WEST GUESSING ON APPOINTEES TO FARM BOARD

years been identified with the American Cotton Growers' exchange.
Williams, however, also has had a variety of experience with wheat associations and cooperative marketing organizations, and some leaders felt that his appointment was not intended so much to give cotton a representative on the board as to put on a man of general interest.

Two From South
It has been supposed in authoritative quarters at the capitol that Rice would have a representative in the appointment of Arthur P. Knapp of Lake Charles, Louisiana, a banker who has had experience in financing the exportation of cotton.

If Mr. Hoover should name both Knapp and a Georgia cotton man, this would leave only two places to go to the middle western wheat, corn and dairy belt, since it has been assumed that the eighth place will go to Alexander Legge, president of the International Harvester company, whose appointment is intended to satisfy requests that an "outstanding business man" be placed on the board.

Charles C. Teague of the California Citrus league, whom the president is understood to have wanted on the board, has declined to be considered.

Senate to Eye Closely
Whatever the personnel of the completed board proves to be—and President Hoover expects it to be organized by August—the members will be subjected to the closest scrutiny by the senate agriculture committee when their nominations are submitted to the senate in August for confirmation. Extensive hearings on the appointments are contemplated, and some members of the committee already have asked Chairman McNary not to begin these until all can be present, representing, as they do, every great farm commodity except the citrus industry.

shouting and cheering. There was a drizzling rain falling but this did not dampen their ardor and cries of "Viva Franco" constantly resounded.

The men, whose rescue had added a new chapter to the history of fliers, snatched from death after floating at sea for many days, were Major Ramon Franco, commanding officer; Major Eduardo Gonzalez Gallarza, pilot; Captain Julio Ruiz de Aida, navigator, and Sergeant Pedro Madariaga, mechanic.

their base on their hop for the Azores.
Motors Heard by Ship
After hard luck had dogged their footsteps in their preparations for the flight, motor trouble developing with their first plane and a minor field accident almost ruining their second effort, they took off from Alcázar airfield, Cartagena, at 4:50 p. m., on June 21. They passed over Cadiz and then Cape St. Vincent, Portugal, where they headed out to sea. Little further was heard until the steamship Gredon picked up the sound of their motors Saturday morning. Then followed a long silence which finally was replaced by a series of reports and announcements that they had arrived in the Azores, all of them subsequently found to be erroneous. Even Premier Primo de Rivera himself gave out a report of their arrival, which he was forced to cancel later.

False Reports Issued
The chief cause of the misinformation sprang from a garbled radio dispatch from the Portuguese warship Vasco Da Gama which reported that the fliers had landed safely in the Azores and would continue their trip on Sunday. Apparently the warship had merely relayed an ordinary press message which it had picked up regarding the fliers but this in turn was picked up in garbled fashion.

Further reports, all of which subsequently proved without foundation, were received that the men had reached the island of San Miguel. When no confirmation could be obtained of the arrival in the Azores, the Spanish government took steps to send out rescue parties and particularly asked Great Britain for the aid of the airplane carrier, Eagle, at that time enroute from London to its station in the Azores.

Meanwhile Italian and Portuguese ships and planes had started in search for them and even a German plane was being prepared. The British government acquiesced immediately to the Spanish request and the Eagle began scouring the seas between the European coast and the Azores. Airplanes were sent out and scanned wide areas but without success.

Finally the Eagle turned toward Gibraltar to cover a line from the Azores to the entrance of the Mediterranean over which Major Franco would likely have flown. That this course was successful is indicated by today's news.

The Spanish minister of marine today telegraphed the British admiralty at Gibraltar as follows: "Just received news of the Eagle's finding of the Spanish hydro-airplane. I am deeply grateful. I thank you wholeheartedly for the splendid help given by the British marine."

DENVER, Colo., June 29.—District court yesterday granted a temporary injunction restraining officers

HOW PATIENTS PAY BILLS IN ROSEBURG, ORE.

The Hamilton Association, Inc., organized to protect its members throughout this state by acting as a clearing house for professional credit information is now compiling data on how individual patients in this and nearby towns pay their medical bills.

The credit rating data which the association plans to supply its clients here will be based on reports on all their patients having credit accounts, after each patient whose account is overdue has received notice of same and has had an opportunity to make a satisfactory settlement.

The association calls attention to the fact that such notices, sent to persons who have allowed their medical bills to become overdue through oversight are no reflection on their reliability but solely a means of enabling them to maintain the good credit rating to which they are entitled and a proof of good will on the part of their creditors.—Adv.

of the Woodmen of the World from collecting increased insurance assessments from members of the organization. Headquarters of the Woodmen of the World are in Denver.
The injunction will hold until the case comes to trial in the fall session of the court.
The restraining order was directed against six officers of the organization and came as the result of a suit brought against officials by members of the organization in Idaho, Colorado, Utah and Montana, who asserted that if the new insurance rates, voted at the last annual convention of the order, were carried into effect, hundreds of aged members would be unable to keep up their premiums.
Terms of the injunction include restraint of cancellation of insurance of any member for failure to pay the increased assessment and from suspension from the organization because of failure to pay it.

DIPLOMATS VIOLATORS OF U. S. TRAFFIC LAWS

(Associated Press Licensed Wire)
WASHINGTON, June 28.—Major Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of the Washington police force, reported to the senate today that diplomats of varying rank have been halted on 37 occasions for traffic violations during the past thirteen years.

Major Pratt declared some of those detained were charged with driving while intoxicated. His report, however, did not name the diplomats charged with this act, but merely grouped them in one list with the notation that they had been halted for violations of the traffic ordinances.
