CHARITY in social channels this week centered about St. Patrick's Day and several charming affairs were arranged among club groups in keeping with the date.

Visitors have provided inspiration for events on the week's calendar, too, and luncheon and dinner parties have contributed to make an interesting week. On Tuesday evening an attractive affair was given at the home of Mrs. Geo. A. Bradburn, Meritt Place, where she entertained the Ladies Club, Daughters of the Nile.

A jolly occasion also on that evening was the "Pumpkin Center Carnival" sponsored by the Senior High P. T. A. for its shrubbery fund.

Quite the largest function of the week-end occurred Friday evening when the Roseburg Business and Professional Women's Club entertained with a dinner at the Empqua hotel as a special observance of National Business Women's week. Particular guests for the occasion being Miss Mabelle Hair, state president, and employees of the club members.

Only two more weeks remain before Easter and that period will probably evidence a lull in social affairs.

Senior High P. T. A. Carnival of Tuesday Evening

A merry crowd gathered at the Senior high school Tuesday evening in response to the invitations issued by the P. T. A. for the "Pumpkin Center Carnival," which was quite the largest and most enjoyable event of the school season.

Fun was the keynote and many of the costumes were quaint and old-fashioned. The girls' quartet and their accompaniment were dressed in materials, with white blouses and had blackened faces.

All of the booths were well patronized, lines were formed to take care of the ones waiting, in their turn.

Miss Laubach gave her entire evening to the beauty parlor—Prof. Campbell and Prof. Larson were artistic examples of her skill after visiting her booth.

Miss Catherine Ferguson, or "Mirette" Nosigren as she was known to the public, was the very fortune teller, and donated the services against the evening predicting the future, good, bad or otherwise, as shown in the palms presented to her for reading.

The white elephant booth was organized as a fish pond and decorated with white elephants. The first parcel caught with the fish pole was a bottle of ketchup. Some embroidered linen pieces, some vases, and other articles were caught, also an aluminum frying pan, one toaster, and one all-steel sugar was found in a cigar case carton. Some of the customers of this booth were fined for smoking without a license.

The shooting gallery was crowded all times and various kinds of prizes were given to make it interesting.

A good supply of ice cream and chips made candy was exhausted before the demand was supplied.

Mrs. Paulsen sang two vocal selections in a very pleasing manner.

A class of girls from the gymnasium did some tumbling and other exercises in an excellent manner.

A group of boys from the gym pulled and gave an exhibition of quite difficult exercises in a commendable way.

The faculty had ordered a concert to be given, but it did not materialize so they persuaded three members of the Pumpkin Center society to department to put on an impromptu group of songs, which were very funny.

The following well known girls acted as policemen and visited the booths—Misses—Hessers, Hitt, Gault, Beard, Larson, Givens, McKelvie, Turner, Johnson, Carl, Wambler, Elliott and De Wolfe.

The affair was socially and financially quite a success and the association desires to thank each and every one of the patrons who so kindly assisted in making it so, but to those particular friends who could not attend and did not have an opportunity to state that they are a few dollars short of the amount required to complete the fund and assembly project in a first class manner and will appreciate any contribution they may be disposed to make. It may be sent to the school or to any officer of the association.

Announcements were received this week of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Ogle of Portland on March 5. Mrs. Ogle was Miss Elizabeth Harding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Harding of this city, before her marriage. The baby has been named Shirley Jean.

Garden Club Members Turn Attention to Spring Planting

The Garden Club members are turning their attention now to spring and the many possibilities that this season presents for the attractive garden and yard. This month's program marked a very interesting meeting for the group on March 4. The club, although still very young, has accomplished much in effecting interest in beautiful ground displays and homes and its members have found very helpful advice in arranging, planting and taking care of gardens through its regular meetings and particularly through the several interesting lectures which have been a part of the year's program.

Mrs. Walter S. Hamilton gave an impressive talk on "Flowers for Cutting: Their Culture and Care." This included many varieties supplying blossoms, foliage, and berries with which one could beautify their homes for each month of the year. She also mentioned suitable containers and arrangements for these.

To add interest, Mrs. Hamilton brought a large quantity of gladioli bulbs to be distributed to the members. She considers this flower one of the most satisfactory for cutting.

Merle Austin of The Fern, then spoke extensively on the planting of home grounds, including shrubs, perennials, annuals and bulbs; preparation of the soil and time of planting. This was an inspiring talk and very appropriate at this season when careful planting will bring such satisfactory results during the summer when gardens should take the place of living-rooms.

Mrs. John Ferguson told of spring flowering shrubs, those coming into blossom from January to May; their position in the garden, their culture and their value as cut flowers.

A vote was taken by the club on the choice of the national flower. The Wild Rose was favored. This is not the Sweet Briar so common on our hill sides, but the larger rose with such wonderful fragrance.

A well written article, "Consider the Lilies," prepared for this club by J. Robert McKay of Ilwaco, has been published in the March number of "Better Flowers." This will be of great value to those interested in lily culture in this county.

For the April program preparation is being made for short talks on window-box planting, soil preparation for hedges and borders, general culture and new varieties of the following flowers: chrysanthemum, dahlias, and gladioli.

The club is also endeavoring to secure a speaker who will give an illustrated lecture on Oregon Wild Flowers for the meeting.

FROCKS WILL GREET SPRING IN ONE PIECE

Roughish Silks to Be Popular for Street Wear

By HENRI BENDIS.

NEW YORK, May 15.—For these first rainy days when one may shed her coat, the one-piece frock will function perfectly this spring.

It is several seasons now since the two-piece sports frock usurped the place of the little frock of traditional cut that were all in one piece. Some of the newer one-piece frocks simulate the two-piece frocks but are really made in one.

It's Rough on Silk.

Roughish silks are likely to be more popular for these street dresses this year than smooth silks. New, outside styles that are sheer and lightweight are excellent also. But, there should be some heavy surface in silk or some buckram woven in out-of-the-ordinary, suitable for giving it body to make them the last word this year.

Printed silks and figured weaves have had such a popularity that such smooth and sweeter new rough frocks there will be a real craze for them. The truth is that costumeous things, with intricate, colorful decorations are running a race with bright prints. Be the print of bird design on dark backgrounds.

Very graceful is a shell pink frock for early spring, made in one piece, with French pleating inserts in the skirt and for the collar and cuffs that buckle shut.

Cuffs, Collars and Belts Take on Importance ground, or modernistic, almost excellent still.

There is much red this season. Touches of it on a dark and character suit, for instance. A dash of it on the lining of a beige suit—both matching blouse.

Some one-piece frocks have a tiny line of red outlining this of that bit of ornamentation, especially if they are blue or black themselves. There is a premium, in fact, on red touches.

The all-red frock holds a place in the smart woman's wardrobe that is all its-own. The very young women should all have at least one jaunty red frock or suit. And all women should have a red dress. It may be a soft dark, dull red. But it should be red. There's a certain little effect on the spirits that no color can have as effectively as red.

Femininity Triumphs.

Cuffs, collars, and belt arrangements are very important on new one-piece frocks. Necklines all tend towards soft femininity. It is seldom that one sees a severely tailored, collarless frock without some intriguing touch.

For early spring wear I suggest a jade green or a red wool crepe trimmed with square buttons and buckle of real tortoise shell. This tendency to use buttons and buckles of value is one more effort to make all jewelry serve a real purpose; for the costume it accords value and lovely designs are visible and lovely designs are ex-

Touches of Red Brighten New Season Garb

This frock has its blouse portion cut like a man's shirt, with fine hand stitching all around the seams. The skirt is cut in three-shaped horizontal sections, with a couple of big inverted pleats in the rear for fullness.

With this type of frock, a matching hat in a shade that exactly matches or one that definitely contrasts is cool. One of the fitted turbans with the curtain-drop back is a fine choice.

An Intricate Model.

Such more intricate in cut is a quaint flowered wrap-around frock, with ruffles of accordion pleating passed in curving line on the skirt, and with ruffled cuffs flaring from the tight sleeves.

This is a chaitreuse and cream print on a black background and is very smart looking. A natural Chinese ball-and-stick hat has its bindings match the frock's colors. Something new in cuffs and collar, as well as skirt fullness, is shown in a charmingly feminine shell-pink crepe one-piece frock. All edges are bound with beige moire ribbon. The cuffs are built in original manner and the neck has a French fold of fabric for a collar, with one side pleated many times for a tie. There are beige bands about the tight hip-line and above the waistline. The frock is light center pleated and a high waistline. A wise beige hat with beige bow tops it.
