READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

It gave poor Clowdy quite a scare as he went soaring through the air upon the back of old king bee. "Hoy, take me down," he cried. "This isn't nice. Oh, not at all. More. But, near as I remember, we have met no harm as yet. And then the Goofygoos said, 'Well, I think I'll stop this little spell of worrying. Just watch me, and then you'll see that big king bee, were around. The bee would dip. He's frightened every one of you, and then whiz up. Poor Clowdy hung on tight. He wished that he had never jumped upon the bee. His poor heart thumped. And then he looked far down and saw the others still in sight. The Goofygoos, down with the rest, looked up and said, 'Well, I'll be best! I'll bet poor Clowdy's the bird just grabbed him in his beak. And then they all soared down to earth, while Clowdy, abouted, "Gee!" (The Goofygoos has a wonderful idea in the next story.) Copyright, 1929, NEA Service, Inc.
