

GLASSWARE

79c

Gives you choice of a beautiful line of Pink Glassware—see our window display.

Bud Vases in Same Quality

35c

Churchill Hardware Co.

THE WINCHESTER STORE

CLASSIFIED SECTION

ALL NEW ADS WILL BE FOUND ON BACK PAGE

FOR SALE

FOR SALE—Console Victrola with records, $25. Phone 5832.

FOR SALE—160 acres at Tenmile, $1099 cash. Irvin Meyer, Roseburg, Phone 487.

FOR SALE—21 Indian Runner ducks. W. Haley & Son, 11 miles east of town, opposite State Farm.

WATER SYSTEMS—Any size water pipe for home or irrigation project. Farm Bureau Exchange.

FOR SALE—Blue tick hound pups; also 40 head Angora goats. Clifton Agee, Dixonville.

BICYCLE CHEAP—A fine bicycle was left here to sell. Look it over. Farm Bureau Exchange.

WOOD FOR SALE—Old growth pine and fir; dry; $3.00 per tier. Leave orders at Home Restaurant.

PIPE, PIPE, PIPE—All types of water pipe for home or irrigation purposes. Farm Bureau Exchange.

GAS ENGINES—All sizes new and second hand. New 2 h. p. magneto equipped gas engine, $95. Farm Bureau Exchange.

CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY—Interest in good paying restaurant for sale cheap, if taken soon. In new, growing coast town. Address "C. T.," care News-Review.

FOR SALE—Porcelain top kitchen cabinet, $18. Colonial Jr. range, $35. Bed spring and mattress; few chairs; kitchen table and small articles. All like new. H. Johnson, Edenbower Orchard Tracts.

ONE hundred choice Shropshire ewes. These are not registered, but a choice lot; $13.50 per head. E. Nissen, 1045 N. Church St., Salem.

FOR SALE CHEAP—Player piano; sewing machine. Owner leaving town and doesn't want to move them. Address Box 52, care News-Review.

LIGHT PLANTS—Let us furnish you with a Fairbanks Morse light plant. Economical in operation. Low first cost. Farm Bureau Exchange.

NEON SIGNS

Sold Outright
Roy Hufham
Roseburg, Oregon

WANTED

Rentals, Sales or Exchanges, City Property, Residences and Farms. What have you?
E. G. KINGWELL
Real Estate Broker
Sutherlin, Oregon

Roseburg Cabinet Shop

230 W. Oak
FURNITURE REPAIRING
Upson Board and Veneer Panel
Cut to Order
Window Screens made to order
E. S. AND F. L. COCKELREAS

Service All Housewives Like

There is no delay with the dinner you have planned at a certain hour, because when we tell you that your

Groceries

will be delivered at a certain time, they will be there—and no extra charge.

Economy Grocery
O. L. JOHNSON
"The Store That Serves You Best."
Phone 63 344 N. Jackson St.

FOR SALE—6 good ewes and Hampshire buck, $75, or will trade for good young mare, about 1400 lbs. C. L. Weber, Rt. 1. Phone 42F13.

WANTED

WANTED—5 or 6-room modern unfurnished house. Call 44F4.

WANTED—Work by married man. Address Box 96, News-Review.

WANTED—To trade lumber for milch cow. D. G. Estell, Milo, Ore.

WANTED—We will buy hides, wool, pelts, chitum bark and all kinds of junk. Alaska Hide, Wool & Junk Co., 404 W. Cass St. Phone 201.

FOR RENT

FOR RENT—Modern flat, close in. Inquire Kidd's Shoe Store.

FOR RENT—2-room furnished house, $6 per mo. James Barr, Miller's Addition.

FOR RENT—5-room modern house, 334 N. Rose St. Inquire at 348 N. Rose.

FOR RENT—Pasture land for cows, small cattle. Mrs. P. Sinnott, Phone 996-J.

FOR RENT—Five-room furnished apartment, 411 E. Douglas. Inquire at Roseburg Cafeteria.

FOR RENT—One 5-room house, close to senior high and business district, $10 per month. House in Umpqua Park—Rent free to responsible party. Wilbur L. Spuagh, 601 S. Pine.

FOR RENT—320-acre ranch 5 miles west of Sutherlin, 3 miles E. Umpqua. Part clear; house, garage, barn and chicken house; 2 springs. $250 per year in advance. Address Wm. Eisen, care News-Review.

MISCELLANEOUS

CAR OWNER—Don't forget to call 553 when in need of auto parts. Sarff's Auto Wrecking House.

NEW HOUSE and lot 50x120, all cheap; to trade for Roseburg property, 2 blocks from school and 5 blocks from roundhouse. A. Switzer, Rt. 1, Box 105, Klamath Falls.

LOST

LOST—Fountain pen, engraved R. H. Weeks. Finder please leave at News-Review. Reward.

LOST—Wolf grey female police dog. Ans. to "Renée." Return to D. Coon, Dillard, Reward.

Chiropractor

DRUGLESS HEALTH CENTER
"Complete Health Service"
Mineral Vapor Baths
327 Cass Phone 491

Fire Hazards

are increased during this time of the year.
Carry Fire Insurance

In an adequate amount to protect yourself in case of fire. Check up on your policies and see that you are protected. Our office is at your service in all matters pertaining to fire and auto insurance. Prompt and reliable service.

G. W. Young & Son

INSURANCE
116 Cass St. Phone 417

GOOD LAUNDRY WORK MAKES HOME LIFE BRIGHT AND YOU'LL AGREE THAT WE ARE RIGHT.

Superior laundry brightens up the home life as well as your personal appearance. Let us undertake to show you what laundry quality and service really means. Phone us.
Roseburg Steam Laundry
Phone 79 Roseburg, Ore

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 by NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Bertie Lou Ward, on the eve of her wedding to Rod Broyer feels a premonition of trouble at receiving a dagger-like paper knife from Lila Marsh, an ex-sweetheart of Rod's. She courageously resolves not to be jealous, but she receives another blow to her pride when she accidentally overhears one bridesmaid ask a girl if she thought the bride liked being a second choice.

The pain in her heart vanishes when Rod whispers "My wife with a world of adoration in his eyes. They spend an ideal honeymoon and Bertie Lou forgets about Lila until they return and find her playing dictator in their apartment because she "knows what Rod likes."

The newlyweds settle down in their little place but too much hospitality upsets their financial budget. This worries Bertie Lou as she does the persistent annoyance of Lila. So she is happy when Rod accepts a position in New York which has been offered by Tom Fraser.

They were anxious to make a good impression, so live in an expensive hotel until they can find an apartment. Finally they locate three rooms but cannot get their furniture shipped from Wayville. So expenses continue to mount and Molly Fraser urges Bertie Lou to buy "smat clothes" and exerts so lavishly that they feel under obligation to take them out to nice places in return. Rod worries Bertie Lou by playing poker with Tom.

They were anxious to make a good impression, so live in an expensive hotel until they can find an apartment. Finally they locate three rooms but cannot get their furniture shipped from Wayville. So expenses continue to mount and Molly Fraser urges Bertie Lou to buy "smat clothes" and exerts so lavishly that they feel under obligation to take them out to nice places in return. Rod worries Bertie Lou by playing poker with Tom.

Now she was beginning to wonder, with Molly becoming difficult, if she could hide her opinion of her much longer. It irked her to be compelled to associate with a woman with whom she had nothing in common. An infrequent hour or two in Wayville had not mattered, as she said to Rod. But feeling that she must continue to see Molly just because Rod worked for her husband wasn't the sort of thing she expected of life. It was a compromise—something Bertie Lou hated in spite of the fact that she could on occasion, force herself to it.

And so, knowing that Molly was sharpening the axe for her, Bertie Lou guessed the reason why she suggested Thursday as the night to accept Rod's invitation to a supper club.

Lila would be in New York then!

And Rod, the big goof, would be host to her. Bertie Lou could have killed somebody that minute. Molly was getting even now for the many times Bertie Lou's wif had left her tripping lamely along, vaguely aware that Bertie Lou was laughing at her.

Molly saw the storm clouds on Bertie Lou's countenance. She knew that she had her on the toasting fork. Of course she didn't realize that Bertie Lou had read her mind like a full page ad or that she hadn't any more ammunition to fire. She decided to shove Bertie Lou a little closer to the fire.

But the thing that annoyed her most, and changed her feeling toward Bertie Lou from a negative to an active dislike, was Bertie Lou's complete refusal to recognize her importance as the wife of Rod's employer.

Molly was so fond of parade she was willing to sacrifice her desire to drop Bertie Lou in order to satisfy her ego. She loved to feel that Bertie Lou must look up to her, whether she showed it or not. She'd have been happy if she could have made Bertie Lou tremble.

Bertie Lou didn't see any cause for being grateful to Molly on Rod's account. If gratitude was due it belonged to Tom, she felt. She could see that Molly expected gratitude and attention, but she never guessed that her failure to give them was Molly's chief reason for disliking her. At times she thought it might be because Molly had such a strong affection for Lila that she didn't care for the girl Rod had married.

Bertie Lou never would have made a friend of Molly had the choice been left to her. But she found it not impossible to submerge her criticism of Tom's wife in her old friendship for him. Tom had been the big boy that seven-year-old Bertie star-gazed at in school.

Now she was beginning to wonder, with Molly becoming difficult, if she could hide her opinion of her much longer. It irked her to be compelled to associate with a woman with whom she had nothing in common. An infrequent hour or two in Wayville had not mattered, as she said to Rod. But feeling that she must continue to see Molly just because Rod worked for her husband wasn't the sort of thing she expected of life. It was a compromise—something Bertie Lou hated in spite of the fact that she could on occasion, force herself to it.

And so, knowing that Molly was sharpening the axe for her, Bertie Lou guessed the reason why she suggested Thursday as the night to accept Rod's invitation to a supper club.

Lila would be in New York then!

And Rod, the big goof, would be host to her. Bertie Lou could have killed somebody that minute. Molly was getting even now for the many times Bertie Lou's wif had left her tripping lamely along, vaguely aware that Bertie Lou was laughing at her.

Molly saw the storm clouds on Bertie Lou's countenance. She knew that she had her on the toasting fork. Of course she didn't realize that Bertie Lou had read her mind like a full page ad or that she hadn't any more ammunition to fire. She decided to shove Bertie Lou a little closer to the fire.

But the thing that annoyed her most, and changed her feeling toward Bertie Lou from a negative to an active dislike, was Bertie Lou's complete refusal to recognize her importance as the wife of Rod's employer.

Molly was so fond of parade she was willing to sacrifice her desire to drop Bertie Lou in order to satisfy her ego. She loved to feel that Bertie Lou must look up to her, whether she showed it or not. She'd have been happy if she could have made Bertie Lou tremble.

Bertie Lou didn't see any cause for being grateful to Molly on Rod's account. If gratitude was due it belonged to Tom, she felt. She could see that Molly expected gratitude and attention, but she never guessed that her failure to give them was Molly's chief reason for disliking her. At times she thought it might be because Molly had such a strong affection for Lila that she didn't care for the girl Rod had married.

Bertie Lou never would have made a friend of Molly had the choice been left to her. But she found it not impossible to submerge her criticism of Tom's wife in her old friendship for him. Tom had been the big boy that seven-year-old Bertie star-gazed at in school.

Now she was beginning to wonder, with Molly becoming difficult, if she could hide her opinion of her much longer. It irked her to be compelled to associate with a woman with whom she had nothing in common. An infrequent hour or two in Wayville had not mattered, as she said to Rod. But feeling that she must continue to see Molly just because Rod worked for her husband wasn't the sort of thing she expected of life. It was a compromise—something Bertie Lou hated in spite of the fact that she could on occasion, force herself to it.

And so, knowing that Molly was sharpening the axe for her, Bertie Lou guessed the reason why she suggested Thursday as the night to accept Rod's invitation to a supper club.

Lila would be in New York then!

And Rod, the big goof, would be host to her. Bertie Lou could have killed somebody that minute. Molly was getting even now for the many times Bertie Lou's wif had left her tripping lamely along, vaguely aware that Bertie Lou was laughing at her.

Molly saw the storm clouds on Bertie Lou's countenance. She knew that she had her on the toasting fork. Of course she didn't realize that Bertie Lou had read her mind like a full page ad or that she hadn't any more ammunition to fire. She decided to shove Bertie Lou a little closer to the fire.

But the thing that annoyed her most, and changed her feeling toward Bertie Lou from a negative to an active dislike, was Bertie Lou's complete refusal to recognize her importance as the wife of Rod's employer.

Molly was so fond of parade she was willing to sacrifice her desire to drop Bertie Lou in order to satisfy her ego. She loved to feel that Bertie Lou must look up to her, whether she showed it or not. She'd have been happy if she could have made Bertie Lou tremble.

Bertie Lou didn't see any cause for being grateful to Molly on Rod's account. If gratitude was due it belonged to Tom, she felt. She could see that Molly expected gratitude and attention, but she never guessed that her failure to give them was Molly's chief reason for disliking her. At times she thought it might be because Molly had such a strong affection for Lila that she didn't care for the girl Rod had married.

Bertie Lou never would have made a friend of Molly had the choice been left to her. But she found it not impossible to submerge her criticism of Tom's wife in her old friendship for him. Tom had been the big boy that seven-year-old Bertie star-gazed at in school.

Now she was beginning to wonder, with Molly becoming difficult, if she could hide her opinion of her much longer. It irked her to be compelled to associate with a woman with whom she had nothing in common. An infrequent hour or two in Wayville had not mattered, as she said to Rod. But feeling that she must continue to see Molly just because Rod worked for her husband wasn't the sort of thing she expected of life. It was a compromise—something Bertie Lou hated in spite of the fact that she could on occasion, force herself to it.

And so, knowing that Molly was sharpening the axe for her, Bertie Lou guessed the reason why she suggested Thursday as the night to accept Rod's invitation to a supper club.

Lila would be in New York then!

And Rod, the big goof, would be host to her. Bertie Lou could have killed somebody that minute. Molly was getting even now for the many times Bertie Lou's wif had left her tripping lamely along, vaguely aware that Bertie Lou was laughing at her.

Molly saw the storm clouds on Bertie Lou's countenance. She knew that she had her on the toasting fork. Of course she didn't realize that Bertie Lou had read her mind like a full page ad or that she hadn't any more ammunition to fire. She decided to shove Bertie Lou a little closer to the fire.

But the thing that annoyed her most, and changed her feeling toward Bertie Lou from a negative to an active dislike, was Bertie Lou's complete refusal to recognize her importance as the wife of Rod's employer.

Molly was so fond of parade she was willing to sacrifice her desire to drop Bertie Lou in order to satisfy her ego. She loved to feel that Bertie Lou must look up to her, whether she showed it or not. She'd have been happy if she could have made Bertie Lou tremble.

Bertie Lou didn't see any cause for being grateful to Molly on Rod's account. If gratitude was due it belonged to Tom, she felt. She could see that Molly expected gratitude and attention, but she never guessed that her failure to give them was Molly's chief reason for disliking her. At times she thought it might be because Molly had such a strong affection for Lila that she didn't care for the girl Rod had married.

Bertie Lou never would have made a friend of Molly had the choice been left to her. But she found it not impossible to submerge her criticism of Tom's wife in her old friendship for him. Tom had been the big boy that seven-year-old Bertie star-gazed at in school.

Now she was beginning to wonder, with Molly becoming difficult, if she could hide her opinion of her much longer. It irked her to be compelled to associate with a woman with whom she had nothing in common. An infrequent hour or two in Wayville had not mattered, as she said to Rod. But feeling that she must continue to see Molly just because Rod worked for her husband wasn't the sort of thing she expected of life. It was a compromise—something Bertie Lou hated in spite of the fact that she could on occasion, force herself to it.

And so, knowing that Molly was sharpening the axe for her, Bertie Lou guessed the reason why she suggested Thursday as the night to accept Rod's invitation to a supper club.

SPECIALS!

Tractor Disc Harrow
$75.00

2 H. Gas Engine
$45.00

See Us First—We Can Save You Money.

Farm Bureau Cooperative Exchange

ROSEBURG AGENTS FOR OAKLAND

Bean Spray Pump Co. Fairbanks Morse & Co.
John Deere Plow Co. Sherwin-Williams Co.
L. N. Miller Dehydrator Co.

REPORTS OF LOSS IN BARN FIRE NOT TRUE CREASON SAYS

Al Creason, whose large barn near his home in North Roseburg was recently destroyed by fire, is tearing down the ruins and cleaning up the remains of the structure. He states that reports concerning the contents of the barn were grossly exaggerated. It was reported that he had a large amount of furniture stored in the building, but this, he says, was not true. The furniture consisted of a few odds and ends of a value of less than $50, he reports, he also had some ranch tools, a wagon, a small amount of ammunition, and his own carpenter tools in the barn, he reports. There was no hay upstairs, the loft having recently been swept clean. Mr. Creason said that it had been reported that he had numerous articles that had been held for security in the barn, but that this report was not true, as there was nothing of any value in the structure and all articles there had been in his possession for a long time. He had been using a portion of the barn for garage purposes and is now constructing a new garage upon another location on the property.

Carlson Expected to Recover from Slugging Injuries

Nelson Carlson, Glendale mill worker who was slugged and seriously injured last week by some unknown assailant, is recovering quite rapidly at Mercy hospital, and is now practically out of danger, unless unforeseen complications arise, according to his physician, Dr. Shoemaker. Carlson suffered a fractured skull and deep scalp wounds when he was beaten over the head with a section of automobile spring. No trace has ever been found of his assailant. The injuries resulted in paralysis of the right arm, but this paralysis is now slowly disappearing and it is believed that he will fully recover.

Eat barbecue sandwiches and live forever. Brand's Road Stand.

COPCO CLASSES NEXT WEEK

Through the courtesy of the California Oregon Power company a special series of cooking classes will be given here next week, starting Monday, July 23rd, and continuing over Wednesday, July 25th. These classes which will present the latest up-to-date ideas in modern cooking methods, will be conducted by Miss Dorothy E. Williams of Portland, well-known home economics demonstrator. Miss Williams has earned an enviable reputation through her ability in this line and will no doubt have many interesting ideas to impart to the ladies of Roseburg and vicinity. The classes will be held in the Copco electric store on North Jackson street where ample accommodations will be available to take care of the large crowds that are expected.

A special prize offer will be made in connection with range sales during the demonstration, details of which will be published at an early date.

We are now showing all models of the new Essex cars. Largest selling 6-cylinder car in the world. Roy Catching Motor Co.

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

Ouch!

By Martin

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

He Hasn't the Heart

By Blosser

SALESMAN SAM

Alas! Poor Guzz!

By Small

