MANY even the family reunions at dinner which marked Thanksgiving day as a delightful day on the week's calendar. Several of the affairs given for that day were traditional in interest for members of families and friends.

The young school set and those from college and university made the latter part of the week pleasurable and gay with their presence.

Quite the most outstanding event of the day was the ball given in the evening by the Roseburg Business and Professional Women's Club at the Oriental Gardens, where one of the largest crowds during the social season was assembled.

The weekend will be comparatively quiet with house guests departing for their homes, and the exodus of the school set.

Sutherland Couple Observe Anniversary With Dinner on Thanksgiving Day

The following from the Sutherland Sun, telling of the 57th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. French, will be of interest to their Roseburg friends.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. French, well known and highly esteemed residents of Sutherland whose 57th wedding anniversary occurred on November 28th, observed the event at their home on Waite avenue Thanksgiving day by entertaining members of their immediate family and a few friends at a delightful dinner.

O. W. French was married to Miss Miranda E. Wilson at Bloomington, Illinois, on November 28, 1871, and they have one son, O. W. French, who with his wife and two children, Mildred E. and Lawrence H. also reside in Sutherland.

Mr. French was engaged in business in Barrington and Hantsville, Ill. and in 1882 moved to Iowa Falls, Iowa, where he followed farming until 1912, when he moved to Sutherland Valley and embarked in fruit growing. Mrs. French is an active worker in the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and for several years was president of the local organization.

San Francisco Guests at Schloemann Home

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hurst are entertaining out of town visitors over the holiday. They came from San Francisco the first of the week to be guests at the home of Mrs. Hurst's parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Schloemann.

Dr. and Mrs. Louis Albert Banks entertained at their home on the holiday for Dr. and Mrs. Frank H. Matthews and son, Robert, and Mrs. Lee Allen.

Parachute Motif!

A little French trottier suit designed for wear under Southern skies, advances a most modern interpretation of the modish red, white and blue color scheme by using a new printed silk which has tiny parachutes for its design. The blue jacket is lined with the print, too. This print is one of the new impressions decorative, designed by famous French artists, which promise great vogue next spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Brunn Ask Group for Evening Dinner

A very pleasurable affair among those given on Thanksgiving day was the dinner for which Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Brunn were hosts at their home in North Roseburg.

Relax to Music, Waltz for Grace

For a Rigid, Tense Body Is Awkward, Says Noted Dancer.

Doris Niles, the youngest American dancer to head her own organization, here is pictured in a pose illustrative of her statement that grace is closely related to relaxation of the muscles.

There is neither languor nor stiffness here, but complete bodily freedom of almost feigning grace.

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of six articles on "How to Grow Graceful," written exclusively for NEA Service and The News-Review by Doris Niles, youngest American dancer to head her own ball organization.

Grace is to a woman what perfume is to a flower. In our age of rush and hurry, grace often goes into the discard in a vain haste to "get there." Yet, once a woman is relaxed, it becomes not only a matter of getting there, but of how we get there.

Dancing is the best school for grace that the world has to offer. The better a girl dances, the greater her embodiment of grace. The important thing for every girl to do early in her movements that do away with relaxation of the body which she practices unconsciously in dancing, is relaxation of the

NEW HATS FOR FURS!

BY HENRI BENDSEL
NEA Fashion Expert.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Choosing the right hat for wear with furs is a problem.

But, just as the modiste adapted herself to the bobbed head, so the high fur collar has been accepted and advances made for it to the extent that a whole series of stunning hats are especially designed for it.

There is no back brim to these hats. In the main they are little caps, berets, cloche models or shaped turbans. But they are charmingly feminine, becoming, individual and, often, exceedingly decorative atop a smart coat of fur.

Two Materials

The vast majority of these combine a couple of materials. Plain felt and the new long-haired type called "fox-felt" or "rabbit-felt" make a good combination. Velvet makes the insets of feathers, plush, pressed velvets are new, used often with fine felt. panne velvet is excellent and a new hat material is panne fauqe.

Most of these little fur coat hats have trimmings of another fabric even if their shapes do not include at least two. Velvet ribbon, graduated by color into little feathers, flowers and other decorations is very good. Quills, feather fancies, and lace are used, too. If a pin is added, it is because it is distinctive, not just a pin.

Original Flare

Reboux makes a little tight-fitting turban of rough black velours that has a fringe flared back in amazing originality. One side is buttoned. The other turns it back high in the center front, radiating to nothing in the back. Across this, from the ear to the top of the head, a flame and jade silk ornament adds its color.

This hat is slightly Russian looking. It would be even more so if astrakhan fur were used in some way for it. But as it is, it is a chic, smart, and most original looking model, cut perfectly to accommodate itself to the highest of fur collars.

A second way to meet this problem is shown in a little Florence Walton draped turban in green and turquoise velvet. This is a becoming solution, especially for the lucky woman who possesses a well-shaped head. For this is a formfit that it traces the headline from forehead to the nape of the neck.

The two colors, green and turquoise, alternate in making this hat and thereby give the body of it a slight resemblance to a melon.

F. O. E. Entertains at Thanksgiving Dinner and Dance

One of the delightful affairs among the larger Thanksgiving events was the dinner-dance planned by the F. O. E. for their families and additional guests on Wednesday evening at the Macabee hall.

Over 200 attended the event. The dinner hour was at 7 o'clock and a committee had charge of the arrangements.

The evening hours were enjoyable with dancing.
