WITH Memorial Day an event of the week, the social world as well as the business world paused in its progress to honor the dead. On Thursday to remember, honor and place a wreath upon the graves of the world's heroes. Throughout the land the day was observed and Roseburg held the usual affairs appropriate to the occasion.

The American Legion Auxiliary sponsored their annual poppy sale two days before Memorial Day and went over the top, with a poppy on every coat lapel and dress front.

Graduates came in for their share of the honors this week with twenty-three receiving their diplomas at the Senior high school last evening. Lovely young girls in their graduation gowns and well groomed young men stepped forth to receive the certificates marking the end of their high school career.

With several delightful events on the calendar for the week and the Umpqua Squaws and Chiefs in readiness to stage the coming Strawberry Carnival, the coming days will be filled with interest.

At the drawing of the monthly prize Mrs. Gertrude Hatfield held the lucky number.

Immediately following the business meeting a program was given with Mrs. Gertrude Hatfield giving the welcoming address, the response being given by Mrs. June Champ of Sutherlin. Mrs. G. W. Conkey pleased with a vocal solo, as did Miss Ruth Hoover at the piano. Mrs. C. W. Hunt was president and gave an entertaining reading. Mrs. Willis, whose rank as president of the A. R. A. is the highest to be conferred in the Rebekah organization, held her listeners attention with a most interesting talk.

Little Miss Madeline Stearns, in an orange and black costume appeared in a dainty dance and presented Mrs. Willis with a gift and flowers from the club. Winning snuff heary applause the little maid was recalled and responded with two other numbers, and received a lovely bouquet from Mrs. Edythe Kelly in behalf of the club. ## Prints and Plain Fabrics Run a Close Race at Belmont

BLUE IS FAVORITE AND LIGHT COLORS SECOND CHOICE; CHIC JACKETS WIN BY LENGTH; CAPES ARE "SCRATCHED."

Mrs. Richard D. Tucker

Mrs. T. Markoe Robertson

Mrs. William Thaw, 3d

Mrs. C. Conde Nast

The variety one can achieve this season was shown in the way blue and white polka dots were worn by several women and so different were the shades and type of costume that they bore no resemblance to each other. Mrs. Lloyd Schultz has a dotted ensemble frock with circular skirt, three-quarter coat and bow trim in dark plain fabric. Mrs. William G. McAdoo's polka dotted suit had a pleated frock with lingerie touches and a flaring three-quarter coat. Mrs. John R. Fell wore a cute short pocket suit of the popular dots, with the frilled jabot of her chiffon blouse outside the coat, and Mrs. William Wright wore a double-tiered dotted frock, with self-tie and her blue hat banded in the dots.

"A Dress-Maker" Frock
One of the cutest prints I saw was sponsored by Mrs. Robert McAdoo—a Frenchy looking little "dress-maker" frock of dith white on white background with white turned down collar just buttoned at the throat and a narrow tie of white, edged in color, that was caught in loops down the front of the frock.

There were fewer cape collars and cape frocks. Some of the smartest looking women at Belmont wore the few there, however.

Nelle Moore Hunsaker to Present Students in Recital at Eugene

The pupils of Nelle Moore Hunsaker will appear in recital Thursday afternoon, June 6, at 3 o'clock at the McMoran-Waughburns recital hall in Eugene. Mrs. Hunsaker has conducted Moore's music studio in this city for the past 15 years and recently moved to Eugene.

On Wednesday afternoon June 5, Mrs. Hunsaker and her daughter, Maxine Moore, will broadcast over KOLE Eugene from the McMoran-Waughburns studio. Mrs. Hunsaker will appear in piano numbers, as well as on the flute and violin.

Roseburg pupils who will attend the recital in Eugene Thursday include Eugenia and Louise Virden, Helen Newland, Leta Clay Hatfield, Ivan Hatfield, June Ann Whipple, Janet Adams, Lois Ann Whipple, Janet Fickensher, Miss Pearl Robinson will be in attendance from Sutherlin.

Ladies Day Holds Usual Interest

Ladies Day at the Country club held its usual interest this week with the ladies mounting out during the morning hours for golf. At luncheon those attending spent the hours in playing bridge. High score was awarded Mrs. A. G. Sutherlin, second, Mrs. J. Shooemaker and third to Mrs. Harris Ellsworth.

Rebekahs Hold Meeting and Initiation

An interesting session was enjoyed on Tuesday evening by the Roseburg Rebekah lodge. A pot luck supper was a feature of the evening with Mrs. Bertha Willis, president of the A. R. A. as honor guest.

Two candidates were initiated by the degree staff under the leadership of Mrs. J. B. Bailey. The candidates were Miss Ruth Hoover, a popular member of this year's graduating class, and Mrs. Emma Donck.

The Catholic Ladies will meet on Thursday afternoon of the coming week at the Parish hall. Mrs. A. T. Rapta will be the hostess for the afternoon.

The Elaritz jacket has its sponsors, too. Iris Selzer, strolling with her famous sportsman father, Norrie Selzer, wore a cute quilted one of light blue over a silk frock. Monograms are being placed now down low on one's blouse, forming a triangular, circular or square motif right above the belt in front. Eleanor Langley has hers worked out in silver, black and white on a white overblouse she wears with her black suit.

Colored Shoes Win Favor by Day
Colored shoes are in evidence everywhere now in the daytime, not only at the races where greens, reds, blues and even yellows are seen, but on Park Avenue as well. Weddings, as well as races, are upon the smart crowd. Ruth Kieckaby introduced the lace train to a satin gown at her wedding to Louis J. Barnard, the other day. The train, incidentally, was a gorgeous piece of rose point that mother's three generations of her family had used. Her matron of honor, Mrs. Randolph Brandt, Jr., was almost as charming looking as the bride in a lovely off-white tulle over lace creation with a big horsehair hat with satin streamers of peach and green and carrying an armful of delphinium, African daisies and roses.

Class Day Exercises Given Wednesday
One of the interesting features of Commencement week was the Class Day program held on Wednesday evening at the senior high school auditorium. Special music and a program were arranged under the supervision of Miss Kate Buchanan and Miss Helen Casey, class advisor. The following program was presented:

Baby Parade to Be Feature of Carnival

are rapidly developing. Anyone having a baby to enter is requested to call either of the ladies in charge.

The Squaws will also serve strawberries on Friday and Saturday as is usual during the carnival. The Strawberry Carnival is an annual affair and is much looked forward to event locally and in outside communities as well. Starting on June 3 and ending June 5 many visitors will attend the carnival and enjoy the outside talent brought here for the entertainment of the public.

Roseburg Organizations Observe Memorial Day
Memorial Day brought to this city on Thursday its deeper and richer memories, and was a reminder of the American dead—the soldiers and sailors who gave all for their country. The dead have not died in vain, nor have the living lost sight of the sacrifice made. If the spirit displayed in this city is evidence, patriotic organizations joined with the city in appropriate exercises on Thursday. A parade formed at nine o'clock led by the band. Close behind marched the boys club in khaki, followed by members of the G. A. R. Spanish-American war veterans and veterans of the Boy Scouts, followed by patriotic women's organizations.

Marching to the Oak street bridge an impressive ceremony was enacted, with honor being done the sailor dead. Wreaths were flung upon the water in memory of those who gave their life at sea. At the oak tree near the cemetery the marchers stopped and the following program was given:

"America"—by the band and audience.
Invocation—Chaplain Clarence Miller.
General Logan's Orders of the Day—J. V. Linn.
Selection—Roseburg Municipal Band.
Vocal solo—Mrs. Richard Busch.
Address—Hon. James W. Mott, Salem.
Dedication—Rev. Charles A. Edwards.
"Star Spangled Banner"—Band and audience.

Thimble Club Enjoys Social Evening
Members of the Neighbors of Woodcraft Thimble club were entertained on Monday evening when Misses Esther Rice, Maude Jennings and Josephine Jennings acted as joint hostesses. The early hours of the evening were spent at a business meeting followed by an hour of games and needlework. Prizes in games were awarded Mrs. I. T. Whitney and Mrs. Elsie McKomas. Late in the evening a dainty luncheon was served to twenty members and invited guests.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Bertha Taylor on Miller street with Mrs. Gwen Simons entertaining with Mrs. Taylor.

The Woman's Day

BY ALLENE SUMNER

A more than pungent breath of old ten-twenty-thirty "melter-drammer" lurks in the day-by-day Landbergh-Morrow headlines. Hardy does one edition shriek that "Blackmailers Threaten Lindy and Bride-to-Be," than the next informs us that "Lindy Files to Anne's Sister's Aid," and we are told that even relatively inconspicuous little Constance Morrow, threatened by blackmailers, is snatched away by her famous brother-in-law to be, ensconced in his plane and hurried away to the Morrow's sylvan home in Maine.

NEED A TRAP DOOR
Here Lindy and Anne and the rest of the famous family evade reporters and cameramen by taking to the air, et al. All we need now is a subterranean passage or so and some neat disguises in which the famous two may emerge in their goings and comings.

And here's wagering that just everybody is having the swellest kind of time. Perhaps not Lindy herself, for he's had his dose of nooriety. But it's not at all unpleasant to the taste of those who aren't yet satiated by it. Here's wagering that Constance, at least, can hardly wait to get back to school to tell the other kids all the thrills.

"WHEN YOUR DADDY AND I"
And here's wagering that in a handful of years Mrs. Anne Lindbergh won't be too proud to tell the little Lindies of the wild days when their papa and mamma had it so tough with all the "wags" looking at them. One of the most basic human instincts is the urge to rise above the unknown mass, and if marriage to a world celebrity does it, nobody's going to question the way it came about very much. To be sure, we must pretend that it's hard to take.

"HER" FAMILY
By the way, Lindy seems to be taking to the water and wishes of his new in-law family just as most all young husbands learn how to

GENE SUED

Speaking of famous romances, here's Gene Tunney confronted with a $50,000 bench of promise case brought by one Mrs. Katherine King rogarty of New York, who claims that hard-hitting Gene asked her to marry him in June, 1925, only to later wed another. Tunney has denied the charge.

Wives of famous and notorious men must learn how to handle this sort of thing, for it's as frequent as raspberries on raspberry bushes. Nothing like a name to attract all the fanatics and crooks in the world.

To be sure, occasionally, even the great and notorious are found to be humanly vulnerable, and very just accusations have been made against them—generally successfully combated with the aid of money which the great almost invariably have.

PEANUT WHO!

Bill Williams, who is pushing a peanut up Pike's Peak with his nose, and who is much annoyed by the squirrels grabbing all his race ammunition, makes us halt and wonder if any woman has ever been so astute.

All the flag pole perchers and "Most Egg" or "Most Coffee" eaters and drinks seem to have been male. Yes, we've had our "first mother" channel swimmers and our girl aviation endurance record champions, but these pursuits can't compare in infantry with a peanut pusher going up a mountain. If you can remember any correspondingly goofy female exploit, please wire at once.

At that, there must be one in human annals somewhere, as infantry has never seemed to have endured a monopoly by one sex only.

Two Delightful Luncheons Given in Laurelwood

Misses W. R. Brown, H. D. Harris and A. G. McMillan entertained jointly on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week with bridge and needlework, at the home of Mrs. W. R. Brown in Laurelwood. A one o'clock luncheon was served each day. The tables were lovely with yellow roses combining with yellow and green place cards in carrying out the color motif. A profusion of roses, lilies and daisies were used about the rooms.

Assisting the hostesses on Tuesday were Mrs. Carl B. Neal, Mrs. Victor Short and Mrs. F. E. Hartung. Honors at bridge were received by Mrs. Jack Wharton and Mrs. Paul Bubar, sewing Mrs. Ira B. Riddle.

On Wednesday assisting the hostesses were Mrs. Lee Wells, Mrs. Joe Denn and Mrs. C. E. Hoffman of Eugene. Honors at cards went to Mrs. Clay Darby and Mrs. William Strohmeier, the sewing prize to Mrs. George Quine.

On Tuesday afternoon covers were laid at luncheon for 36 guests, and on Wednesday 34 were asked for the afternoon.
