

NEWS-REVIEW IS CONGRATULATED ON SPECIAL EDITION

Glendale Booster Paper,
Which Appeared Last
Monday, Is Given Commendation.

The Roseburg News-Review has received a great deal of commendation for the Glendale special edition published last Monday. Letters and telegrams together with much personal comment have been received from many sources, praising the edition and congratulating the Glendale merchants for their enterprising spirit and the News-Review for the workmanlike and ability shown in editing such an edition.

Over 2,000 copies of the paper were secured by Glendale residents for distribution and have been mailed out all over the country, carrying the tidings of Glendale's jubilee, together with the excellent booster information that the issue contained.

In addition to the papers already distributed, several Glendale merchants have written and telegraphed for more copies, and today an order was received from the Glendale Chamber of Commerce for an additional shipment of 500 papers.

A few of the congratulatory letters received are as follows:

Glendale, Oregon,
April 24, 1929.
Roseburg News-Review,
Roseburg, Oregon.
Gentlemen:

Your big booster special Glendale edition of The Roseburg News-Review appeared Monday, April 22, according to schedule.

A splendid production, and we are all proud of it.

I understand that you delivered about 2,000 copies to the Glendale district. Certainly they are an important feature of interest in every home, office and business house. Hundreds of copies have been re-mailed to points all over the United States.

Gentlemen, we congratulate you for the excellent work in providing such a splendid edition, and in behalf of the citizens of our city and surrounding country and the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, I thank you, and will add that we are looking forward with very great pleasure to greeting the "On to Glendale" avalanche from Roseburg at our Glendale Lumber Jubilee celebration on the first day of May, 1929.

Sincerely yours,
R. M. EBERLE,
President Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

Roseburg, Oregon,
April 23, 1929.

R. M. Eberle, President,
Chamber of Commerce,
Glendale, Oregon.

Dear Mr. Eberle:

The Roseburg Chamber of Commerce has read with much interest the special Glendale edition of the Roseburg News-Review. We believe that the Glendale Chamber of Commerce and the business men of your city are to be greatly commended for the enthusiastic spirit that you have shown in giving such wide publicity to your own community and to Douglas county.

The enthusiasm shown by the Glendale citizens certainly will go far in assuring prosperity for all of southern Douglas county.

We also feel that the News-Review should be congratulated for the excellent work in providing such a fine edition.

Sincerely yours,
W. C. HARDING,
ROSEBURG CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,
Secretary.

Glendale, Oregon,
April 22, 1929.

Editor News-Review,
Roseburg, Oregon.

Dear Sir:

Congratulations on your special two-color edition of Glendale. A wonderful issue.

Please forward us by return mail 50 extra copies.

Very truly yours,
G. I. WARDROP,

Cashier Glendale State Bank.

KIWANIS CLUB
GIVES PROGRAM AT LOOKING GLASS

The Roseburg Kiwanis club met with the Lookingglass grange in a very interesting meeting last night. The program was presented by the Kiwanis club at the Lookingglass grange hall, which was packed by the large crowd in attendance. The program was made up of music by the Kiwanis orchestra, address by Dr. Frank Matthews, harmonica, hand drum by E. E. Whipple and Charles V. Stanton, accompanied by Mrs. C. S. Heinline, readings by Joyce Busenbark, piano solo by Lois Ann Whipple, old-time dance calling by H. C. Farlow and a group of songs by the Kiwanis club. Joyce Busenbark of the Kiwanis agricultural committee was in charge of the program.

TERROR ISLE FOR NUN INVOLVED IN OBREGON MURDER

MEXICO CITY, April 27.—Mother Concepcion, the Roman Catholic nun who was convicted and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment as "principal author" of the assassination of General Alvaro Obregon, will be taken to the "Las Tres Marias"—The Three Marys—Mexico's island prison colony.

She will be one of the first women to be confined at the island.

Hen Mothers Three Kittens

These three kittens are perfectly at home with their foster-mother, Biddy Hen. They follow her around while she clucks contentedly, trying to make them pick up pieces of corn and a few rocks. She never scolds or fusses with the furry babies. The odd family is owned by a Houston, Texas, farmer.

penitentiary, which has attained a reputation of treatment for male prisoners sometimes "worse than death." Recently a new governor appointed by the Portes Gil administration for the island announced that the whip and other such implements of punishment would be banished and prisoners afforded means of diversion. Newspaper accounts said the prisoners "wept with joy."

The prison authorities in announcing imminent removal of Mother Concepcion, said that all other women convicted of direct or indirect participation in anti-government activities, particularly the so-called "Cristero" revolt, would be sent to the island prison colony. The announcement was taken to mean that an attempt would be made by the government to confine these women who are convicted among those recently arrested for alleged seditious activities.

NEW STATE OFFICE BUILDING DESIGN UNDERGOES CHANGE

(Associated Press Local Wire)

SALEM, Ore., April 27.—Plans for the new state office building, entirely different from any others heretofore considered, were adopted by the state board of control yesterday after a protest against previously adopted plans had been made by the state supreme court.

The new plans call for a five-story structure, 200 by 96 feet in dimensions, with full basement. It will give 22 per cent more space than the previously approved plan.

The exterior finish of the building will be of terra cotta, to conform with the finish of the present supreme court building. Also the style of architecture will be similar. Since the width will be the same as the supreme court building will be of terra cotta, to continuous appearance when viewed from east with the state capitol in the background.

Farm Notes

(By J. C. Leedy)

At the recent dairy meetings at Canas Valley and Roseburg, N. O. Jamison, dairy specialist, O. A. C. extension service, strongly emphasized the importance of an ample supply of home grown feeds, stating that in addition to 90 days of full pasture, 2 tons of leguminous hay, 5 tons of succulent feed in the form of silage, roots, pumpkins or kale, and 1 ton of grain, are required to maintain profitable production.

It is usually necessary to start dairying on a small scale, according to Mr. Jamison, and enlarge operations by saving the heifer calves bred by a purebred bull from the best cows, and eventually develop a herd of 15 or 20 cows, where the major portion of the farm income is to be derived from the dairy.

Bulletin No. 1, Farm Income Series, entitled "Dairy Farm Income Required to Maintain Standard Farm Homes in Oregon" gives other interesting information for dairy farmers, and may be secured free from the office of the county agent.

A method of treating lambs for scours, used in Morrow county in eastern Oregon, has been quite successful and may be of interest to sheepmen of Douglas county. Plain charcoal tablets are given the lambs when scours appear, and are followed by another dose if droppings do not have black color in 6 hours. Ninety per cent of the lambs affected were saved by the treatment. The principal precaution is to give the tablets when the scours first appear.

Best results were obtained by dissolving the tablets in warm water and feeding from bottles, but the doses may be administered by putting the tablets down the throat of the lamb.

ORCHESTRA COMES TO ROSEBURG WITH A GREAT PERSONNEL

With the coming of the great Philharmonic orchestra of Los Angeles comes an opportunity seldom given residents of a city the size of Roseburg.

Musical lovers have watched the development of this orchestra until it has reached the place where it is numbered amongst the three or four great symphonic ensembles of America. From the beginning it has been an outstanding orchestra, due to its incomparable personnel and a total quality that now definitely places this orchestra in a class from a mere symphonic machine.

William Henry Rothwell, late conductor of the Philharmonic orchestra said "It is like a great organ, a perfect medium for the expression of musical thoughts and emotions."

In commemoration of the tenth anniversary of the founding of the orchestra by William Andrews Clark, Jr., the body is making a tour of the northwest for the second time in its history. The tour is given at a great financial loss, by its generous patron Mr. Clark, who has been the sole guarantor of the orchestra since its inception.

Such a tour as the present one is intended to give the residents of smaller cities an opportunity to hear the works of the great masters.

Conductors who have led this great symphonic orchestra have frankly rated it as one of the greatest now in existence. Alfred Hertz is the musical giant who will lead the celebrated organization. It is fitting that the personnel of such an organization should be conducted by a man of the ability and experience of Hertz. Hertz is probably the high priced conductor with a few exceptions of the age. His programs are famous for their color, contrast and their insight into the composers' intent. A unique combination of orchestra and conductor.

Emile Ferris, solo viola, stands supreme among the viola players of the world. His achievements on his chosen instrument have been as worthy of note as those of the world-famous pianist and violinist. One very seldom hears his broad-toned instrument outside of its tenor in the orchestral string quartet. It is an especial charm to hear the viola numbers in this recital. Standing as it does between the all-expressive violin and the rich-toned violoncello it is the Cinderella of the orchestra.

One must not forget Henri De Buscher in speaking of the solo musicians. Here is an artist whose ability and experience enables him to serve the orchestra in the capacity of soloist at the will of the program maker and conductor. DeBuscher is first oboist in the orchestra.

Claude White, tympani player was born in Oregon. In 1918 he played at the Auditorium Theatre in Los Angeles and in the Los Angeles Symphony. When the Philharmonic orchestra was organized he became the tympanist.

Ilya Bronson, solo cellist has also been recognized as one of the few interesting soloists on the violoncello. In Bronson the sentimental powers have been claimed as well blended by leading critics.

William Richard Schurz a member of the string bass section of the orchestra was musically educated at Leipzig, Germany, played with Gwendhar's orchestra of Leipzig as well as a Philharmonic orchestra at Hamburg, Symphony orchestras of Philadelphia and Boston.

These and other artists make up the personnel of the great musical aggregation to entertain here May 1.

JEALOUSY OVER
BOOTLEGGER SAID
CAUSE OF SUICIDE

(Associated Press Local Wire)

STRATFORD, Conn., April 27.—Search was being made today for a bootlegger who police believe may throw light on the fatal shooting of Oliver Beardslee, 51, an avowed "woman hater," in connection with whose death his 23-year-old widow is being held.

Mrs. Beardslee told authorities her husband shot himself because he believed there was "something between her and a bootlegger she knew only as 'Jim'."

An autopsy disclosed that Beardslee died yesterday from a 22 calibre bullet fired into his left temple. No powder marks were discernible.

Mrs. Beardslee, a former telephone operator, declared her husband held the revolver some distance from his head and pulled the trigger with his left hand. The man's dying declaration was that his wife had shot him.

Mrs. Beardslee asserted the shooting culminated a quarrel over fancied attentions paid her by a bootlegger whose place they had just visited. After they had bought whiskey she said, the bootlegger drove them both home.

Beardslee was the son of wealthy parents and was looked upon as eccentric. When the 1918 armistice was proposed he talked against it and swore he never would vote if women were given the ballot. When he married in 1926 his bride was described as a "flapper."

NEW LUMBER PROJECT IN MARION COUNTY

(Associated Press Local Wire)

SALEM, Ore., April 27.—Contemplated operations in a tract of 30,000,000 feet of timber between Abiqua and Butte creeks in the eastern part of Marion county were revealed here Friday before the county court by Theodore Hansen and son, of Portland, who seek permission to improve the county road from Scotts Mills to Buckets camp and the construction of several miles of road beyond Buckets camp to their timber holdings.

Under the plans announced by Hansen the company plans to haul its logs out to Mt. Angel and ship from there by rail.

SUTHERLIN STORE SOLD

A deal of considerable local interest was closed here Wednesday morning when Lewis J. Allen purchased the grocery stock and goodwill of the Applegate Cash Grocery on Central avenue, says the Sutherland Sun. Mr. Allen took formal possession shortly after the deal was closed and will be assisted for a few days by Mr. Applegate. Beginning next Monday a regular free delivery will be established for the convenience of the patrons, and deliveries will be made every morning at 10 o'clock.

The store will be known in the future as "Allen's Home Trade Grocery," and will carry a complete line of staple and fancy groceries, fruits and vegetables. Mr. Allen, who has enjoyed several years' experience in a general store, will be assisted at the local store by Mrs. Allen. Some alterations and changes on the interior of the store are contemplated in order to provide room for display of stock.

FIRE INSURANCE IN OREGON SHOWS GAIN OVER 1927

SALEM, Ore., April 27.—The annual report of Clara A. La., state insurance commissioner, will show that on December 31, 1928, 219 stock fire insurance companies carried in Oregon over $30,000,000 insurance in excess of the previous year. Notwithstanding this increase there was a net reduction of $526,000 in premium.

Paid net losses were $562,000 more than for the previous year.

The total insurance was 7 per cent above the normal amount for a five-year period. The reduced premiums were 7 per cent below the average. This reduction was due to reduction in rates, additional credits and broader rules of underwriting fixed by the Oregon insurance rating bureau and the insurance companies. The greater loss by fires was attributed to a series of fires in wood working plants, causing damage of over $1,000,000 more than in 1927, the lowest in the history of the department.

The report shows that the total fire insurance in Oregon at the end of 1928, exclusive of reciprocal, automobile and marine companies, was $1,015,631,627. Of this amount stock companies carried $746,896,547 and mutuals $268,736,080. Of the latter 58 per cent, or $155,389,730, was carried by the six Oregon companies.

George Gardner of Glendale is transacting business here today.
