Although Oregon's freshmen bettered the national inter-collegiate record in placing second last night, Northwestern mermen showed the westeners a few things about swimming and took the meet 41 to 26. PLANT CROWERS HEADED

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 12.—With letters and telegrams of protest pouring in from all over the state from garden clubs, and numerous small growers of flowers, and garden plants against an enlargement of the nurseryman's license law which would have included them under a $15 annual license fee, the house horticultural committee has agreed on a substitute bill which will eliminate all such small growers from the provisions of the act, as well as all gladiolus growers.

Swella Payrolls The construction of the mill has greatly improved business conditions in Glendale, which already had one of the largest payrolls of any city in the county. The mill itself cost over $250,000 and has furnished employment during the winter months to 60 or more men. It will be placed in operation early in March and by the end of the month will probably be working a large crew of men. It is expected that there will be more than 100 men regularly employed in the mill as soon as the plant is put in operation. The work in the timber will require as many more laborers. The mill is not only a great improvement for the city of Glendale, but it is an important factor in the development of the county, and every community will doubtless feel the benefit of the operation of this exceptionally fine plant.

MONEY SYSTEM CHANGE URGED FOR COLLEGES (Continued from page 1) institutions of learning in the state should not be in competition with one another either in curricula or for students," the report of the majority asserts it is their belief "that there should be a plan adopted by the proper authorities eliminating any competition in these respects and eliminating duplication of courses except in minor essentials. An examination, by your committee, of the catalogues and reports of the institutions shows that there is a considerable duplication which could and should be eliminated at a considerable saving to the state." In support of the recommendations that the millage tax levies from which the two institutions derive the major portion of their financial support should be reapportioned on the basis of present student loads and comparative demands, the report explains that when the millage apportionment was originally made in 1929 the college had an enrollment of 3494, while the university had a total of Money Asked Blindly Concerning the appropriation of $253,900 for college experiment stations the report says: "There are nine stations. As their name implies, they are for experimental work. There are no detail reports or information available to your committee disclosing what has been done by these stations during the past biennium. The legislature therefore is not in a position to pass upon the appropriations. The appropriations appear in the budget as continuing appropriations, which in the judgment of your committee is improper. As it stands these appropriations are made as a matter of course with no facts or data upon which to arrive at what should, or should not, be allowed. We recommend therefore that the appropriations be discontinued as continuing appropriations and be passed upon at each session of the legislature upon their merits."

Minority Statements In his letter declining to sanction all the recommendations of the committee Senator Elliot says: "The report on the Oregon State Agricultural College, for the large part, meets with my approval. It contains, however, several sets of figures and some other data and certain suggestions with which I do not concur. I will not attempt to state them, or to submit an opposing report, as I agree with the definite recommendation in the report that an impartial survey of the university and college be made."

Ultimate Union Seen Johnson refers to proposals before the legislature to consolidate the boards of regents of the university and college, and also of the normal schools, and declares that he considers "these to be steps in the right direction but as not yet far enough to remove the main trouble. With one board of regents, some money saving may result, but that will not stop the rivalry that at times affects the entire lawmaking of the state. Eventually, I believe, the university, college and normal school will all be made colleges of one university. They will be departments or schools of one institution, although located in different towns."
