had not left their car. They had a gun in the car, but stated they had left it in the car in the early afternoon and had carried the weapon to shoot squirrels.

Mr. Bynon, the state's witness in rebuttal, claimed that there was only one car stopped on the highway, although several went by, and that the machine of the defendants was not out of his sight, and that he saw the two men come out of the brush and followed them down the road.

The defense, on the other hand, pointed out that there were two bullet holes in the deer, both apparent made by different sized guns, while the defendants had only one gun.

The jury, after hearing the testimony, returned a verdict of guilty, and Judge Hopkins imposed fines of $250 each upon the two men. Attorney L. B. Riddle, defending the men, however, immediately filed notice that the case would be appealed.

The state's case was handled by District Attorney Guy Gordon.

Other desirable kinds mostly $11 to $11.75. Off grades down to $9 and under. Bulk desirable cows and heifers $9 to $10.95. Others $8.75 down to $6 and below. Bulls $8 to $9.50. Majority $8.50 up. Bulk light vealers $13 to $14.50. Small lots outstanding quality Monday at $15. Calves $12.50 down. Heaves and thins $7.50.

Over and under weights $11.50 down. Packing cows mostly $8.50 to $9. Bulk slaughter pigs $11 to $11.25. Bulk desirable feeder pigs $11.50 to $12.

Adams lambs Monday, with fair proportion of common to medium, brought $13.50 without sorting. This class not now quoted above $13. Best valley lambs offered brought $12.50, with off grades down to $9 to $10. Bulk trucked in lambs $10 to $11. Yearlings not now quoted above $9. Bulk of arrivals selling at $7.50 to $8.50. Ewes mostly $5 down. Culls down to $2 and below.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 15.—Strawberry prices were the most confusing factors in the present market situation. A big wholesale house Saturday quoted berries from $1 to $1.50 a crate, depending on quality, and reported the fruit to be unusually scarce at these figures. Yet berries could be purchased cheaper at retail stands. Some of these were quoted at 4 and five boxes for 25 cents.

The difference in price is said to be accounted for by the wide variance in quality. Berry supplies were well cleaned up Friday and Saturday and did not promise abundant replenishment. If Sunday brings warm sunshine, it was expected that Monday will see the market loaded with berries of good quality.

Cantaloupes are scarce for the weekend. Most of the California output is said to be going to the east. One carload was expected Saturday, but this will be probably cleaned up by Monday morning.

Eggs and butter were unchanged. Fresh meats and poultry were steady in face of the week-end demand.

SAN MATEO, Cal., June 14.—Joseph Gordon, 40, city councilman and well known California attorney, shot and killed himself in the attic of his home here yesterday. He had been suffering from a nervous breakdown.

BABYLON, N. Y., June 14.—Minor Cooper Keith, capitalist, known as the "banana king," died at his home today, aged 81. He was the founder of the United Fruit company.

FRENCH PLANE CROSSES BUT IS SHORT OF GOAL

He found no one to talk to among the Spaniards who crowded around and seemed lost at the faze made over him in the strange language. Assolant explained that he was not discovered until the plane was in full flight, when they decided against turning back to put him off.

The plane was not damaged in landing. It needed only fuel and a new "starter" for the landing gear in order to take off and continue its flight. The original "starter" they had jettisoned on the course of their flight in order to lighten the plane after they discovered Schröder aboard.

This little town, containing but a few hundred people and decades ago the rendezvous of the Spanish royal family who came here for sea bathing, gave the aviators a tumultuous welcome, affording them their first taste of hero worship.

16th Crossing

The landing of the Yellow Bird here completed the 16th crossing of the Atlantic in a heavier than air machine, and the eighth eastward crossing. There has been but one westward crossing of the North Atlantic by an airplane, although dirigibles have crossed five times.

There was a noteworthy coincidence in the flight's completion yesterday, June 14, 1929, which was the tenth anniversary of the completion of the first nonstop transatlantic flight from St. Johns, Newfoundland, to Clifden, Ireland, on June 14, 1919, by Captain John Alcock and Lieutenant Arthur W. Brown, British officers. They flew a Vickers Vimy bomber and made the 1900 miles in 16 hours and 12 minutes.

The Yellow Bird landed its radiator was practically dry and there were but a few drops of gasoline left in the tank. Had it not been for sighting the beach here they might have continued a few miles further and had to attempt a forced landing in the fast gathering dark at a locality totally unfit for the purpose.

Indignation at First

When Le Prieux, when asked what the effect of the young stowaway's appearance before the others in the plane had been, answered more or less jokingly: "At first our indignation was so great we started to open the door and throw him into space but we finally permitted him to continue with us, although we knew the difficulty the excess weight would cause."

LePrieux said that they encountered the most surprising weather conditions with rain, cold, and once a storm of hurricane proportions. The temperature, he said, was often below zero (centigrade), necessitating flying much lower than they would have otherwise chosen to do.

Cupid Plays Role

COMILLAS, Santander, Spain, June 15.—The first thought of Jean Assolant, pilot of the Yellow Bird, yesterday was to arrange gasoline and water for continuation of the flight to Le Bourget.

His second thought was his bride of four days, the former Pauline Parker, New York show girl, whom he married after 13 days' courtship in Maine. He found himself a seat and wrote a message to her.

He turned then and remarked, "Thirteen was always a lucky number for me. I married Pauline Parker after a 13-day courtship and I landed in Europe on the 13th day of the month."

He apparently had forgotten that he had spent a day enroute and that it was now June 14th.

Another romance rode on the wings of the Yellow Bird, for Rene Le Fevre, the 24-year-old navigator, was flying toward his marriage to Mlle. Renee Haligant, a 19-year-old French girl, to whom he became engaged just before the fliers came to this country.

Bride to Follow

NEW YORK, June 15.—Mrs. Jean Assolant, the bride of five days whom the pilot of the Yellow Bird left on the beach at Old Orchard, Me., was preparing today to sail for Paris to rejoin her husband.

The 22-year-old wife, who was Pauline Parker, a New York chorus girl, expressed her joy and relief at the news the fliers had landed safely in Spain.

Mrs. Assolant said some one had suggested that she stowaway in the plane, but added that she would not have thought of such a thing as it would have endangered the lives of the crew.

She said the number "13" apparently was lucky for both of them and pointed out that in addition to the fact that the plane took off on the 13th day of the month, there were 13 letters in her name.

25,000-Year Records of American People

Florida Pitts Yield Evidence of Prehistoric Man, Animals and Arrow Heads.

MELBOURNE, Fla., June 14.—Man has lived for at least 25,000 years on the North American continent.

A new birthday, set back to the days of fantastic creatures that no longer exists, has been figured out by Dr. J. W. Gidley, of the Smithsonian Institution on the basis of new finds near here.

An ancient stone scraper, found by himself, and a crude arrow head, located beneath a mastodon bone by Charles P. Cingleton, are considered added proof of a very early existence of man.

The rules of an ancient stone age culture were uncovered in the same earth layer that contained bones of extinct animals known to have lived that long ago. They could not have been buried by a race of a later time, according to Dr. Gidley.

The discoveries are another link in the scientific proof that many retrace the claims of anthropologists on the North American continent occurred less than 6,000 years ago.

The increased age of American man little bridges the gap with European man, however, for existence in the old world has been traced to 500,000 years ago.

Dr. Gidley also uncovered a vast collection of extinct animals. The remains will be studied for their bearing on the age of the deposits.

His findings included bones of bears of a new, extinct species, camels, three horses of extinct type, bison of an extinct, longhorned type, tapirs, peccaries, an armadillo, a Sabre-tooth tiger, other animals of the cat tribe, several species of dogs, and various small rodents.

All of the animal remains were found in a layer of earth underlying a swamp deposit. The finds were in the mid-portion and so situated that they could not have worked their way down from an upper layer, according to Dr. Gidley.

The stratum of earth is believed to have been laid down in Pleistocene times, although the exact phase of that period may only be worked out by studies of its bones and comparison with similar structures in other parts of the country.

nor's life if he "identified" him. "You may be all right for a while, you—", but wherever you are when I get out of this, I'll kill you sure," officers reported him as saying.

Mob Is Outwitted.
Fearing for the lives of their prisoners, officers removed them to Lewiston, 30 miles away. Upon their arrival at the county jail, 1500 citizens, many of them with guns in their hands, were swarming around the entrance. By a ruse the officers spirited the quietest through the back door, thus preventing possible violence, they said.

The abduction occurred in Clearwater county and it was felt that the fellow citizens at Orofino might attempt to storm the wooden structure used as a jail if the men were held there for trial.

Norman Much Wanted.
Once in jail all appeared willing to confess and readily agreed to committees that framed tariff legislation.

The Texan predicted that in the event the Borah resolution passed the ultimate result would be adjournment of congress without tariff readjustment.

Garner Predicts

The Borah resolution was pointed to today by Representative Garner, of Texas, the democratic leader, as the natural reaction of the west to what he termed control by the east of the two congressional
