MANIAC TAKES OWN LIFE AFTER TRIPLE KILLING

window and Murphy fell badly wounded.

A second later Gus Karos, who lived three doors away from the Preuss home, and John Chernzak, another neighbor, both attracted by the shooting, met where Murphy had fallen. Karos had rushed out to meet his blind brother-in-law, Rudolph Krusche, who had been to a nearby store and was expected home.

Another shot and Chernzak, who was standing not 10 feet from the window, fell dead. Karos jumped to shield with his body his brother-in-law who was just passing the house. As he did so the fifth shell in Preuss' gun was discharged and struck him in the back.

Preuss, in a fury, pressed the trigger again and the hammer fell on an empty chamber. Police believe that the only reason Krusche the blind man was not numbered among the victims.

Foaming Mouth Warns

The slayer a second later rushed out of the rear door of his home, stood cursing the bodies of Conley and Harberg, and then fled into an alley after taking the policeman's shotgun, and it is believed, his revolver.

In the alley, Preuss met Frank Vodicka, who was running toward the scene of the shooting. Vodicka turned and ran into a narrow passageway when he saw Preuss, foaming at the mouth and aiming the shotgun pointblank at him. Preuss fired one shell, then threw the weapon at Vodicka as the latter fled. The drink crazed man was seen to have taken a pistol from his belt, wave it wildly and run down the alley. That was the last seen of him.

Mrs. Rose Preuss, the slayer's wife, was found in the home of a neighbor, where she had taken refuge when he husband fired two shots at her before the police arrived.

Physicians said Karos had been wounded 16 times and that he probably would die.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

"Good-bye there, whale," one Tiny cried. "Down in the sea you now can hide. We Tinies have deserted you, and it just serves you right. You splashed, and we're soaked through and through. It was a thoughtless thing to do." And then they saw the monstrous whale swim quickly out of sight.

This left their raft upon the sea and Clowny said, "Well, mercy me, we now can go back to our raft and float around some more." "Oh, no," exclaimed the Goofygoo. "That's not the wisest thing to do. You'd better stick to me, and I will take you to some shore."

So, on they flew, up through the air. The Tinies didn't seem to care just where the bird was taking them. They knew they'd be all right. Said Coppy, "I am getting fagged. You will admit, this being dragged right through the air is tiresome. I wish land would come in sight."

"Don't worry," said the Goofygoo. "I sorta wish the same thing, too. But I feel sure it won't be long till we will see some trees. Where there are trees, there must be land. And where there's land we all can stand. Be patient till I have a chance to settle down with ease."

"Oh, look," cried Clowny. "Hear that hum? A lot of big black birds have come. They stir the air like everything, and make it seem to roar. And now they're heading right our way. Perhaps they only want to play, but everyone looks rather mad. I wonder what that's for."

And then the birds swooped very near, and filled the Tinymites with fear. "Oh, gee! They're trying to peck at us," the rest heard Carpy screech. Then Clowny said, "They'll shortly see that they can't pull that trick on me." He kicked his two feet wildly, and this kept them out of reach.

(The Tinymites find a place to land in the next story.)
