseburg Woman's Club and because a great many matters of importance were disposed of it was necessary to cancel the social hour and program, which is customarily held each fortnightly meeting following the business hour.

The club formed plans to serve a light lunch each noon during I. O. O. F. grand lodge, which will be held in Roseburg May 21, 22, 23 and 24. These luncheons will be at the club house and are open to the general public.

The club is keeping open house at the club rooms on South Jackson street today in courtesy to the state convention of the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs which is being held here over the week-end. A committee has been placed in charge and is receiving visitors during the day.

Delegates to the state convention of Federated Women's Clubs were named. They are Mrs. H. D. Harris, Mrs. A. G. McMillin and Mrs. Victor Short, with Mrs. A. C. Marsters, Mrs. W. W. Ashcraft and Mrs. John E. Runyan as alternates.

The election of officers for the new year has been postponed and will not be held until Mrs. Wm. Bell, the president of the club, returns from southern California. During her absence Mrs. A. G. McMillin, the vice-president, has been in charge of the fortnightly meetings.

June 5 will mark one of the most interesting and largest events on the club's calendar, the organization holding its yearly out door picnic, which this season is to be at the spacious country home of Mrs. W. C. Winston at Winston.

The club has had a very active season and has listed a variety of red letter days, among them Federation Endowment Fund Day, the annual silver tea in observance of Scholarship Loan Fund Day, the Doernbecker hospital day. The club has 100 per cent in the Federated News. Another activity it lists is assistance to the Camp Fire Girls organization. The membership has increased greatly the past year, allowing for three delegates to the state convention, instead of two as in past years. There have been twenty-five new members admitted to the club in the past few months.

Patou Favors Velvets For Summer

Fur Trimming, Too, Will Find a Place in His New Designs for Wraps

By JEAN PATOU
(NEA Service)

PARIS, May 19.—Whereas velvets figure for a large part in any winter collection, until quite a short time ago they were wont to disappear when summer came. As far as summer evening wraps are concerned, however, I always was a partisan of velvet and always shall be.

Velvet, together with lame, are the only two mediums to use. From the point of view of richness of appearance, I consider them equal. Many women, as a matter of fact, find it difficult to choose between these two materials. Some prefer lame, because it is glittering, scintillating and perhaps looks more opulent. Others prefer velvet as softer, more becoming to both face and figure.

Likes Artificial Velvets

If, on principle, I think silk velvet is the only possible velvet to use for winter afternoon wear, I have to admit that such great strides have been made in the manufacture of artificial velvets as to reconcile me to its use.

Nowadays most of my evening wraps for the summer are of artificial velvet. It has reached such a point of suppleness and beauty of coloring that all the models created with it have been a source of great satisfaction to me.

Evening wraps follow the general lines and movement of daytime coats. They generally are irregular of hem, so as to allow a glimpse of the gown worn underneath. An irregular hemline is easier to achieve in velvet than in a stiffer fabric and this often is accentuated by a deep hem of fur, which contributes to the richness of the garment.

Color Harmony

I always make a special study of the furs which are destined to accompany these wraps and find that some are better suited than others. Chinchilla is better set off and in turn sets off a ruby red velvet to better advantage. Mink looks best on any shade of green; blue fox on a deep shade of red. Foxes dyed to match a wrap also look well, provided the shade chosen is not a loud one. For the latter, I prefer all the shades of rose beige and grey.

Just as years ago a woman never would have thought of wearing a felt hat with a summer dress, nor furs of any kind on a hot, sunny day, velvet was another thing which was reserved for winter uses exclusively.

In my collection of summer dresses which I am about to show there is one model which personifies my wish to see velvet recognized as a summer fabric for afternoon wear. Of course it is the lightest weight velvet obtainable. The model shown is an afternoon suit, the short jacket of which is in printed velvet. The suit is there to represent one of my latest ideas and I am sure it will be successful.

MOHAIR CAP AND LIMP STRAW BRIM PROVIDE A NEW NOTE IN THIS PARISIAN CHAPEAU

There's the exotic charm and the snappy tang of old Spain in this new Parisian chapeau that uses a skull-cap of black mohair lace for its base of action. The lace cap snuggles down over Milady's head, simulating curls all around her face and over her ears. The shiny straw is vastly flattering to dark eyes and red lips. And the laciness is softly feminine. Over this cap is fitted an irregular, medium-sized floppy brim of soft natural leghorn straw. The outer edge of the brim is wired so that the brim, small as it is, undulates as Milady moves—suggesting the rippling grace of lace hoop skirts seen above the red heels of Spanish dancers.

Straw and Felt

In hats for the south the new note is the combination of straw and felt. This large drooping leghorn has a red felt crown finished with a bow of the felt at the side.

Junior High P. T. A. Delightful Event in Honor of Class

Tuesday evening occasioned one of the most delightful affairs socially for the year at the Junior high school building, where the Junior high P. T. A. entertained the 65 members of the graduating class and their parents at an event which is annually anticipated with interest.

The affair also marked the last meeting for this year of the association and various matters of business were completed. The participation of the school in the carnival parade this year was discussed by the association, which desired the full cooperation of the pupils of the school in making the parade a successful venture. The annual election of officers was held and those who are to hold office for the next year are president, Dr. B. R. Shoemaker; vice-president, Mrs. T. H. Ness; secretary, Mrs. G. V. Wimberly; treasurer, Mrs. D. E. Oleman.

Immediately following the business session the members of the graduating class filed into the auditorium led by Mrs. Oleman and Miss Marie Gilkeson. The entire middle section was reserved for the class.

The program, which was in charge of Mrs. A. B. Reed and her committee, included a group of two vocal solos by Miss Hazel Goodwin, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. G. C. Finlay, a talk on health from a dental standpoint by Dr. G. C. Finlay, the farewell address to the class by J. E. McClintock and response by Ruth Gonier.

The music room downstairs was reserved for the social hour and was colorful with profusions of roses. Mrs. Louis Kohlhagen, president of the P. T. A., and the other officers of the organization were in charge of refreshments. Ices and cakes were served from the tables.
