

SMITH REPLIES TO ATTACKS OF G. O. P. FOEMEN

to their arguments on labor and farm relief.

He attacked Hoover's speech made in the same assembly several weeks ago and assailed Charles Evans Hughes and Senator Borah the mention of whose names brought boos from the audience. Hughes, he said, amid laughter, should have been the republican candidate instead of Hoover because he was "doing more to elect the republican president than the nominee himself."

He said Hoover had made an "exaggerated statement" when he declared in Newark that "real wages and standards of living of our labor have improved more during the past seven and a half years of republican rule than during any similar period in the history of our country." Credit for such conditions was given to Woodrow Wilson by the democratic nominee.

Defends Own Policy

After challenging figures from the opposition camp on unemployment and assailing the republican plank on labor injunctions, Smith said his own program called for the necessary appropriation to the department of labor "to enable it to make adequate surveys on unemployment so this question of veracity as between officials" will never rise again.

He said he was satisfied the American people were "not wedded to a policy of holding back works in order to make a false showing of economy."

Furthermore, he was "distinctly in favor of a thorough study of the methods of industry, the newly adopted methods of industry, so that we may be able to absorb the surplus labor that is released because of the introduction of modern machinery."

Smith termed the republican plank on labor injunctions "meaningless and senseless," and said the democrats had promised a definite remedy "by law" to end "the existing evils."

G. O. P. in "Panic"

As for farm relief, he said the republicans were in a "panic" and he attempted to prove this by relating how Governor McMullen of Nebraska and Senator Borah had gone to Washington to "plead" with Hoover to favor an extra session of congress to deal with this question.

"The care of the exportable surplus crops," said the governor, "is the underlying, fundamental question behind constructive farm relief, and Mr. Hoover is unalterably opposed to that."

Smith branded as a "cold-blooded insult" to the working man a circular which he said he had been reliably informed was sent out to business houses by the republican national committee for insertion in the pay envelopes of mill and factory workers and which stated "The pay coming to you in this envelope is from two to ten times as much as you would have received for doing the same work in Europe."

"What a stupid performance," he exclaimed amid loud applause; "of all the men in the world to urge that against a man who came up from the ranks of labor himself."

Governor Smith praised Grover Cleveland as "one of the greatest presidents of the United States." Cleveland's widow, now Mrs. Frances Preston, was on the platform.

On Prohibition

"If ever there was a deliberate attempt to belittle the issue, it has taken place in relation to the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. I know perfectly well that the president of the United States cannot amend the constitution. Mr. Hughes does not have to tell me that. I know that, and what is more, I know that he knows that I know it."

"Nobody in the campaign so far has made any suggestion. What I did suggest was that I was willing to take the leadership of the American people for the purpose of trying to find a solution of that problem."

In another reference to Hughes the governor said: "He himself was responsible for the statement made before the bar association that I am a past-master in the art of politics. At the same time he says you cannot take the tariff out of politics."

"According to his own words and according to his own statement I am well able to take care of the tariff in the interest of the American workman as well as the American business man."

Al and Joe Hissed

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1.—The usually republican state of Massachusetts, claimed in the present campaign by the democratic leadership, was the objective today of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho. He will speak in Boston tomorrow evening.

Last night he spoke in behalf of Herbert Hoover before an enthusiastic audience which filled the 16,000 seat capacity of the fifth regiment armory.

Probably the largest crowd and the most vociferous reception of his campaign tour greeted the senator in his speech here. The demonstration over his appearance ranked from a 15-minute outburst of applause before his address to boos and hissing from all sections of the armory whenever he mentioned the names of Governor Smith, Senator Joe T. Robinson, the democratic vice presidential nominee, John J. Raskob, the democratic national committee chairman, and Tammany Hall.

Borah's Forecasts

The senator's speech covered most of the issues of the campaign and he injected a new declaration that if Hoover were elected president "we are to see a new era of peaceful negotiations in the settlement of controversies between the United States and the Central American nations."

A cheering demonstration of several minutes followed the senator's declaration that "to transfer Tammany Hall from New York to Washington would be a national disaster."

Mr. Borah said he regarded the alignment of the prohibition issue in the election as "not between the republicans and democrats but between those who believe in the constitution and those who do not." When he said that Governor Smith had declared the law would be enforced upon his election, a number in the crowd cried out "He (Smith) will never get to the White House."

Charging the governor with having "changed his views" on the protective tariff from describing it four years ago as a "robbery of the American people" to supporting it in his Louisville speech, the senator characterized the tariff as a barrier for the American workman against the industrial development now progressing in Europe.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Frank W. Murphy of Wheaton, Minn., chairman of the legislative committee of the Corn Belt committee, declared today that Herbert Hoover's promise to call an extra session of congress is just "another gold brick." His statement was issued by the Smith independent organization's committee.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Franklin MacVeagh, Chicago capitalist, and secretary of the treasury under President Taft, declared today that prosperity in the United States does not depend on the party in power.

"Prosperity rests on the resources of the country and enterprises and labor of the people," said Mr. MacVeagh. "So far as a president can help the currents of the nation's prosperity, I would rather have the help of Governor Smith than that of any other in our public life."

Raskob Complains
NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, charges that persons associated with the republican party and its national committee are promoting attacks on Governor Smith because of his religion.

The accusation was made in a letter to Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the republican national committee. Mr. Raskob enclosed material upon which he based his charges. A copy of the letter and enclosures also was sent to Herbert Hoover.

Senator Moses Figures
The material included a photostatic copy of a letter purporting to have been written by Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire to "Hon. Zeb Vance Walser, Lexington, Ky.," and copies of affidavits by four persons who swore they had received through the mails or at republican headquarters or meetings printed anti-Catholic material.

The letter purporting to be from Senator Moses referred to an article in the "Nation" magazine, which Zeb Vance Walser was but that the letter, apparently handwritten, was intended for Lexington, N. C., and sent to Lexington, Ky., by mistake.

Mr. Raskob termed the article "one of the most vicious anti-Catholic articles that has ever been penned for publication."

He said he had no knowledge who Zeb Vance Walser was but that the letter, apparently handwritten, was intended for Lexington, N. C., and sent to Lexington, Ky., by mistake.

Mr. Raskob did not make public the article to which he referred but called on Chairman Work to produce a copy. Senator Moses is vice-chairman of the republican eastern advisory committee.

The four affidavits were from Bernice Smalley, Wichita, Kans.; R. X. Williams, Jr., of Oxford, Miss.; J. E. Woodward, Oxford, Miss.; and H. V. Winningham, of Corbin, Ky.

The affidavit from Bernice Smalley states that on October 27 she called at the Sedgwick county republican headquarters in Wichita and received a variety of literature including a copy of the Fellowship Forum, published at Washington, D. C., of which Mr. Raskob wrote that "its sole purpose seems to be to attack the Catholic religion and Governor Smith."

Raskob called attention to the fact that the paper had published as among its owners the names of R. H. Angel of Roanoke, Va., republican state chairman of Virginia, and William G. Conley, Charleston, West Va., republican nominee for governor of his state.

The affidavit from Bernice Smalley states that they received letters in which were enclosed material on how to vote the republican ticket, signed by LaMont Rowlands, "republican national chairman, Jackson, Miss.," a photograph of an alleged negro appointee of Tammany Hall detaching to a white woman stenographer bearing the label that it was reprinted from the Fellowship Forum, and a bulletin of anti-Catholic propaganda bearing the imprint of the Sons and Daughters of Washington.

Church Pamphlets
Winningham's affidavit told of attending a republican rally at Corbin, Ky., addressed by Congressman John M. Robinson of Kentucky at the close of which a man stationed at the door distributed bundles of campaign literature including extracts from a Baptist sermon attacking Governor Smith as a religious fanatic who believed the Catholic church was the only church that should be allowed to exist and extracts from the writings of Pope Gregory IX and copies of the Catholic World.

At Passaic, N. J., where he spoke at a republican rally last night, Senator Moses told the New York Times he could not recall exactly what material he had sent Mr. Walser but that "they were not anti-Tammany and dry letters."

Asked whether the material contained any reference to religion, the senator said: "There might have been something about religion in them but I do not know. I have sent out so much material that I cannot recall."

Moses Answers Raskob
NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, vice-chairman of the republican eastern advisory committee, issued a statement today in comment on a letter sent by John J. Raskob, democratic national chairman, to Dr. Hubert Work, republican national chairman, in which Raskob charged that persons associated with Dr. Work's committee were promoting attacks on Governor Smith because of his religion. Raskob enclosed a photostatic copy of the letter purporting to be from Senator Moses to "Hon. Zeb Vance Walser, Lexington, Ky.," in which an article Raskob called viciously anti-Catholic was referred to as "red hot stuff."

"Who is this John J. Raskob who seems to be so agitated because a southern democrat has written something which I thought to be 'hot stuff'?" Senator Moses asked in his statement. "He is the chairman of the democratic national committee whose St. Louis headquarters have been busy for weeks in flooding certain sections of the country with vicious attacks upon Mr. Hoover's religious faith. These attacks have been sent out officially under the seal of the signature of Mr. Raskob's committee."

"Why is it that in these closing days of the campaign Mr. Raskob and his candidate seem to be taking the field like the Mohammedans unfurling the green flag with the flying horses' tail and proclaiming a holy war? It is because the cause is lost upon every issue which should envelop a political campaign and because of the desperation of all drowning men that clutch at straws."

"Mr. Raskob's ethical sense is so fine and his general sensibilities so readily aroused it might be worth while to ask how it happens that he has my mail. Did he himself rifle the mails or did some of his Tammany stool pigeons do it for him?"

Mr. Raskob commenting on Senator Moses' statement said: "My reputation is too well established to be injured by a man like Senator Moses charging me with pilfering the United States mails and calling me names. His statement is no answer to my letter to the chairman of the republican national committee, who is the man I think all the people hold responsible for the proper conduct of the republican campaign."

Mrs. Preston for Smith
NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Frances Preston, widow of Grover Cleveland, has entered the political lists for the first time since her first husband's death and has placed her name in Gov. Smith's column.

Mrs. Preston, who met the governor and his wife last night when she dined with them and sat beside Mr. Smith on the platform at Newark during the governor's speech, declared she had great admiration for the democratic nominee based on a long study of his career and a great affection for Mrs. Smith, based upon an evening spent with her at the informal dinner, in the New Jersey parade, and at the speech.

"I think the governor's speech tonight was very timely from the modern woman's standpoint," she said. "I agree with him absolutely on his stand on the proposed equal rights constitutional amendment. Such an amendment would be nearly fatal for the working woman, for, as the governor pointed out, it would remove all restrictive legislation that is designed for the protection of women and children."

She was commenting upon the governor's statement that the amendment sponsored by the national woman's party would never secure his support.

BANS BEGGING
JERUSALEM.—The council of the Jewish Jerusalem Community is planning to stop begging in the Holy City. More than 1000 persons who have gained a livelihood through alms obtained in the immediate vicinity of the Wailing Wall, will be forced to go to work.

THEY'RE OFF
COLUMBUS, O.—The next time F. H. Mink goes hunting he will wear a bright red cap instead of a brown one. He was one of the first victims of the season at West Mansfield, when another hunter mistook his cap for a squirrel.

JAR FULL O' GOLD
OWENSVILLE, Ind.—Gold coins, totaling $3899, were found in the home of Miss Florence Jones recently, after she had been committed to the Evansville State Hospital.

BRING IT IN!
LADY: I'm not expecting any package.
TRUCK DRIVER: This is the number, and the name's Higgins, isn't it?
LADY: It must be a case of mistaken identity.
DRIVER: No, mum; it's a case of beer.—Passing Show.

YOU CAN'T DO THAT
TRINIDAD, Colo.—Renting a house and then moving it because the location does not suit, is not quite according to Hoyle. That's why Charles Langowski, who moved a three-room cottage from one town to another, without the owner's consent, was lodged in jail here.

JR. HIGH SCHOOL ENCOURAGES ITS TICKET SALESMEN

To encourage students in selling tickets for school activities, the junior high school student body is awarding gold pins to the boy and girl selling the most tickets. An assembly was held this morning at which Prof. Oleman, principal of the school, presented the pins and honorary awards to the leading sellers. Rex Applegate and Nellie East received the awards as leading boy and girl salesmen, having sold Dixie Jubilee tickets to the number of 13 and 35 respectively. Drennan Shortridge and Mary Wood, each selling over 25 tickets, received special medals.

Tickets sold for the coming games and activities will be added to the seller's previous record, and the leaders at the time will be permitted to wear the pins, the previous wearers surrendering them if they have lost out. The persons leading at the end of the year will be permitted to keep the pins.

An interesting feature of the assembly was a burlesque on the

FUNERAL MYRTLE CREEK MAN TODAY
Funeral services for George Cochran, who passed away Monday morning at his home in Myrtle Creek, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the chapel of the Roseburg Undertaking company. The parlors were filled with the many friends of the bereaved family and there were many beautiful flowers. Rev. R. W. Achor officiated and interment followed at the Masonic cemetery in charge of M.
