SOCIETY

By MILDRED BYRON
The Missionary society of the First Methodist church will be entertained this afternoon at a business meeting and social afternoon by Mrs. A. C. Marsters.

One of the interesting musical programs of the season was given last night when Mrs. Charles Heinline presented advanced students in a recital. The American Legion ladies quartette assisted with the program appearing in several delightful numbers.

The Eugene Daughters of the Nile club was hostess at luncheon yesterday at the Osburn hotel, honoring a group of Roseburg members of the Daughters of the Nile. The luncheon table was decorated with iris and lilacs, with candles of a harmonizing shade in silver holders. Covers were for 43.

Following the luncheon, bridge was played, and a program presented. Miss Pauline Guthrie sang two solos, accompanied by Miss Lora Buchanan; Miss Marjorie Seibert gave two piano numbers; Mrs. John F. Ketels gave a reading.

The Roseburg guests included: Mrs. Nathan Pollerton, president of the Roseburg club; Mrs. W. H. Gerretsen, Mrs. J. C. Hume, Mrs. F. W. Chase, Mrs. G. A. Bradburn, Mrs. William Bell, Mrs. John Thorne, Mrs. Roy Entler, Mrs. Bert Wells, Mrs. A. J. Young, Mrs. Willard Johnson, Mrs. G. R. Bates and Mrs. Mame Shoemaker.

In charge of the luncheon were Mrs. Paul Kelly, Mrs. Fred C. Waltem, Mrs. W. F. Walker, Mrs. M. M. Davis, and Mrs. H. R. Slattery.

WHITE SOX MANAGER AND ART SHIRES HAVE FIGHT

(Associated Press Licensed Wire)
CHICAGO, May 16.—Art Shires, the White Sox "bad boy," engaged in a flat fight with his boss, Manager Lena Blackburne, in the clubhouse after yesterday's game, and announced forthwith that he was leaving baseball "for good" and would re-enter school to obtain his degree in law. Blackburne, decorated with a discolored eye and a cut ear, took the altercation like the seasoned campaigner he is and announced:

"It was just one of those things that had to happen sooner or later."

The manager added that since Shires is under contract with the White Sox his further legal education will be delayed, at least temporarily.

"He is still the property of the club," Blackburne said, "and will remain so, but in what capacity, I don't know. If Shires gets on the right track he will be reinstated and given another chance to make the grade."

HEAVY SWATFESTS MARK COAST LEAGUE GAMES

(By the Associated Press)
The big ashken stick played the leading role in Pacific Coast league baseball yesterday. All of the league pitchers were hit early and often, with a whole flock of singles, two-baggers and homers resulting.

The outcome was that the Mission Reds, who were defeated Tuesday at Hollywood, gave the Stars a drubbing in return, with a score of 15 to 5. The Los Angeles Angels won their second consecutive battle from the San Francisco Seals 4 to 2, embellished by a home run off "Slugg" Tolson. Bludgeoned. In a free hitting engagement, the Portland Ducks came through in the ninth to win from the Seattle Indians by a score of 7 to 6. Sacramento won from the Oaks 5 to 2.

ENGLISH STOPS 'EM

NEW YORK.—Incorrect use of English, the inability to express themselves, and poor writing are holding back numerous men in the engineering field, according to Dr. Harvey Nathaniel Davis, president of Stevens Institute of Technology. "The engineering field," he says, "is clogged by men whose technical training has been thorough, but who, because of their poor spoken and written English, are unable to move up to positions of leadership."

CUBS AND MACKMEN CONTINUE TO LEAD MAJOR LEAGUERS

(Associated Press Licensed Wire)

John McGraw didn't know what a break he was getting when the Giants put him to bed. After ten pleasantly idle afternoons, he discovered yesterday that he got well too soon. Back at the Polo grounds, he saw the Reds skip away with the remains of a two-game series by a score of 12 to 3.

With Burleigh Grimes in the box for Pittsburgh the Robins found a perfect setting for their eighth straight defeat. Babe Herman's homer off Grimes in the fifth with two Robins on base tied the score at 4 to 4, but the Pirates soon regained command to win eventually by 9 to 4.

The Cubs tommyhawked the Braves by 7 to 4 at Boston and the Cards were punching the Phils by 4 to 1. These two contending forces thus remained on even terms at the head of the National league parade.

Mackmen Keep Lead
The Yankees and the Athletics wound up their respective campaigns in the west with a defeat each and remained in a close grapple for the lead. The Macks head the champions by half a game, but the Browns are only one full game from the top, in a virtual tie with the amazing Tigers.

Harry Hellmann butted himself into insensibility against a ball held in the iron paw of Mickey Cochrane in the ninth inning at Detroit yesterday, but sprang across the plate with the winning run. The score became valid when Mr. Cochrane, amazed, let go of the ball after the umpire had called Hellmann out. This antic won for the Tigers by 6 to 5, giving them two out of three in the Philadelphia series.

Yank Twirlers Maul
The Yankees put the Indians to such extreme in the finale at Cleveland, contending themselves with Lou Gehrig's eighth home run as the tribe pounded George Pipgras and three other Yank slammers to win by 7 to 1.

The Browns shaded the Senators by 5 to 3 in the get-away game, remaining in the thick of the fight, and the White Sox of Chicago nipped their red nosed namesakes from Boston by 8 to 4.

GRAF ZEPPELIN ON 2ND TRIP TO UNITED STATES

erable attention, not all of it sympathetic, hours before the start. He was Professor Gregoire Gourvitch, Russian pianist of Paris, whose greatest regret, he said, was that the grand piano which was being taken as cargo would not be available for him to play among the clouds, high above the Atlantic.

Among other passengers aboard were Alexander R. Von Kryha, Lithuanian inventor, and Lieutenant Commander Vincent A. Clarke of Lakehurst, N. J.

There were various contrivances aboard for passengers' amusement, such as a phonograph with a loud speaker and chess boards. Most of the passengers had cameras and there were several typewriters.

It was expected the zeppelin would be taken from her cage from time to time for entertainment. The ship carried 4,400 pounds of freight in addition to its passengers, this including considerable air mail, a grand piano, a painting and other things. In addition a huge supply of food and fresh water had been placed aboard, to provide rations for a much longer period than that expected to be used in the flight.

Instead of Blau gas for which the ship's motors are best fitted, a supply of Leunau gas was taken along for fuel.

SCIENCE IMPROVES THE GOLFER'S GAME

(By NEA Service)

LONDON.—Duffers who moan about the woeful conditions of the greens and fairways should hearken back a few decades and then thank science for improving their game of golf.

For instance, green and fairway conditions have been improved considerably through the breeding of grasses. Grass that grows in clumps is unsuitable. Grasses with the slender leaves are chosen for the greens and a type that creeps along the ground for the links. One of the best golfing grasses developed by science is "dog bent" grass, which is said to be worth more than its weight in gold.

A specialist in the line of grass study is Prof. Stapledon, a member of the Research Committee endowed by golf clubs. He has devoted years to studying and pedigreeing different strains of grass. Further scientific improvement in the game of golf is the ball itself. One of the first golf balls was a covering of leather stuffed with feathers. Experiments have developed the modern gutta percha ball, product of the "taban" tree of Malaya.

SOCIAL LIGHHOUSE

LONDON.—American visitors to England this year can be assured that they will not get in with the wrong set of people. A social lighthouse has been formed by Cedric Alexander, nephew of Lord Cork, at which all the niceties of English society will be explained. Correct attire, proper publicity and social advice will be dispensed by some of the greatest social heads of England.

FARM REMINDERS

Greenhouse and laboratory trials are being carried on with the soils of different parts of Oregon by the college experiment station to determine effects of fertilizers on the different types. Experiments with soils of Marion and Columbia counties have progressed far enough to show that the poor soils of both these counties respond well to applications of potassium sulfate, barnyard manure and lime. Potassium fertilizers have also been found to increase the yield of fiber flax on muck soils, and to improve the cooking qualities and firmness of potatoes with a corresponding decrease in water content. The effect of fertilizers on quality of milt oil is being investigated.

An average, one colony of bees to every acre of trees is considered sufficient for pollination for orchards in Oregon, says the experiment station, although this is somewhat dependent upon the total amount of blooms out at any one period, which varies with the age of the trees and the number of different varieties, upon the strength of the colony, and upon the probable weather conditions.

A number of the organisms which cause diseases of the potato live for part of the time in old tops and other refuse left in the soil after harvest, says the Oregon experiment station. Whenever those diseases are present, crop rotation is imperative if a disease free product is desired. It is best that potatoes are not grown on the same land more than once every four years.

Harry C. Stearns' History of Roseburg and the State of Oregon

THE journey of Aaron Rose, his family and their effects, was much like the journeys of all early settlers in the West and Northwest. Days of toilsome travel across the prairies, the desert; heart-breaking climbing of the Rockies and the Sierra Nevadas. Day after day of plodding and anticipation; unfaltering determination and the faith that moves mountains as the driving power that kept the little party going. And at last Rose found the place of his dreams, as we shall see next week.

Anywhere the necessity may arise, our service is available—and promptly.

This places the finest of mortuary service within the reach of all.
