Boys Entertain Rotarians—

A splendid program was provided at Rotary luncheon today by Gilbert Finley, Garland Ives, Derwin Johnson and Willie Urath, all of whom made short, snappy talks on the various lines of business that their fathers conduct. The musical program was in charge of Bill Ott, Ellsworth Ott and Charley Arundel, several excellent numbers being rendered. John Runyan, chairman of the boys committee, was in charge of the program, all of which was successfully carried out. Committees were appointed by President Fisher to take charge of the dinner and entertainment to be provided for the teachers of the public schools on the evening of November 15.

Lions Hear Talk on Enforcement—

Clay Darby gave an extremely interesting talk to the Lions club at the regular Wednesday evening dinner meeting, using for his subject, Laws and Law Enforcement, and emphasizing that the American people should better observe the laws and give more support and cooperation to law enforcement. The people of America being the richest and most enlightened people of the world do not give enough thought toward the laws and their enforcement, which is the cause for decay in our national life, he stated. He pointed out the fact that this was a cause of the decline and decay of the old Roman empire from its supremacy. Lion President, LaVerne Hawn, having returned from Monmouth where he attended the installation of a Lions club there, gave the local club an idea what to expect when on their charter night. There were some two hundred and fifty Lions from various clubs throughout the state and they gave the local boys a fine time.

REGIONAL MEET PROVING ONE OF DEEP INTEREST

Teachers," by Martha Sprague Mason.

A beautiful memorial service was conducted by Mrs. Marvin J. Lamb of Eugene for "Our Congress Mother," Mrs. N. J. Hawkins, a founder of the parent-teacher work in Oregon. Mrs. Lamb gave a tribute to the loving service to childhood given by Mrs. Hawkins throughout her life, ending with the placement of the congress colors in a floral spray on the Bible.

Elaine Carleton, Strang of Roseburg sang a sacred solo at the close of the service.

One of the principal speakers on the afternoon program was Dr. J. S. Landers of Monmouth, state chairman of the department of spiritual training. Dr. Landers led a conference on the subject of the aid the home can give in spiritual training. He stressed the thought that materialism breeds selfishness and spiritual perception, service, "life is so easy today that it keeps us away from thought of the finer things," he said. If we are going to lead children aright, we will have to live a rich full life as an example, was the thought with which he concluded his discussion. Dr. Landers was assisted in his discussion by Mrs. Wm. M. Campbell and Rev. R. W. Achter.

Pictures were taken of the group in convention a five minute recess being ordered for this.

Exhibits at Headquarters

During intervals between sessions many delegates and visitors are finding pleasure in visiting the basement parlors of headquarters where there are various exhibits on display. Among them are the health exhibits, which include a health wheel which is attracting considerable attention. Another interesting department is the service shop exhibit, showing the work carried on by the P. T. A. through this shop. There are also exhibits of the Camp Fire Girls, an art exhibit of work done in the city schools, a writing exhibit. Boy Scout display, domestic science display, and exhibits of P. T. A. headquarters. The rural schools, too, have some interesting displays to offer. One part of the basement has been reserved for the pupils in the schools of Yoncalla, Riddle, Tiller, upper Tiller, district number 94, Days Creek, Milo and Elgarose.

"Friendship Dinner"

Perhaps one of the most enjoyable social features of the entire convention was the "friendship dinner" given last night in the basement of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The dinner being prepared by the Roseburg Woman's club, under the supervision of Mrs. L. B. Skinner, Mrs. Louis Kohlhaugen and Mrs. H. D. Harris, and served by a group of the girls from Bethel No. 8 of Roseburg Job's daughters.

The entire affair was carried out in a most informal manner and was attended by nearly 100 interested in the work of the P. T. A.

Appointments were prepared by Mrs. G. V. Wimberly and were carried out to represent the Indian summer that Umpqua valley has been enjoying. Yellow strips of paper were cleverly used and autumn leaves, shellacked, gave a brilliant coloring to the table which was spaced with the valley's fruits. Each cover was marked with tiny nut cups topped with an Indian head, having hand-painted feather headdress with the enticing caption, "Princess Umpqua Greets You."

Devotion was by Dr. Frank R. Matthews, pastor of the Baptist church.

As a surprise feature Miss Helen Casey, dressed as an Indian princess, sang an Indian song, her accompanist being Miss Naomi Scott. This entertainment was particularly enjoyed.

Mrs. Wm. Kietzer, state corresponding secretary, acted as toastmistress at the dinner and explained that the affair was an annual event for the visitors and delegates to become better acquainted. Various chairmen in charge of the event were called upon for brief talks as were Mrs. W. W. Gabriel, state president; Mrs. F. H. Churchill, general chairman; Dr. B. R. Shoemaker, Mrs. Verne Scott, vice-president of district number 12; Mayor Geo. E. Hoark and others.

Following the dinner hour a program was held at headquarters at 8 o'clock with various talks and musical selections as the particular entertainment for the evening.

Quartet numbers by Umpqua unit of the American Legion Auxiliary and a vocal solo by Miss Evelyn Quine were pleasurable parts of the program.

The annual message of the president, Mrs. W. W. Gabriel, portended Tuesday night, was given last evening and her talk was a most inspirational and educational one and several fine points were brought out by the speaker.

Miss Beatrice Walton, secretary to the governor, was the principal speaker on the evening's program. "The State and Education" was a subject she most interestingly presented. Miss Walton is not only a woman of exceptionally fine personality but also a remarkable speaker and her address was greatly enjoyed by a responsive and attentive audience.

Some of the salient features of her talk were that education is the most important function of the state and largest cooperative effort. "More than any other country in the world the United States has pledged itself to education," she said.

Continuing, Miss Walton stated, "In a democracy we demand devotion to education that all may be equipped to exercise intelligently their duties of citizenship. The investment in public education is only one-eighth the cost of crime."

Mrs. Homer Grow entertained with a whistling number.

Dr. J. S. Landers, president of the Oregon Normal School, was the final speaker last evening and elaborated on "Youth's Spiritual Inheritance." He said that true success is dependent upon the attitude toward life, and that there is no lack of harmony between religious belief and science. "We must aid youth to form a belief in conformity to modern times and knowledge," he concluded.

Conferences This Morning

This morning the hours from 8 to 10 o'clock were divided with conferences. There was one on health, conducted by the Douglas county health unit and Mrs. Wm. Kietzer; a conference on the use of parent-teacher pamphlets by Mrs. R. A. Bush, state chairman on publications; kindergartens, by Mrs. G. H. Root, state kindergarten chairman and field worker for Oregon of the National Kindergarten association; recreation by Mrs. Warren D. Smith, who led the discussion on the establishment of municipal playgrounds; service shop by Mrs. F. E. Alger, shop chairman; the Parent-Teacher magazine by Miss Lenore Mooney, editor-manager; high school P. T. A. by Mrs. L. Ferguson, state chairman of high school extension; home education by Miss Mozelle Hair of the University of Oregon and state chairman of this department. Miss Hair led discussion of this problem, giving suggestions and assistance valuable in home study and in the formation of study groups in the associations.

Business Session

The morning session did not open until 10 o'clock. Invocation was given by Rev. J. P. Penhall, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

After the reading of the minutes Mrs. G. H. Root gave a talk on "Kindergartens for Oregon," which proved very interesting to the audience.

Mrs. G. L. Buland made an address on "Proposed Legislative Program," presenting some fine material for thought.

Reports of special committees took up the remainder of the morning, the service shop chairman, Mrs. P. E. Alger, giving her report and Miss Lenore Mooney reporting on the state magazine.

The convention body this morning endorsed two measures which will be presented this winter to the state legislature.

One is the kindergarten bill, which will permit school districts outside of Portland to use school funds for the maintenance of kindergartens.

The second measure was the character education bill, which will introduce a course in ethical training and citizenship into the state course of study.

Presidents' March

A feature of this afternoon is to be the annual presidents' march, a part that each year grows in importance at the conventions. The organization some time ago voted to assist in raising money for the art memorial building at Eugene, setting their quota at $500. Already $376 of this amount has been raised, and so there was created the presidents' march, in which all the presidents of the organizations which have not already contributed to the fund in some way march in a procession, each putting in one penny in a metal box to swell the fund.

This is to follow the opening of business this afternoon.

The rest of the program will include:

Address—"The Home and the Changing Social Standards," Dean Kate W. Jameson, Oregon State College.

Address—"The High Cost of Growth," Mrs. Jessamine C. Williams Oregon State College.

1929—Motor trip.

2:20—Complimentary tea sponsored by the city school board, high school faculty and the home economics department of the high school.

Evening Program Closes

The evening program will close the convention. The features will be:

8:00—"Wise Use of Leisure," High School Quartet.

Vocal solo—Vera McClintock.

4:4 Clubs—J. R. Parker, county club leader.

Camp Fire—Mrs. H. E. Cully, guardian.

Saxophone solo—Lewis Langenburg.

Address—"American Citizenship," Dr. E. H. Stewart, of the American Legion.

Post-convention board meeting at the close of the session.
