FOREST SERVICE EMPLOYEES ATTEND DISTRICT SCHOOLS

Instruction Being Given at Tiller and Wolf Creek Prior to Fire Season.

Neighboring Forests Send Visitors to Attend the Umpqua Training Courses.

The annual school for the protection forces of the South Umpqua and Diamond lake districts of the Umpqua national forest is now in progress this week at Tiller. The school started yesterday morning and continues over tomorrow.

The school for the North Umpqua and Bohemia districts will be held at Wolf Creek on the 25th, 26th and 27th.

These schools are held annually prior to the fire season, which opens July 1 and are for the purpose of instructing and drilling all employees in their work, getting them acquainted with the various instruments and equipment, and giving instructions in methods and reports.

The group of approximately 30 employees was divided into four squads at the Tiller school yesterday. There were four instructors, G. C. Houser, central dispatcher, Donald Matthews, assistant forest supervisor; Charles Thurston and Hugh Ritter, district rangers. Lesson periods were divided into one hour each and the squads went from class to class, getting eight different courses during the day.

One class was devoted to study of the equipment issued the various employees, the men being instructed in the use of each tool, the purpose of each piece of equipment, methods of packing, supplies to be taken on one, two or three-day trips, knapsacks, etc.

Another class took up building and maintaining telephone lines, installation and use of permanent and emergency telephone apparatus and other instruction regarding communication.

The third class studied law enforcement, public relations and reports, particularly dealing with the issuance of camp fire permits. Forest employees, after July 1, will voluntarily subscribe to the smoker's code, which prohibits all smoking while traveling. Employees will smoke only when in camp, or else while stopped along some stream, trail or road where there is no danger of fire. They will not indulge in smoking while on duty, or while traveling through the woods.

In many places throughout the country, it is reported, many sportsmen are voluntarily assuming the same obligation. The forest service is not making any restrictions on smokers, other than urging the precaution in throwing away matches, butts and ashes, but is setting an example that many people who go into the woods are following of their own free will, thereby lessening fire danger.

Map Reading Taught
The fourth class was devoted to map work, the employees being taught how to read maps, and particularly to quickly locate any given spot upon its description of township, range and section.

There were two divisions to each class, one in the morning and another in the afternoon, so that there were eight instruction periods for each squad during the day.

The school is held at the Tiller station, where the employees are camped out for the three-day period. Meals are served at a camp kitchen in charge of Rebo Matthews of Roseburg.

A. G. J. has technical assistant of the Siskiyou forest, superintendent of the flying squad; Wm. Jones, road supervisor on the Crater forest and fire chief of the flying squad, and L. D. Quackenbush, of the Siskiyou forest and foreman of the flying squad, were among the visitors present.

Sidney Meacham, of the Stenholm station in the Umpqua forest member of the squadron. This group of highly trained men make up an emergency organization for use in the event of some big fire that is beyond the control of any of the cooperating forces.

In the event there should be a series of bad fires on the Umpqua national forest, utilizing all of the available manpower, and then another big fire should break out, so that additional help was necessary, Supervisor Neal would have authority to call upon the flying squad and these men, all highly trained, would take immediate charge of the new emergency, leaving the regular forces free to battle with their previous fires. This arrangement is made between the Crater, Siskiyou and Umpqua forests.

First Aid Taught
Yesterday evening Dr. R. R. Shoemaker of Roseburg spoke before the employees, giving instructions in first aid. He particularly outlined the methods of treating such injuries as are most common among the forest service employees, such as broken bones, burns, axe cuts, insect bites, snakebites and stomach disorders. He also gave a demonstration of resuscitation methods.

John D. Gathrie, assistant district forester, and E. H. McLane, inspector, arrived at Tiller today and visited the school. They will remain over Saturday and will also attend the Wolf Creek school next week.

The course to the school at Wolf Creek will be the same as at Tiller. Rangers Assam and Piper of Umpqua and Bohemia districts, however, will serve as instructors instead of Thurston and Ritter.

The men at the Tiller school today took instruction in fire suppression and control, use of the

INTERESTING EGG MARKET PROGRAM HELD AT OAKLAND

A well attended meeting devoted to the subject of egg marketing was held at Oakland last night, the first of a series of three such meetings in the county.

E. J. Dixon, of the Pacific Co-operative Poultry Producers, was the principal speaker. Mr. Dixon stated that the association now has 2,200 members and 700,000 producing hens. Douglas county has 153 members and 43,000 hens situated in 10 counties in the county. 100,000 hens signed up in the association an egg packing plant will be constructed in the county. Mr. Dixon declared, in fact, the association is ready to build the plant as soon as it can be shown that the 100,000 hens will be available within a few months after packing station is provided, as past experience has proven an increase in poultry production as soon as a station is established.

Oregon poultrymen, Mr. Dixon declared, are justified in increasing production by at least 400 or 500 per cent, as there is a growing demand.

Gordon Sprague, of the U. S. department of agriculture, was another speaker, discussing the matter of quality demanded by eastern markets.

A meeting was held at the city hall in Roseburg this afternoon, and another meeting will be held at Myrtle Creek tonight.

DOCTOR SNOOK ADMITS MURDER OF THEURER HIX

a desire to "get it over with quickly," and told the prosecutor that he would plead guilty to a first degree indictment.

Intimacy Admitted
Earlier in the investigation of the crime, police uncovered the fact that Snook and the girl maintained a room in a downtown apartment house where they went frequently under the guise of man and wife, and Snook admitted it readily. Dr. Snook made it clear, however, that his association with Miss Hix was not "a love affair in any sense of the word," but that it was merely a "pleasant arrangement."

He helped defray her university expenses and she was a "good companion," he said.

Two salient points precipitated the confession—one the wringing from Snook of the admission that he had taken the key to their room from the girl's keyring at the scene of the murder and the other coming just at the peak of the questions about the key, a report from

Dr. C. E. Long, chemist, that stains on the professor's car and clothing had been established as blood marks.

Whiting under the crossfire of questions until he admitted that he "took the key from the body." Snook was on the verge of collapse when Chief French's secretary brought in the report.

Confession Gives Relief
Snook paled, and a few minutes later, the prosecutor said, he was sobbing. Thereafter he talked freely and with what seemed a feeling of relief, Chester said.

Marion T. Myers, a member of the university horticultural experiment staff and a former suitor, was arrested in connection with the killing after the body had been discovered by two boys. He spoke of her friendship for Snook and the two were held while authorities assembled evidence in the killing. Meyers was released Wednesday, and a day later Snook was taken before his inquisitors.
