News Briefs

LE BOURGET, France, June 8.—Deserted in an airplane, Lieutenant Ivonnet, observer who knows nothing of piloting, is all wrapped up about it, but not hunched up. His pilot, Lieutenant Celler, fell out while stunting and parachuted to the ground. Ivonnet did something or other to the dual control apparatus that brought the plane down in a creek, smashing it, but he saved himself. Then he said a plenty to Celler.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 8.—At home a week from tonight you can hear the roar of the famous falls. It will be on the WEAF chain, beginning at 8 p. m., eastern standard time.

WARSAW, June 8.—Two hundred Jewish widows in Poland are unable to marry because their brothers-in-law in the United States refuse to return and go through a ceremony enabling the widows to re-marry whom they choose. Efforts are being made for the widows to obtain permission to visit their brothers-in-law.

FARMING SEASON IS DELAYED BY FREAKISH WEATHER

Farm work this spring has been greatly handicapped by unusual weather conditions, and although this may not result in a short or unproductive season it may cause some shift in crop seasons, says the bureau of agricultural economics, U. S. department of agriculture in its June 1 report on the agricultural situation.

Winter grain, grass and fruit growth were given an early start by the warm weather during latter March, but this has been followed by two months of unusually cold, rainy weather which has held up farm work and now leaves the later crops perhaps ten days behind normal schedule.

Ordinarily there is ample time in advance of haying and wheat harvest in June to get corn, potatoes, cotton, and the other tillage crops in good growing conditions, but cultivation this year will tread close on the heels of harvest, the bureau says. As harvest time approaches the wheat situation also seems large in the agricultural picture.

Last year at this time, according to the bureau, the wheat fields were struggling to make up the damage done by a hard winter, and part of the Mississippi river a large acreage had been abandoned. This year the grain came through in better shape than usual. The rains have given it a heavy root and top growth, although a dense growth of straw does not always result in large yields of grain.

The surplus of wheat in exporting countries, as of July 1, is equally estimated by the bureau as likely to be around 125,000,000 bushels more than a year ago, with most of the increase in the United States. Stocks, however, are moving quite rapidly and for the season ahead it is believed to be hardly probable that the world will have general surplus of wheat as large as in the last two years.

The hay situation also looks rather different from last season, the bureau says. At this time a year ago, meadows throughout the eastern states showed such winter damage that it was thought western hay would have to be shipped east in large volume to meet the deficit, though grass later developed into about an average crop. This spring the rains have given meadows a long start, and if June proves favorable, an ample hay crop is expected. Present reports indicate heavy yields of alfalfa and early clover, although the bad weather has interfered with haying operations.

The main facts in the early potato situation just now, says the bureau, are the reduction of fully one-fourth in acreage, the early start of the shipping season, and the lighter yields indicated from the first reports. This means a higher production volume to meet the longer time, thus giving the earlier sections a chance to get out of the way of shipping sections next in line.

If these features continue as the centers move northward, it is pointed out, the potato season will be more orderly than in 1928, there will be less overloading of markets, and a smoother shifting from early potatoes to the late crop supply may be expected. Liberal supplies of berries, cantaloupes, cabbage and lettuce are expected during June, but plantings of watermelons, tomatoes, and onions for the early summer period have been reduced. Early peaches and summer apples are expected to be in lighter supply than last year.

FAILS TO GRADUATE. STUDENT ENDS LIFE INDIANAPOLIS, June 7.—Charles Thomas, 19, a senior at Arsenal technical high school here, committed suicide today because he was not to graduate this year. The boy died from poison he obtained from the school laboratory. Thomas came here with his parents several months ago from Oakland, California. In an exchange of credits it was found necessary for him to attend one more semester before he could be graduated.

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE!

The scarecrow sat and smiled a bit. Said he, "I'll be feeling fit. You Tinykins are real nice lads to fix me up like this. I was so sick it made me weak. Why, it was hard for me to speak. Now, everything will be all right, if nothing goes amiss."

"Don't worry over things like that, 'cause what we do will not fall flat," said Scoury, as he worked away. "You soon will be all set. Just spread a smile upon your face, 'cause that is just the proper place for cheerfulness. It never pays, you know, to sit and fret."

And so the whole bunch worked away, until the worked seemed just like play. They stuffed the funny scarecrow just as fast as they could stuff. His funny legs grew very fat. Then Clowzy jumped and said, "How's that? Please tell us all to stop our work when you have had enough."

"You bet I will," the scarecrow cried. And after while he calmly alighed. "Now I'm all right. Just help me! I'll be that I can stand." And sure enough, it was a treat to see him stand upon his feet. The Tines all had helped him up. They gladly lent a hand.

"Now, try to walk," one Tiny said. "Don't be afraid. Go right ahead!" The scarecrow then took one slow step and found he was all right. He walked a bit and then he ran, and shouted, "I'm a brand new man!" To show appreciation then, he thanked each Tinykin.

Then Clowzy said, "What shall we do? We'd like to go along with the scarecrow." "All right," replied the scarecrow. "I'll gladly lead the way. Out through the cornfield we will hike. 'Twill lead to some place, by and by. We'll take our own sweet time, lads, and this trip will just be play."
