ENCAMPMENT OF I. O. O. F., OREGON, NAMES OFFICERS

MEDFORD, Ore., May 22.—The grand lodge of the Oregon Independent Order of Odd Fellows opened its annual session here today while in other quarters the grand assembly of the association was in session at the same time.

Three hundred Rebekahs took the assembly degree yesterday.

A public reception was held for the two groups last night, with city officials and grand lodge dignitaries participating in the ceremonies. A ball was held, entirely by the appearance of the Pendleton lodge round-up cowboys who fired revolvers and performed far-west stunts.

Election of grand lodge officers was scheduled for today, with the convention closing tomorrow.

Election of officers of the grand encampment was held yesterday. Those named were: George W. New, Portland, grand patriarch; E. J. Pratt, McMinnville, grand high priest; J. M. Williams, grand senior warden; E. E. Sharon, Portland, grand scribe; A. H. Knicht, Canby, grand treasurer.

The following appointive officers were installed: Joseph Schwelzer, Portland, grand marshal; Ray W. Hultberg, Prineville, grand sentinel; J. W. Rodgers, Enterprise, grand outside sentinel; James Shannon, Oregon City, grand representative, two-year term.

FIREMEN LIKED THAT

BAYONNE, N. J.—Edward Farrell, a delirium patient at Bayonne hospital, was responsible for a sleepless night for firemen here recently. He wandered about and pulled a fire alarm, sounding the warning at fire headquarters and repeating it over the local circuit. Six companies were dispatched to the scene of the false alarm.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE!

The Goofygoo still held the bee, and sternly said, "It seems to me that you have scared this bunch enough. I ought to punish you. You never should have flown so high with Cloway on your back. Oh my! It really seems ridiculous, the crazy things you do."

"Please let me go," the bee replied. "I merely took him for a ride. There wasn't any danger, just as long as he clung tight. I told him plainly not to slip, and thought that he'd enjoy the trip. Why do you think that I did wrong, when I know I did right?"

Then Cloway broke right in and said, "Now, Goofygoo, don't lose your head. I'm sure he's telling you the truth. The bee is our good friend. I guess good common sense is lacking on climbing on his fuzzy back. Oh, please release him, Goofygoo, and let this trouble end."

"All right," the funny bird replied. He opened up his mouth real wide, and Mister Bee flew out real quick. "Good-bye," he shouted loud. "I still am friendly toward your bunch. I even have a happy lunch that some day we will meet again." And then he left the crowd.

The Tinies then heard Coppy scream. "Oh, look! I see a dandy stream. Let's find some boards and build a raft. That will be heaps of fun. I think you will agree with me that we'd enjoy a trip to sea." The Goofygoo exclaimed, "That's fine! No sooner said than done."

They found a dozen boards, or more, and dragged them down beside the shore. And then they rolled some big logs out. The work was rather slow. But as the little raft took shape, said Scouty, "Gee, we're in a scrape. When all our work is done, how can we make this queer thing go?"

(The Tinymites find a way to run the raft in the next story.)
