Summer Clothes Make Art of Looking Cool

Collars, Waistlines and Flare of Sleeves Important to Mode

By HETSY SCHUYLER, NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Smart Social Registraires contributed a veritable lion's share of chic at the milk fund benefit fair and tea that Mrs. Payne Whitney gave on her beautiful Manhattan, Long Island, estate.

The day was balmy and gorgeous, just a day to be capitalized by smartest summer clothes, especially since this year's weather has paraphrased a famous line so it is quoted this way: "What is so rare as a WARM day in June?"

Hot weather clothes emphasize the art of looking cool. Now modes crystallize the importance of details. Collars, waistlines and the way sleeves flare are tremendously important. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the former Joan Whitney, wore a charming little French two-piece of pastel green flat crepe, with intricate hand-sewing. French box pleated skirt and finished at the neck with a simple little double white organdie collar and tie. Her little son, Master Dan, was most correctly clad in shorts and linen blouse.

There's Youthful Chic in Cardigan Suit

For youthful chic, I really believe nothing surpasses the prerogative cut cardigan suit. At least, that is what I thought when I saw Mrs. Earl T. Smith in as neat a yellow outfit as this capricious season has produced. It was a clear, soft yellow jersey de laine suit—its skirt quite full with four inverted triple box pleats. A flat straw boater, long sleeved, exactly matched, and her yellow mushroom straw hat had darker tones facing it. She wore darker dotted T-suede sandals and carried a sports envelope purse. Little Iris, clinging to her mamma, wore a delectable little outfit with hand-worked flowers in dainty array.

White hats increase their numbers and, in some instances, their size. Mrs. William deRahm wore quite a large one, of silky transparent straw, wired to considerable width all around. It had velvet bandings and two streamers, quite in keeping with the modernistic incrustations of color decorating the jumper of her two-piece sports frock.

Pleated Hats Have Place in the Mode

Hats have increased their prevalence until they have gone to the lady's head. I noted several hats pleated on one or both sides to give jaunty originality. Betty Hiles's checked Parisienne hat flared off her face in front and was pleated down the back of the brim, giving the impression of a lot of smart looking hat. It had a jeweled pin holding up its front crown and a little banding that tied in a pert rear bow. Incidentally, she wore a lovely printed jacket and frock with double tiered skirt. White shoes seem to make use of novelty fabric when they austere remain available; otherwise they use anything from crepe de chine to buck combined with color. Mrs. G. Mac Culloch Miller, the former Flora Whitney, wore a stunning pair of oxfords, in novelty basket weave silky fabric. Her white frock had the only cap sleeves seen at the affair. Mrs. C. Oliver Iles's white frock had black piping; Mrs. Charles Swartz's were tipped and beaded smartly in purple to match the bandings on her sweater suit.

The sartorial and social ranking of the lowly polka dot continues to surprise me. Yet it shouldn't. There's universal appeal in the simplicity of dots as a design. Mrs. Lewis C. Ledyard wore a very feminine and sweet little blue and white dotted frock, with sash and sashie of dots, too.

Country Club Offers Delightful Hours on Ladies Day

Ladies Day at the Country Club this week was one of the delightful affairs held at the club during the season. The day set aside for the ladies is proving more and more popular and interesting, and thirteen golfers enjoyed the morning hours Thursday on the links. During the afternoon bridge was played in the rooms with eight tables in play. Mrs. Leon Stetson took high honors for last afternoon, with Mrs. H. A. Stapleton second and Mrs. Harris Ellsworth third high.

Two Lovely Luncheons Are Events of the Week

Mrs. A. A. Winder and Mrs. H. A. Stapleton were hostess to a number of friends at two lovely luncheons this week. On Wednesday invitations were issued to a score or more of friends to enjoy an afternoon of bridge. Luncheon was served at the Hotel Umpqua. Thirty friends were bid to share the affair of Friday with luncheon at the Hotel Umpqua and bridge at the Stapleton home. The luncheon tables were beautiful, with delphinium and sweet peas in pastel shades used in carrying out the color motif. The home of Mrs. Stapleton where tables were arranged for bridge both days, was delightful with spring flowers used about the rooms.

On Wednesday Mrs. G. J. Baehner held high score at bridge with Mrs. Howard Waddell second high; on Friday the honors went to Mrs. B. A. Butler and Miss Gertrude East held second high.

Hope Chest Shower Event of Week at Glide

A hope chest shower in honor of Miss Esther Strohecker and Miss Charles Condie was a delightful event of Saturday at the home of Miss Arnes Blakey of Gils. Following a buffet luncheon the room guests were presented with lovely gifts which they opened during the afternoon.

Guests of the afternoon were Mrs. George Casbeer, Mrs. F. S. Blakey, Mrs. F. H. Wilson, Mrs. J. W. Frye, Mrs. T. Lasky and the Misses Ellen Strain, Flora B. A. Butler and Mrs. Merrill Klumpping, Vera McDonald, the guests of honor and the hostess.

Mrs. H. C. Truitt of Topeka, Kan., is expected Sunday to visit her sister, Mrs. R. M. Cooley and Mr. Cooley.

insisting that modern women can do anything a man can—and more—comes an occasional discordant note. This time it comes from the Kentucky Education association which is investigating the damage done girl athletes by playing basketball under boys' rules. This association quotes the women's division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation of America as recently saying that it was "alarmed at the undesirable trends developing in athletics for girls."

You can't deny, however, that an era which permits girls to be more manlike than any preceding is producing some pretty sound specimens of womanhood.

"Here You Are, Lady!"

"You are so low you could creep under a worm with a top hat on." This is just a sample of her husband's witty wisecracks as quoted to the judge by Mrs. Claire McKillig of New York when asking for a separation. She cited other favorite spousely wise cracks.

While we are continuously hearing ridiculous divorce charges, this one of wise cracking seems as important to me as an support or any form of cruelty.

If I were a judge, the mere whiff of a wise crack like that would make me haul out with a flourish my prettiest red-headed divorcee to award to the one wise-cracked at.

Daddy's Toys

A five-million-dollar toy fund for children's institutions is being established by notorious "Daddy" Brodwing of "Peaches" fame. The plan is to maintain a toy office with about a thousand sample toys on display from which representatives of various child institutions can choose those they need.

And "Daddy" will probably learn that the tastes of the human species are so warped that he won't get near the attention on this truly laudable venture as he did in his sensational marriage and divorce which much more appealed to public appetite and taste.

"And Coffee"

One of our largest railroads is replacing its men waiters with girls. The superintendent of the line explains that the move is in order with the company's desire to cater to women.

Giving women waitresses rather than waiters is a fancy way in which to appeal to feminine taste. Most of us prefer a waiter.

Mr. Carroll Is Honored at Banquet in Indian Room

Mr. G. S. Carroll was the honor guest last night at a banquet given in the Indian room of the Hotel Umpqua. The banquet was given on the occasion of the presentation of a medal to Mr. Carroll by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company marking 25 years of service. The next meeting of the organization will be held on July 19 at which time the members will entertain for their mothers.

$650,000 BRIDGE TO SPAN ROGUE RIVER IN CURRY COUNTY

MARSHFIELD, Ore., June 22.—A bridge to cost approximately $650,000, will be constructed across the Rogue river on the Oregon coast highway. The state highway commission yesterday approved the ground and reached this decision. The bridge will not be completed, however, before three years, and will require from eighteen months to two years to construct. The bridge will be at Wedburn, on the north side of the Rogue, and at the east of Gold Beach on the south bank.

The bridge will be free. Ferry service on the river has proven inadequate.

The commission explained that by the time the Rogue river bridge is completed, the state of California will have its highways constructed to the Oregon line, and north-south traffic will move freely along the coast.

The announcement of decision to construct the bridge was made here yesterday by Governor Patterson at a meeting of the Coos county Chamber of Commerce. The bridge, he declared, will be one of the most beautiful structures on the coast. It will be of concrete construction, of rock abutments on each side of the river with form foundations for the span.

BUSTER KEATON IN "SPITE MARRIAGE" AT ANTLERS SUN AND MON.

"Spite Marriage," Buster Keaton's latest hilarious starring vehicle, is the attraction that will open at the Antlers Theatre Sunday with Buster in his first "addressed up" role. He doesn't wear the usual ragged costumes of the comedian, but dresses in the height of fashion, for he is a clothes prosser, who borrows his patrons' clothes in which to pose as a millionaire.

The new picture, a sound synchronized film, was directed by Edward Sedgwick, the man who directed "The Cameraman." It is a hilarious romance of backstage theatrical life with an adventure on a yacht for thrills. Doroely Sebastian plays the heroine, and the cast includes Leila Hyams, Edward Earle, William Becktel, Jack Byron and others of note.

SHOWERS NEXT WEEK, FORECAST FOR OREGON

SCOUTS ARE BACK FROM LONG TRIP

E. A. Britton, scout executive for Coos and Douglas counties, and Oliver Johnson of the scout council, accompanied by 16 scouts, returned last night from a trip to San Francisco and return. The trip was in the nature of a prize for the members of the first big squad that won the recent contest, and the winners to the achievement round-up. The cost of the trip was paid by Mr. Britton and Mr. Johnson and the expense does not come out of the council treasury.
