

WISCONSIN NOT FOR SMITH, SAYS SENATOR LENROOT

(Associated Press Local Wire)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—After a call upon President Coolidge during which Wisconsin politics were discussed, former Senator Lenroot said today that the reaction in his state to Governor Smith's speech in Milwaukee on prohibition had been unfavorable and that the state would go republican in November.

"Wisconsin is wet, but not as wet as Smith thought," Lenroot said.

The former Wisconsin senator also said that Governor Smith's attitude on the subject of law enforcement was ambiguous, unsatisfactory and obviously straddled the issue.

"He would have done far better never to have mentioned the matter," he declared.

WISCONSIN NOMINEES QUIT.
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 8.—M. K. Kelly of Fond Du Lac today announced his withdrawal as democratic nominee for United States senator.

Unless the democrats choose a candidate to succeed Mr. Kelly, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, the republican nominee, will be the only candidate of a major party in the field.

Senator William H. Markham, of Horicon, has entered the contest against LaFollette as an independent candidate. The socialist party also has a candidate in the field.

OFFICERS KEEP GUARD ON WITNESS IN NORTHCOAST CASE

(Associated Press Local Wire)
VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 8.—Jessie Clark, star witness in the Northcoast case, was rushed across the border late Saturday night by R. J. Quinn, and A. L. Kelly, sheriff's officers from Riverside, Cal., who feared that she might be subpoenaed by the defense in extradition proceedings, it was learned here today. She left Vancouver by automobile, catching a train in the United States for Riverside, where she will reside with Mr. and Mrs. George Martin.

The prosecution feared that if Miss Clark were subpoenaed in extradition proceedings, much of the case against Northcoast could have been discovered through cross-examination.

During the last few days Miss Clark made a 20-page affidavit of her evidence. The contents of this have not yet been divulged but it is understood that this is much the same as the evidence already given.

FINE OF $15.00 IS IMPOSED ON CHARGE ASSAULT, BATTERY

A fine of $15 was imposed this morning on George Niday, after he had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of assault and battery. The charge was brought by O. E. Rowe, who was quite badly beaten in the fracas.

Both men were employed in the local cannery, where, according to the statement given City Recorder Sherry, Niday resented a remark which he claims Rowe made concerning one of the lady employees. A fight ensued in which Rowe, who is considerably older than Niday, was badly beaten. The injured man was taken to the office of Dr. Houck, where seven stitches were required to close a bad gash on his cheek.

Niday entered a plea of guilty in the city court and paid the fine imposed upon him.

SIDE LIGHTS ON WORLD'S SERIES

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 8.—Any world's series the New York Yankees and their head man, Babe Ruth, participate in is bound to be a record-breaker. The current affair is no exception, with at least a dozen records shattered so far and a half dozen more in prospect, not the least of which would eventually be another four-straight triumph for the disabled soldiers of Gotham.

Babe Ruth, who has been in more world's series than any other ball player, sets a record every time he scores a run, hits a homer or any other variety of extra base hit, bats in a run, receives a pass or strike out.

The bambino and his hitting partner, Lou Gehrig, also have designs on the high individual batting mark for one series. For three games their marks were .536 and .555, respectively, with Ruth especially having a good chance to displace the record of .545 made by Sergeant Hank Gowdy while catching for the Braves in their gallop over the Athletics in 1914.

A record players' pool of well in excess of $400,000, a mark never before reached, seems assured. The "pot" for the world's series performers, as well as for the second, third and fourth clubs in each league, was up to $132,399.52 for the first three games. Since 1911, $11.50 was added to the pool every day it would take only a majority of this amount today to beat the record of $399,440.67, made last year.

Frankie Frisch and Ruth started this series tied for the record of hitting 300 or better in four championship games and they may still be tied, even though the Babe has outscored the Cardinal second sacker at the bat so far. Frankie leads the inconspicuous Cardinal attack with a mark of .333.

Tom Zachary, who has won three world series games and never lost one, is a modest chap. Before the series opened, the left-hander was approached by a friend at the Yankee stadium.

"How are you, Zach?"
"As good as I ever was, not that that's saying much."

It was saying a good deal in the third game if the testimony of Cardinal batsmen may be accepted as authoritative.

Miller Huggins continued to call on his defensive strategy, sending Leo Durocher to second base in place of Tony Lazzeri when the Yankees forged ahead in the third game. It worked, for after Hafey and Holm singled in succession in the eighth, Durocher took Koenig's tons on Wilson's roller and completed a lightning double play. Lazzeri's ailing shoulder has slowed him up to a walk on double plays.

FIGHT AT UMPQUA AUTO CAMP RESULTS IN INJURIES TO ONE

The Umpqua auto camp, a few miles east of Canyonville, was the scene of a free-for-all fight Sunday afternoon when a party of high school football rooters from a southern Oregon city, stopped their truck at the store of the camp and proceeded to fill their pockets with gum and candy. The proprietor attempted to put a stop to the marauders and in shoving them from the building one of the boys struck him and the fight started. The manager of the camp was badly battered and a phone call to Canyonville brought Deputy Hopkins in "double-quick" time. He placed the boys under arrest, took them to Canyonville, where they appeared before Justice of the Peace Gross and paid a fine of $25. The boys maintained that the camp ground proprietor was hit by his own brother, who they claim was wielding an auto crank.

U. S. SUPREME COURT DENIES STATE APPEAL

ed that this was an injustice as other lands had to bear the extra tax burden. The government, two years ago, agreed to advance to the counties each year an amount equivalent to the taxes that the lands would ordinarily pay. They also paid an amount equal to the back taxes. The government is to get its money back as the lands are sold.

State Claimed Share.
The bill provided that the money paid to the counties should be distributed to the several taxing districts, such as road, school and port districts, in the amounts of the proportion that the U. S. C. lands should pay as compared with other lands, or in other words, in the same amount as would have been paid had the grant lands been taxed. The state held on this provision, that it was entitled to a share equivalent to the state tax paid by each county. The counties, however, claimed that the state each year levied its amount of tax, regardless of the amount collected by the counties, and therefore had no just claim.

The state, to test out its rights, bought out against Marion county for the amount claimed there. All of the land grant counties formed an association and appointed Attorney Guy Cordon of this county as the association's legal representative. Mr. Cordon having been one of the members of the delegation that appeared before congress and being thoroughly familiar with the details of the case.

The state claimed about $1,500,000 as its total share from all of the counties. In Douglas county this amount would be about $315,000. Douglas county received approximately a million and a half dollars from the government, and after apportioning the various amounts to the several districts and setting aside $200,000 for a court house fund, had approximately $300,000 remaining, which included the amount claimed by the state.

Court Denies Claim.
The circuit court of Marion county decided against the state in the first round, and an appeal was immediately taken to the Oregon state supreme court. This court, after hearing the case once, asked for a reargument, and the issues were again presented in a more detailed form. This resulted in a second victory for the counties. The state then presented an application for appeal to the U. S. supreme court, and today's decision is believed to be the state's last recourse.

Can Retire Bonds

The decision, which enables Douglas county to retain the $315,000 involved in this action, is a most important one, and it enables the county to provide a completed sinking fund for taking care of all of its road bonds, and retire its outstanding bond indebtedness as fast as the bonds can be secured.

The county, after paying the amounts due all of the districts, and setting aside the courthouse fund, transferred $802,494.52, in which was included the amount claimed by the state. A program was worked out whereby this amount, together with the sums to be paid yearly by the government, would retire the county's bonded indebtedness as it became due. Since that time the county court has transferred the monies received each year, adding $211,395.55 to the original transfer, so that with interest received the total amount now in the bond redemption fund is $1,021,990.

The county's outstanding bond indebtedness is $264,000, which included $184,000 of the 1917 issue of a half million dollars and $74,000 of the 1921 issue, of one million, one hundred thousand dollars. While the bond redemption fund is now considerably larger than the outstanding bond indebtedness, it does not mean that the county can quit transferring money to this fund, as the bonds draw interest at the rate of about $67,000 each year, while only a very small rate of interest is received from the monies which the county has set aside, as the court is prohibited from investing in interest bearing securities and can only secure interest on daily balances. The county has tried to buy back its own bonds and is offering a substantial improvement, but has so far been able to secure only a small amount of these bonds. Money, however, is now available to retire the bonds as they become due, and the yearly payments will keep up the interest.

Money Coming Annually.
The government each year is advancing to the county an amount equal to the taxes that the land should pay. The first year this amount would be $192,000. The money received, however, being applied to the bond redemption fund, permitted the county to eliminate a levy for the payment of bonds, thereby reducing taxes approximately 75 per cent so far as that related to the general county fund, so that the money received this year was $161,000, which will be about the amount to be received annually in the future.

While the county will have to retain sufficient funds from each annual installment to meet the interest payments on outstanding bonds, unless some plan can be devised for making the interest on the sinking fund equal to the interest on bonds, there will be released, after this year, certain other funds, such as receipts from auto license fees, sales of timber and rentals on forest lands, amounting probably to about $25,000. These funds have in the past been applied to bond redemption and will be released in the future for other purposes.

Petition Denied

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The attorney general of Oregon was today refused review by the supreme court of the state's suit to compel Marion county, Oregon, to pay it $24,053. The state insisted the money was due it as its share of the money paid the county under the Oregon-California railroad tax refund law, covering the years 1916 to 1926.

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 8.—Denial by the United States supreme court today of the state of Oregon's petition for a hearing on appeal in the Oregon and California railroad grant land tax refund case is believed to be a final determination of the case in a complete victory for the land grant counties. These 18 land grant counties, in the litigation, were fighting any apportionment of the refund to the state.

Attorney General Van Winkle, when apprised of the denial today, was not prepared to say whether further steps would be taken to get an argument before the United States court.

The action at Washington will have no effect on the condition of state funds and financial outlays and now existing. State Treasurer Kay said, for the reason that in making its tax levy last year and estimating state needs the state did not take into consideration the possibility that the state might receive part of the refund. Had the state been victorious, however, Kay said, that state's debt, estimated for the end of the fiscal year at $600,000 to $700,000, would have been wiped out.

The refund case dates historically back to 1916 and the refund covered the period beginning in that year. In 1916 congress, by a re-vestment act, revealed in the government 2,192,000 in this act, which was known as the Chamberlain-Ferris act, it was provided that the government should classify the land and sell it. From the proceeds of the sale the government, under the terms of the bill, would have kept 10 per cent for handling the sale, the reclamation service was to receive 10 per cent. The counties 25 per cent and the state 15 per cent.

It was calculated that what the counties would receive would be the loss of the taxes. But the lands were not sold and the counties lost heavily. In 1925 the counties applied to congress for relief. As a result, congress passed the refund bill. This bill provides in effect that the counties shall be paid an advance against the refund provided in the Chamberlain-Ferris act such amount as would equal the taxes that would have been levied on the reversioned lands if they had remained privately owned. The bill provided also that the money so received should be paid to the state, counties, port districts, school districts, road districts and other civil subdivisions of the counties in the same proportion as taxes for the several years covered by the act.

Under the terms of the Stanford bill the government paid the land grant counties about $7,000,000. Of this amount the state claimed $1,249,359.48. And it was claimed by the state that the state's future interest, including the payments already made to the counties, would be about $10,000,000.

After the money had been paid out by the government under the Stanford bill to the counties, the state made a claim in the Marion county circuit court for $24,053.41 Marion county's share of the refund was $119,355.58.

Counties Refuse to Pay

The county refused to pay. Then the state on relation of the attorney general brought a mandamus against Marion county court to require the payment.

McMahon denied the writ. Appeal in the circuit court judges. The case was taken to the state supreme court and the case was twice argued. On April 17 last the state supreme court, by a 4 to 3 decision, held that the congressional act did not provide for payment of any money to the state. It also denied the writ of mandamus. The state then petitioned the United States supreme court to hear the case on appeal. A brief in opposition was filed by the county. This petition was denied today.

With Marion county used as a test of the act the case was conducted for the 18 counties by District Attorney John H. Carson of Marion county and Guy Cordon, district attorney for Douglas county.

BANK ACCOUNTS ACCUSE QUAKER CITY OFFICERS

(Associated Press Local Wire)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Two more police captives, "with bank accounts as big or bigger" than any hitherto revealed by a special grand jury investigation of hoodlangers and police corruption, are to be summoned before the inquirers, District Attorney Monaghan announced today as the inquiry entered its eighth week. Monaghan said his detectives had discovered that one of these district commanders and bank depositors, aggregating $150,000 and the other $125,000.

The prosecutor has retained an accountant to check up on police captain's bank accounts, realty holdings and other investments. Mayor Muckey, in a statement, declared that police bribery and other "evils" revealed by the investigation were the "development of many years" and had started with the attempts to enforce the prohibition law after the passage of the eighteenth amendment.
