WILLIAM HAINES
William Haines, of football, baseball and polo fame on the screen, invades another sport and becomes a professional boxer in 'The Duke Steps Out,' his latest romance, which will be at the Antlers Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday with dialogue and talking sequences. It is a vivid filmization of the Lucian Cary Saturday Evening Post story, with Haines as the fighter who goes to college to please his sweetheart. His troubles furnish comedy and his fights, thrills. Both serve as a background for a pretty love story. Joan Crawford is the heroine, and the cast, directed by James Cruze, includes Karl Dane, Tenen Holtz, Eddie Nugent, Delmer Daves, Herbert Prior and others of note.

Carr while he was still in college; the leading role is played by Alice White, youngest of screen stars and directed by Morty LeRoy, Hollywood's youngest director. It's a First National Vitaphone picture.

NEWLAND FIRM IS TO HANDLE PLYMOUTH LINE

J. O. Newland and Son, automobile dealers in Douglas county for nearly 14 years, have just been appointed dealers for Plymouth Motor Corporation, manufacturers of a low-priced, full-sized automobile which is built in roadsters, coupes, touring, 2-door and 4-door sedans. Prices range from $655 to $695 on all standard models at the factory. "There is such a demand for a low-priced car with full equipment, of full size and economical operation that we have decided to handle the Plymouth line in connection with our Dodge line," said J. O. Newland today. "Anyone planning the purchase of a new low-priced car should not overlook the Plymouth, which has been developed from the Chrysler '52' and '58'."

determine which are faithful criteria and which are gratuitous. "The case has a 'poker-faced' aspect, but I believe that a solution will be reached in a reasonable length of time, although immediate results probably are not to be expected. Local Officers Commended "Your local officers have handled the case with skill and have shown the proper caution towards preservation of evidence. They have done everything within their power towards the solution of the case and I am confident that the problem will eventually be solved." Mr. Heinrich has made a most complete examination at the Hess home, finishing his work there this afternoon. The house was placed under guard immediately after the shooting, and has been kept under strict surveillance since that date, and this action was commended by the criminologist as giving him an opportunity to make his examination before anything had been altered or changed. The guard will be removed tonight, and Mrs. Hess will be allowed to return to the home and resume control of it. Science Aids Crime Solution "I find wherever I go that people look upon my work in an entirely wrong attitude," Mr. Heinrich said. "I am looked upon as being a person able through some occult sense to make an examination at the scene of a crime, and immediately point out the guilty party. "I am a chemist and in my work apply the arts of chemistry and physics in the study of evidence in connection with the crime that has been committed. The usual program is to go upon the scene and study the situation with a view of determining exactly what happened and how it happened and with these facts secured to solve the question of who committed the crime and why. "My principal duty in all cases is to help the investigating officers to go straight on their evidence and to help them secure evidence that they might otherwise overlook, because of the lack of laboratory equipment with which to determine the minute factors that enter into such a case. "As an aid in my work I maintain a complete chemical and physical laboratory together with such optical instruments as may be needed. "Through these agencies it is possible to determine factors that have an important bearing on cases where crime has been committed.

ted, that otherwise might escape detection, thereby enabling the officers to go straight on the evidence that they secure." D'Autremont Case Solved The value of science in solution of crime was ably proved in the case of the most sensational murders ever committed in southern Oregon. In that case Mr. Heinrich in examining a pair of overalls found where the men who committed the crime had been hiding, discovered a hair which gave him the age, complexion and general appearance of the slayer. Debris and lint examined under a microscope indicated the previous employment of the man, while a tiny scrap of paper, examined under a powerful glass, gave enough of the name to establish a clue upon which the officers were able to unravel the crime and finally bring about the arrest and conviction of the slayer. Murder cases, Mr. Heinrich states, form the least interesting part of his work. While they have attracted more attention, yet cases involving forgeries, will alterations and other such crimes often offer more difficult problems, and form the bulk of the work he is called upon to do. Mr. Heinrich was selected by the county officers to aid in the local case because of the excellent success that he has had in solution of some of the most important crimes committed on the coast. He is recognized as one of the leading consulting criminologists on the coast and has been made a member of the faculty of the University of California in the department of criminology. Hess Case Baffling The Hess murder case in which he is now involved is one of the most baffling Roseburg has known in many years. G. W. Hess, a janitor at the Roseburg federal building, was killed in the early morning on May 4. According to the information given the officers by his wife, the crime was awakened about 1 o'clock by the crashing of the glass in their bedroom window, as a shot was fired through the pane. A voice outside commanded them to turn on a light, and threatened them with instant death as they hesitated. After turning on the light they attempted to flee from the house, and were met outside the kitchen door by the slayer who shot Mr. Hess through the heart, killing him instantly. The woman, who had secured a view of a masked face at the window, ran to the home of a neighbor, and sent in a call to the local officers. Tracks were found outside the window in soft ground, and while there were plenty of clues to indicate the movements of the slayer the officers have so far been unable to secure anything that might aid in establishing identity, and in this connection have secured the aid of the criminologist who will use his special equipment in his effort to locate the person who fired the shots and obtain the motive for the crime. Mr. Heinrich expects to conclude his investigation here within a

SENATORS DOWN MISSIONS; DUCKS LOSE TO 'FRISCO

(By the Associated Press) Pacific Coast league pitchers yesterday brought to an end an orgy of heavy hitting that had prevailed for weeks. Sacramento's Senators defeated the Mission Reds at Recreation park in a hard fought struggle. Finished pitching by Keating enabled the Solons to win. Until the ninth inning the Missions had made only one run off Keating, a runner by Hotman. However, the Senators pecked Ernie Nevers for seven tallies. Frank Shellenback spitballed the heavy hitting Oakland batters into submission and Hollywood carried off the victory 8 to 3. The Stars drove Charley Jeffcoat to the showers in the seventh and completed a five run rally off the offerings of Kasich. Double-hits and plays-carried San Francisco to a 4 to 3 triumph over Portland in the northern city. Blanked for three innings by Curtis Fullerton, the Seals bunched six of nine bingles in the fourth and fifth innings to tie and go into the lead. Big Ed Coleman led the attack for the Seals, getting three hits in four times. Darkness again stopped the Los Angeles and Seattle conflict in the northern metropolis in a 4-4 tie, just as on the preceding day. The two teams struggled through fourteen innings in an effort to break the deadlock. The soil of Siberia is sometimes frozen to the depth of 65 feet.

SHERIFF'S JURY HEARS FIRST CASE IN NEW COURTHOUSE

The first lawsuit in the new court house was heard today, with Sheriff Jackson presiding as judge. The case is in the nature of a hearing regarding the title to property held on attachment. The Clarion Savings bank of Clarion, Iowa, attached some cattle claimed by the bank to belong to W. L. Topping, whose note, the bank claims to hold. Mrs. Topping claims title to the cattle and is opposing the attachment. A sheriff's jury was empaneled to hear the evidence and determine title. Attorney Hallmark appears for the bank and Attorney J. H. Austin of Reedsport for the claimants, who are residents of the Loon lake district. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed today in the justice court at Oakland on John Schmidt, who was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Wm. Boone on a charge of drunkenness. The case was heard at Oakland because of the absence of Justice of the Peace Hopkins.
