THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

Into the cabin they all jumped. My, how the Tynmites wee hearts thumped. They knew that very shortly some new air ride was in store. The tub man, who stayed on the ground, said, "I don't know where you are bound, but anyway you're going there. That's what this trip is for."

"I'm paying now a debt to you for clearing off the Goofygoo, when it was taking punches at my funny little face. I guess the queer bird, after all, is sorry that he stopped to enll. Right now it's up to him to take you to some thrilling place."

"Now, do just what I've told you all. Hang on real tight, and do not fall. The cabin's plenty wide enough to let you ride in ease. Your bird can't talk. That is a shame. Of course, though, he is not to blame. Don't tell him where to go 'cause he can't listen to your pleas."

Just then the Goofygoo spoke out. "I know what this is all about, and don't you think that I can't talk. I do it very well. At first I thought your crazy bunch of hitching me up for this bunch was not so good, but now I've changed my mind. It's really swell."

"I'm going to take these little men away out far and back again. They're very safe and sound with me throughout the night and day. I'll fly, and will not let them drop. And some queer place is where I'll stop. If everything's all ready, now, we'll start upon our way."

With that the Goofygoo spread out its wings, and mid a merry shout, it took the little cabin and flew upwards toward the sky. The Tynmites leaned out and cried, "Hurray! Now starts a brand new ride." And then to Mister Tub Man they all waved a sad goodbye.

A good big allowance for your old mattress, either on an Edlow balloon spring mattress or a good silk floss. Try us on used furniture. We have a very large stock and getting more daily. Earl Powell, 115 Sheridan St.
