Duties Are Growing—The letter cites the rapid growth of business in the department in administering the workmen's compensation act, and mentions that during 1928 the commission received and passed on approximately 6,000 claims, and received in cash from industries and workmen during that period nearly $1,000,000.

The 1927 legislative act creating the state bond buying commission, composed of the governor, the state treasurer and one member of the accident commission, has added to the responsibilities of the commission, according to the letter. It is stated that no change has been made in the salaries of the commission since the department began operation in 1914, although the chief auditor has been increased from a salary of $180 a month to $250.

The letter mentions a proposed amendment to the compensation act, expected to be introduced at this session, whereby the accident commission would take over the harbor workers' commission which is now operated by the federal government. This, it is claimed, will add to the commission's work and greatly increase its responsibilities.

May Add Two Members—The salaries of the accident commissioners are paid from the industrial accident fund which is created by the assessment on contributing industries. The Portland Labor Council, according to members of the commission, has approved the proposed increase.

The members of the commission are Sam Langhlin, E. E. Brazz and W. H. Fitzgerald.

Senator Joe Dunne of Multnomah county has introduced a bill that would make the membership of the commission five instead of three—one member to be a woman and one to be the state insurance commissioner who would serve in an ex-officio capacity. In addition to his salary as insurance commissioner the latter would also receive half the salary of an accident commission member.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—Resuming active participation in the special grand jury investigation of boodlegging and post corruption Monday, District Attorney John Monahan declared that the inquiry had revealed that jobs on the old police liquor raiding squad, known as unit No. 1, were "worth from $6500 to $25,000 a year on the side."

Members of the unit, which was disbanded when Mayor Harry A. Mackey assumed office a year ago, received $5.50 a day from the city. "We have checked up closely on the members of unit No. 1," the district attorney said, "because we looked upon that body as a cross section of the police department and fully representative."

A job on the unit was worth anywhere from $6500 to $25,000 a year. Not every man made $25,000, but some did. Men, hired as policemen for $5.50 a day, cleaned up anywhere from $125 to $500 a week with the unit.

"We unearched a number of amazing things which we will set upon later. There was a saying that some members of the unit paid as high as $1,000 for the privilege of getting on the squad."

Winslow spent the greater part of last week in Good Samaritan hospital in Portland with a case of influenza. Action on vetoed house bill 621 of the 1927 session, permitting employment of children under 14 years in coal mines, has been awaiting the return of Winslow, who fathered the bill two years ago.

Burdick is appearing in the house with his arm and shoulder in a plaster cast. He was injured last week in an automobile accident near his home at Redmond.

Three Ask More Pay. SALEM, Ore., Jan. 21.—An increase in the salaries of the three members of the Oregon state industrial accident commission from $3600 to $5000 each, proposed in a bill introduced at the present legislative session.

A letter from the commission, signed by Sam Langhlin, its chairman, is being sent to 100 industrial leaders of the state who are contributors to the industrial accident fund, and they are asked to request their district representatives in the legislature to support the bill. Replies to the letter so far received are said to be encouraging to the commissioners.

The letter cites the rapid growth of business in the department in administering the workmen's compensation act, and mentions that during 1928 the commission received and passed on approximately 6,000 claims, and received in cash from industries and workmen during that period nearly $1,000,000.

CHICAGO'S MILK WAR REACHING SERIOUS STAGE

Union Grove, Wis., 19,000 pounds from two trucks between Cary and Crystal Lake, Ill.; and 1,900 pounds spoiled with kerosene at Lake Zurich, Ill. One hundred more seized 6,500 pounds of milk from a train at McHenry, Ill. and poured it on the ground.

Ten automobile loads of men hauled two trucks belonging to the United Dairy company of Chicago at Fox River bridge and dumped the milk.

Farmers living near Waukegan, Ill. have resorted to house-to-house peddling among residents of the dairy belt.

One creamery at Waukegan deflected a compromise with the dairymen, agreeing to pay $2.75 a hundred-weight.

BANCORPORATION POLICY INVOLVED IN PORTLAND SUIT

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 21.—The case of Will Haines, former president of the Portland National bank, against the Pacific Bancorporation, was continued another ten days in federal court here today when the plaintiff asked time in which to prepare an amended complaint.

The case today appeared to involve two issues. Whether a national bank can be dominated and controlled by a private corporation which by its terms of incorporation is not to engage in a banking business and is responsible only to the state corporation department; and whether a bank can loan money to such a corporation and accept the corporation's stock as collateral security.

The case was precipitated by the action of the Bancorporation in removing Will Haines from the presidency and directorship of the Portland National bank immediately after its purchase by the corporation which Charles Hall of Marshfield is president. Haines owns 200 shares of Portland National stock and the Bancorporation has acquired 1,715 shares. Haines claims the value of his stock has been decreased by the practice of the new loan committee in loaning money both to the corporation itself and to its directors and officers with no security other than Bancorporation stock.

ROSEBURG HIGH BEATEN IN GAME AT NORTH BEND

The Roseburg senior high school basketball team was defeated 32 to 21 in the game with North Bend Saturday. The game was played at North Bend, making the score even between the two teams as Roseburg had previously defeated the Coos Bay boys in a game here.

The Roseburg team was badly handicapped by the loss of Elton Jackson, the local center, who was removed from the Marshfield game on Friday due to minor injuries. Jackson's weight and ability to secure the tip-off has been an important factor in the local team's play and his loss was in a large measure responsible for Roseburg's defeat.

FORMER MAN OF WEALTH SENTENCED AS CAR THIEF

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 21.—White-haired and immaculately groomed, John F. Clement, 69, reputed former Missouri railroad head and "man of wealth," stood in federal court today and heard himself sentenced to serve a year and a day at McNeil island for transporting a stolen automobile from Kansas City to Albany, Oregon, in November.

Clement was said to have hobbled at one time with Jim Hill and William Harrison. But late in life he lost both his riches and his high position and turned to soliciting for a farm magazine. Later he transported the stolen car to Albany where he lived and worked for a publishing concern for a year. He was arrested in 1928 when he sold the automobile to an Albany dealer.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—"Lefty" Flynn, former Yale football star, was sued for divorce here Saturday by Violetta Dana, screen actress, in a suit charging habitual drunkenness over a period of three years.

The movie star claimed her husband began drinking shortly after their marriage in June, 1925, and finally caused their separation last Christmas.

Miss Dana said that she continually pleaded with Flynn, whose correct name is Maurice Bennett Flynn, to cease drinking, but that he refused. Flynn was also accused of deserting his wife on numerous occasions without an explanation of his absence.
