ROSEBURG, OREGON, TUESDAY, JUNE 11, 1929.

OUR PRUNE CROP IS GOOD
DUE mostly to peculiar and disastrous weather conditions in other prune growing centers, notably in the Santa Clara valley of California, the prune growers in the Umpqua Valley are in a most fortunate position.

Two warnings are timely right now. In the first place, conditions being as they are, there is absolutely no necessity for any grower to sell his crop now.

The second warning is not really a warning but a hope; a hope that prune prices will not go too high. Prunes are a common fruit, not a luxury, and at fair and reasonable prices are consumed in great quantities.

Few things are more terrifying, or dangerous, than a mob of excited human beings who have temporarily lost their heads. When several thousand people tried to hurry out of the bleachers in the Yankee Stadium at New York the other day because of a sudden shower, they seem to have transformed themselves into such a mob.

There is nothing surprising in President Hoover's decision that the fifteen cruisers authorized by congress shall be built as planned. Mr. Hoover has made it plain all along that there must be armaments for defense and nothing was subtracted from his position in this regard by his Memorial day speech in which he voiced the sentiment that the real hope of peace in the world lies in international understandings and mutual adherence to the spirit of the Kellogg pact.

PROF. MOON GOES A-FISHIN'
The Associated Press brought this very human story from New York:
A professor at Columbia University went fishing while one hundred students awaited an examination for bachelor degrees.

OUT OUR WAY

The Office Cat

He was an observant little chap. "Pa," he said, "Uncle Joe is going to be married Friday, isn't he?"

Second Burglar—Don't let that worry you. He never fetches for less than a million dollars.

It's all right to keep an open mind, but it shouldn't be kept so wide open that nothing will stay in it.

"Well little man, and what would you like to be when you grow up?"

The flower of youth uses the fount of old age to get college bread.
