ROSEBURG, OREGON, MONDAY, APRIL 15, 1929.

A LAKE OF GASOLINE

DURING 1928 the citizens of the United States burned upwards of 14,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline. A speaker at the recent meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers in New York, pointed out that this would make a lake five miles in diameter and nearly four feet deep.

Putting it in terms like that helps one to realize the tremendous importance that oil has in modern American society. It also emphasizes the difficulties that would lie in the way of adopting gasoline substitutes. Benzol, for instance, can be made from coal; yet if all the soft coal mined in the country last year were made into benzol, it would only make a lake a tenth as large as this one.

We have a gasoline civilization, obviously; and one of our greatest problems is to insure a steady, cheap supply of the all-important fluid.

In the South two governors have been impeached and one ousted and an ex-governor is arrested on charges of counterfeiting. In the East the social tribulations of Mrs. Gann, brother and husband resound and reverberate. Here on the Pacific coast the alleged palaverings of Mesdames Kennedy and McPherson are striking us all pink. What has become of the Einstein theory? Where is the Congressional Record? Are the excavations at Luxor yielding anything new? Do the South Sea Islanders eat anything besides poi nowadays? What has been the general drift of polar ice recently? How old is Ann? Who struck Billy Patterson? Was it Sampson or Schley who won the battle of Santiago? Where is Ambrose Bierce? Why is a pie round? Let's think about wholesome things a little.

School books for Myrtle Creek are coming in to the News-Review office at a good rate. Almost 100 books, all needed and on the list, were delivered to Principal Henry F. English Sunday morning, and are in use this week. Another load will be taken down tonight. This spirit of helpfulness prevalent in Douglas county is one of the many reasons why it is a delightful part of the country in which to live.

The response to the chamber of commerce inquiry as to how many people wished to go to Glendale May 1 by special train, was good. A special train is practically assured. It will be a great party. Several hundred people will be on the special. Glendale is rapidly getting prepared for us. Pity and shame on the stay-at-homes that day.

The Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, a mammoth musical organization, will appear in concert in this city the evening of May 1. This is perhaps the greatest musical treat ever offered in Roseburg.

POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS

THE THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF THE GOING AWAY OF BINGER HERMANN

One of the notable citizens in the history of Roseburg was Binger Hermann who for so many years represented Oregon in the national House of Representatives in Washington. If there is such a thing as a genius for friendship, Binger Hermann had it. Roseburg is a more friendly, brotherly place because he lived here. It would be good for us all to emulate his spirit.

Three years today he climbed the heights—
Up where there were no shadowy nights.
Our Binger loved the sunlight well—
What brilliant stories he could tell!
He had a genius here for friends,
Had much of grace that heaven sends.
I've faith they like him where he's gone;
I think he fits in heaven's dawn.

I liked to meet him on the street—
Was sure to have a joyous treat;
He was a man with soul alive
Where evil thoughts no longer strive,
A man who had his victories won,
Who had the faith to march right on,
Who made the most of all his gifts,
And saw beyond the curtain-lifts.

Our Binger kept his boyish soul;
He played a gay and brilliant role;
In every man he saw the best,
And never lost his springing zest.
The flesh grew tremble toward the last,
But nothing dimmed his bright forecast;
He never lost his power to dream
Or revel in a lofty theme.

Dear Binger Hermann, noble friend,
Our love for you shall never end.
'Tis good to sing this memory song—
To you all tender things belong.
For down within your gracious heart
True loving-kindness was an art;
Where'er we vision yonder skies
We see the glory in your eyes.

CHAS. R. CAVENDER DIES IN PORTLAND

Charles R. Cavender, for many years a resident of Roseburg, died yesterday in Portland after a long illness, according to word received here today.

Mr. Cavender lived in this city for the greater part of his life, being employed by the Southern Pacific company until comparatively recently, when he went into the trucking business. He was forced to retire about three years ago, due to poor health, and moved to Portland, where he has been making his home with his brother. His wife passed away several months ago.

He is survived by one son, Noel, who is in Portland.

The body is to be brought to Roseburg Tuesday and funeral services will be held at the Roseburg Undertaking company chapel Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Interment will take place in the I. O. O. F. cemetery. Arrangements are in charge of M. E. Ritter.

MRS. FANNIE DEAR SERVICES TUESDAY

Mrs. Fannie Amanda Dear, a well known resident of Oakland and vicinity, passed away in Los Angeles, Calif., early Friday morning.

She was born in Oakland, Ore., on June 17, 1863, and was the wife of Allen J. Dear, who passed away in 1919. She is survived by five sons and one daughter, Charles, Cottage Grove, Ore.; Cecil, Marysville, Calif.; Edward, Clatskanie, Ore.; William, Santa Rosa, Calif.; Thurman, Molokai, Ore.; Mrs. Mary Beauchamp, Los Angeles, Calif.; and one brother, C. W. Nail, Portland, Ore.

The body of Mrs. Dear will arrive on train 14 Tuesday night and funeral services will be held in the Community church at Oakland Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Services will be held by the Order of Eastern Star members of Oakland, which she was a member. She was also a member of the Neighbors of Woodcraft. Interment will take place in the Masonic cemetery, near Oakland. Funeral arrangements are in charge of H. C. Stearns of the Douglas Funeral Home.

MARY D. CALDWELL BURIED SATURDAY

Funeral services were held in Stearns' chapel at Yoncalla for Miss Mary Della Caldwell last Saturday at 10 a. m. and were largely attended by sorrowing friends and relatives. The many floral offerings attested the esteem held for her and she will be missed by the community of Yoncalla. Rev. White of the Christian church officiated.

H. C. Stearns of the Douglas Funeral Home was in charge of funeral arrangements.

O. E. HAMPSON IS BURIED ON SUNDAY

Funeral services for O. E. Hampson, well known railroad man and pioneer resident of this city, were held in the chapel of the Douglas Funeral Home yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The chapel was filled to capacity, members of the I. O. O. F. order attending in a body.

Funeral services were held in Stearns' chapel at Yoncalla for Miss Mary Della Caldwell last Saturday at 10 a. m. and were largely attended by sorrowing friends and relatives. The many floral offerings attested the esteem held for her and she will be missed by the community of Yoncalla. Rev. White of the Christian church officiated.

DOUGHBODY'S SKELETON FOUND IN COURTYARD

FISHER, France, April 15.—The skeleton of an American soldier killed in the drive on the Vesle river in 1918 was found Sunday in the courtyard of a sugar refining plant by a workman doing excavation work. The bones were in good condition but nothing else remained but the bones. Search is being made for the man who carried by soldiers to establish identity.

FRED SWAN'S TRIAL TO START ON APRIL 19

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., April 15.—The trial of Fred Swan, indicted for first degree murder in connection with the death of Ned Connolly on a lonely homestead north of Dorris, will open in circuit court here April 19. The district attorney expects the case to take only two days for hearing.

THE BIRD OF THE WEEK

(By Louis Albert Banks)

(Cut out this block each week and you will soon have an interesting bird book of your own.)

THE MARSH HAWK

To my mind the marsh hawk is the best looking of all the hawks, although they are really a handsome family of birds. He is nine inches long, very light colored, like a man in bright summer clothes. He is gray, decidedly bluish above and white underneath. The mother is brown on the back and the young ones do not get the bluish tinge of their father until they are two years old. They are slenderly built birds and very attractive. Sometimes they build their nests on a platform in a tree, but often on the ground; always in a marsh or swampy region. You will easily know him by his bluish gray coat and his yellow legs and feet and the white patch on the rump. The legs are exceptionally long and the wings are broad, enabling the birds to fly up and down watercourses in a manner quite in keeping with a gull.

Their food consists largely of mice and frogs and other small animals, snakes and insects. They are almost entirely harmless to the farmer or the poultryman, and they are among our most valuable birds of prey. During mating time, the male is very demonstrative, performs evolutions in the air, turning somersaults to attract the attention and admiration of his lady love. They have from four to seven white eggs.

A MARSH HAWK'S LOVE STORY

A girl hawk lived in the marsh where all about was damp and marshy. In that marsh, amid the green, the finest hawk she'd ever seen. Had caught her girl hawk wandering.

She hoped he'd see her passing by. He saw her soon and lost his heart. And courted her with all his art.

His had a suit of pearly gray—
"Twas in the bluestone month of May.

That gay young hawk, in deep affection,
Began to give her his reflection.

Paraded every love-sick action,
Until you'd think that hawk was frantic.

He swung and swayed in heaven's vaults
And, for her joy, turned somersaults.

The match was very quickly made;
The nest was built beneath the shade.

Her knight now followed all her moods,
And searched the swamp to bring her foods.

Sometimes it was a luscious frog
Found lingering on some mossy log.

Again it was a juicy snake—
Love made it taste like angel cake.

At one time he was a happy hawk!
Or heard abroad his loving squawk.

And always he brought something nice,
If only tender foot-sore flies.

Sometimes a careless young bird
That those occasions were quite rare.

It was a joyful plenty then
For happy brownie marsh hawk hen.

GUINAN CASE SEQUEL

NEW YORK, April 15.—Ten men who pleaded guilty to maintaining a nuisance at the Salon Royale, Broadway night club, where Texas Guinan was hostess before it was raided by prohibition agents, today were fined from $50 to $250 by Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas.

Oregon. Here is his recipe for safety: "Drive within the range of your vision."

That is to say keep your car under such control that at all times you can meet safely any emergency that arises within the range of your vision. Be able to stop within the space of clear road that you can see.

If that advice were generally followed, the number of traffic accidents, which is now appallingly large, could be reduced amazingly.

Do You Know Your Own State?

Excerpts from "Oregon Geographic Names" by McArthur, which explain the origin of names of geographic landmarks throughout the state.

TODAY: DURHAM

Durham, Washington county—Albert Alfonso Durham came to Oregon in 1847. He built a sawmill below Oregon City, which he sold. Then he built a sawmill at Oregon, where he did a large business until 1869. He named Oregon for Oswego, New York. After operating there he moved into Washington county and built a sawmill and a flour mill on Fannie creek. These mills were operated by water power, and for a number of years the place was known as Durham Mills. When the Oregon Electric railway was built the station at this point was called Durham. A. Durham was born in Geneva county, New York, March 15, 1814; died in Washington county, Oregon, April 4, 1898.

DRAIN PASTOR TELLS OF WORK IN MISSION FIELD

(News-Review Douglas County Special)

DRAIN, April 15.—On Friday afternoon of this week the ladies of Drain M. E. church gave an afternoon tea at the church to which an invitation was extended to all the ladies of the town, forty or more of whom responded to the invitation. The principal event of the afternoon was a demonstration of home life in Indian which was put on by Mrs. C. L. Wood, wife of the local pastor, who has spent four or five years in missionary work in that country. Mrs. Wood was assisted by Mrs. Allison Barnard, wife of the pastor of the Yoncalla church who also has spent several years in the same work in the same country, although in a different part of the country.

Mrs. Wood and her husband, who was also a missionary in India, brought back with them numerous articles of wearing apparel, principally for women, and articles for household use. Mrs. Wood, in a forty-five minutes' talk, explained the use of the various articles and also told much about social conditions in that country. Tea and cake was served following the program.

DRAIN GARAGE TO QUIT BUSINESS

(News-Review Douglas County Special)

DRAIN, April 15.—Wm. Grauerholz, who has operated a garage here the past two years, has announced through the local paper that, owing to his garage building having been condemned by state authority, a recent addition being constructed with board floor, he will close out his stock of automobile supplies and accessories and will discontinue the business. Since 1925 it is a requirement of state law that garages for public storage of automobiles must, at least, have floors of non-inflammable material.

FAMOUS HARPISST TO BE HEARD WITH COMING ORCHESTRA

Alfred Kastner, a solo harpist of the Philharmonic Orchestra of Los Angeles, which plays in Roseburg on May 1 at the senior high school auditorium is a man of recognized fame and enjoys the reputation of being one of the greatest living artists on his instrument. As a matter of fact he is one of the very few who succeed in achieving international renown by his frequent and extended travels in many countries as soloist, and by playing for long periods in the biggest symphony orchestras under the foremost conductors. When a boy student at the Conservatoire, under the famous Italian master, Antonio Zamboni, he made a sensation as a prodigy. As soon as he finished his studies he became harpist of the Opera House in Warsaw, and after that he was called to Budapest, where he spent six years playing under Niekisch and Richter, being the first to teach harp at the Hungarian National Music Academy.

From there he went on tours through Russia, Poland, Switzerland, Roumania and Germany, earning a name particularly for his playing of classical and modern piano music on the harp, like a Sonata by Mozart, pieces by Chopin and similar works, evading the usually shallow harp compositions.

In 1901 he came for the first time to America to join the Philadelphia Orchestra, which had just been founded. In 1902 followed another year of traveling in Russia and Finland, with extraordinary success, after which he was reengaged for the Philadelphia Orchestra, but a tempting letter from his friend, Fritz Kreisler, to come to London as harpist of the famous Queen's Hall Orchestra under Henry J. Wood, made a temporary end of his stay in America. It was in England where he spent the next fourteen years that a very splendid career was waiting for him.

In 1916 he returned to America where Stransky asked him to join the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. This artist has composed and arranged many studies and pieces for harp which are known everywhere.

Kastner joined the Philharmonic Orchestra of Los Angeles when it was first organized in 1919 and has appeared many times as soloist with this organization, always with marked success.

EX-SENATOR REED CLAIMS RAW DEAL FROM REPORTERS

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

ST. LOUIS, April 15.—Arriving in St. Louis to attend a testimonial dinner in his honor today, former Senator James A. Reed declared that he was "treated outrageously by the press" at a Jefferson banquet in Kansas City, at which he spoke.

"It has been a long time since I have had any cause to complain about the press," the Missourian said, "but I was quoted last night as saying that all the members of congress are jackasses. Now I said nothing like that. I said no law makes a thing right or wrong. Later in the speech I said that simply because several hundred jackasses were in favor of a thing, that does not make it right."

"I was quoted as saying something to the effect that Jones and Volstead and Wayne B. Wheeler never had a thought in their lives. I didn't say that. I said as long as I had known them I had never seen them smile."
