SOCIETY Young Husband Admits Bride's Torch Murder

By MILDRED BYNON Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wharton were hosts Sunday at a 1:30 dinner at the family home. White linens and poppies were used in profusion about the rooms.

Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Wharton, Margaret Carr, Frank Clemens and the host and hostess.

In a few short days American Legion Auxiliary members will become poppy vendors, and the little red poppy seen each year a few days before Memorial day will be seen on many a coat lapel.

The poppy has a meaning which perhaps many do not understand. During the World war great guns spat fire across Flanders fields, from the air poison gasses choked our soldiers, exposure took the lives of thousands. Many are buried beneath the white crosses in France and the Legion has taken up the torch they so bravely bore.

Thousands came back wounded in body and mind. Many are armless and without feet, some blind and others with memory gone. But in the minds of the Legion a memory lives on. The memory of the buddies who fell by their side, in the red poppy fields of Flanders.

The poppy is a symbol of the blood of the boys who gave their all. Those who were in France tell us that where the battles were the fiercest and the bloodshed the greatest the poppies grew the thickest.

And so the Legion adopted the poppy as its Memorial day flower and pledged every cent earned from the sale of the little red poppy toward the relief of disabled soldiers and their families. The soldiers in the veterans' hospitals make the poppies and the Legion and Auxiliary sell them. In memory to the soldiers who died that we might live in peace we buy the poppy.

Announcements for the sale of the poppies will be made from time to time previous to the opening date and Roseburg will go over the top in buying the symbolic flower.

The marriage of Miss Marie Schoenleber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Schoenleber, to Joe V. Watts, of McCammon, Idaho, was solemnized Wednesday evening, May 1, at eight o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, 1585 Charnelton street, Eugene, Oregon.

Pink and white formed an attractive background for the service, the couple standing beneath an arch of flowers. Large baskets of flowers and ferns were used throughout for the decorations.

Miss Cornelia Martin sang "Oh, Promise Me," Miss Frances Metcalf accompanying her.

The bride wore blue georgette and lace and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Ruth Schoenleber, sister of the bride, attended as maid of honor and wore rose georgette and carried sweet peas and forget-me-nots.

Stanton Culp was best man. Ruth Heck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Heck of Roseburg, was flower girl.

Following the ceremony there was an informal reception. The guests, including relatives and friends of the two families, were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. August Heck and daughter, Miss Ruth Heck of Roseburg, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Metcalf, Miss Francis Metcalf, Miss Ruth Metcalf, Herman Metcalf, Mrs. Sarah Martin, Cornelia Martin, Grace Martin, Mrs. Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly, Edward O'Reilly, Mrs. Henry Hook and Stanton Culp.

Miss Schoenleber is a graduate of Roseburg high school, a member of the class of 1927, and resided in this city with her cousin, August Heck.

The regular dinner of the Business and Professional Women's club is this week at the Umpqua.

Members of the Eldean club and their invited guests will enjoy a picnic Thursday evening.

Dr. Luetta Smith entertained her club last night with bridge. Two tables were arranged and the following asked as guests: Mrs. Dave Morgan, Mrs. Dean Hubar, Mrs. Thos. Wharton, Miss May Baldwin, Miss Maggie Baldwin, Miss Ethel Webb, Miss Blanche Reed and the hostess.

A light luncheon was served late in the evening.

Dry Agents Use Girl As Decoy Two Ohio dry agents were suspended after it was found Catherine Gunion, 18-year-old Lancaster, O., high school girl, above, had been used by them as a decoy to buy liquor at suspected places. Miss Gunion and another girl, Frank wine supplied to three prohibition agents, according to U. S. Commissioner Joseph Horner, of Columbus. The girls say they did not know their companions were dry agents.

Earl F. Peacock, center, 21-year-old radio repairman, confessed to strangling to death his estranged wife in New York on the first anniversary of their marriage and then hiding her body and burning it with kerosene in a woods near Greenburg, N. Y. Peacock is shown above in the custody of Police Lieut. Herman Mattes, right, and Captain Silverstein after admitting the "torch murder."

The charred body of a young woman discovered in a woods near Greenburg, N. Y., was later identified as that of pretty Mrs. Dorothy Peacock, above, of New York City. Police confronted her estranged husband, Earl F. Peacock, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., with a kerosene-soaked suit found in his apartment, and obtained his confession that he had strangled his wife to death after an attempt at reconciliation had failed, had hidden her body and later returned to the spot and set it afire.

HESS MURDER CASE STILL FAR FROM SOLUTION

tery. It is now believed that the shot fired into the bedroom, striking a portion of the pane formerly unbroken, was discharged as the couple started out of the house, for the bullet hole is only a few feet from the kitchen door through which they made their exit.

Inquest Started The inquest into the case was started this morning. A coroner's jury was drawn consisting of Grant Wilcox, Al Kent, J. H. Cassidy, H. C. Darby, S. J. Jones and D. R. Shambrook. The jury viewed the body, and then went to the Hess home where they spent the morning going over the evidence there.

It was while this investigation was being made that one of the members of the jury discovered the bullet hole in the wall, clearing up one of the many mysteries connected with the case.

The jury was released from further attendance this afternoon, no time having yet been set for the taking of testimony.

Still completely baffled by the lack of clues or tangible evidence, the officers are at a loss to establish a motive for the crime. They are endeavoring to piece together the many curious angles of the case in an effort to find a working point, and have succeeded, through the reconstruction attempt made so far, in determining the movements of the slayer to some extent, but this still does not lead to the discovery of a motive or any trace of the murderer's identity.

The fact that two shots were fired, but only one bullet accounted for, the one that ended Hess' life, was one of the puzzles of the case, but it has now been satisfactorily shown that the bullet through the window was not effective. Just when it was fired, however, still remains uncertain. Mrs. Hess heard only one shot and that was after they had gone from the house. It is possible, however, that the shot was fired as they attempted to escape from the building.

Officers are still endeavoring to trace ownership of the gun, but have had little success. District Attorney Guy Gordon states that nothing will be left undone in an effort to solve the mystery and the full energy of his office and that of Sheriff Jackson will be focused on the case.

RICHFIELD OIL COMPANY OFFERS 4-CENT MARGIN

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The Richfield Oil company yesterday asked all its retail dealers to subscribe to an agreement whereby the retailers would be guaranteed a margin of 4 cents a gallon profit under all competitive conditions.

Under the proposal, the Richfield company would fix wholesale prices of gasoline to permit its dealers to meet any prevailing competitive retail prices and still have a 4-cent operating margin.

The proposal, signed by C. M. Fuller, president of the Richfield company, expressed the hope that such a course would result in the stabilization of gasoline prices throughout the industry in California. Major oil companies here were contributing to sell gasoline at 16 cents wholesale. The retail price ranged from 16 to 19 cents.

REPAYING KINDNESS

NEW YORK.—Fifteen years ago, Walter W. Thorne, then sitting on top of the business world, befriended Hagob K. Kooradlian, a poor Armenian, by giving him a job as salesman. Thorne later suffered a financial crash. He was in need of aid. Kooradlian had meanwhile prospered, and when the two men met recently, he returned the kindness showed him by Thorne by giving the latter a good job.

on hogs would be increased as would the duty on fresh pork.

No change was recommended in rates on tobacco, sugar beets or other beets, and pig iron, while long staple cotton would be left on the free list.

The bill recommends increased duties on cotton yarn; practically sewing thread and handwork cottons; cotton cloth, and in practically all of the higher grade cottons, were asked.

Cedar lumber was given a 25 per cent ad valorem duty along with shingles. The rate on plywood would be increased from 33-13 to 40 per cent, that on bent wood furniture from 33-13 to 40 per cent, and the existing duty of 35 and 45 per cent upon baskets stained, dyed and painted, would be placed at 50 per cent.

Power to Hoover

President Hoover would be given blanket authority to recognize the present tariff commission by replacing all of its members at his pleasure under the new bill.

An appeal to republicans members not to "gas" themselves by adopting a rule that would prohibit the free consideration of amendments to the bill was made in the house today by Representative Garner of Texas, the democratic leader, shortly after introduction of the measure.

Farm Bill in Doubt

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Discussing the farm relief situation in the senate with President Hoover, Senator Watson, the majority leader, today told the chief executive that a vote on the export debenture plan might be expected tomorrow with the outcome in doubt.

He declared an extremely close vote was expected and declined to predict whether the debenture plan would be stricken from the bill as
