NEW GLENDALE PLANING MILL TO START SOON

Machinery Being Installed in New Building So That Work May Begin in Near Future.

Equipment Will Give One of Most Modern and Best Plants of Kind in the State.

(News-Review Douglas County Special)
GLENDALE, July 6.—Construction work on the new big planing mill being built by the Glendale Lumber company, a short distance southeast of the company's new sawmill and near this city, has reached a stage where some of the machinery is now being installed. When completed, this new planing mill will be among the most up-to-date and largest plants of its kind in southwestern Oregon. It will have ample planing and millwork capacity to easily handle all of the lumber output of the new large sawmill which recently commenced operations.

The frame of the main planing mill building is substantially constructed of heavy timbers. The building is 100 feet long by 50 feet wide. Between it and the loading track is a roofed-over loading dock, 40 feet wide and 100 feet long. Extending from this loading dock roof is a 14-foot extension that reaches over the railroad loading track and is of the same length as the roofed-over dock. This will allow as many as three railroad freight cars to be loaded under roof at the same time, and products from the planing mill will go right into cars without being exposed to the weather in handling.

The machinery equipment for the planing mill will consist of several new machines as well as some of the machinery now in the old planing mill, which will be dismantled as soon as further progress on the new planing mill will permit transfer of planing operations.

A new Yates high speed planer and matcher equipped with a propeller attachment, with a capacity of 6 by 15 inches, and a speed capacity of 300 lineal feet per minute, will handle most of the pattern stock such as flooring, ceiling, siding, ship lap, etc. Another Yates planer and matcher, size 6 by 15 inches, and with a capacity of 200 lineal feet per minute will handle some pattern stock but is mainly intended for planing and sizing dimension stock such as 2x4, 2x6, 2x8, etc. A Berlin timber sizer, size 14x20 inches, will be used to surface and size the larger sizes of dimension stock and heavy plank, as well as timbers that require planing or sizing. A double surfacer or planer, handling widths up to 30 inches, will be used especially for planing or surfacing pine lumber. For making all sorts of plain and fancy moldings, strips, finish such as casings, etc., a 12-inch molding machine, or sticker as it is more commonly called, will be used. A new band resaw, a table rip saw and a pair of small swing type trimmer saws will also be a part of the planing mill equipment.

A large 80-inch blower will draw and remove the sawdust and shavings from the various machines, the main suction pipe for which is 30 inches in diameter. This blower will discharge the refuse through a 30-inch diameter galvanized steel pipe, 400 feet in length, into a fire where the sawmill refuse is also being burned.

In front of each of the two planers and matchers will be an automatic feed table which will serve to feed the rough lumber into these two high speed machines. Two sets of transfer chains, each 70 feet in length, will deliver the rough lumber to the automatic feed tables and these transfers will be so built and arranged that a unit load of lumber can be directly placed on them by the lumber carriers in use at this plant, and will have a capacity of four loads at a time. The various lumber products as they come from the planers and matchers will be discharged onto a grading table 60 feet in length, equipped with moving chains to carry the lumber which, after being graded and sort of here, will be taken from the grade table and piled into suitable units or packages for the lumber carriers to pick up and carry to either cars or sheds as desired.

The power equipment for the planing mill will consist of electric motors throughout, the same as in the sawmill, and the power will be furnished by the California Oregon Power Co. A 100-horsepower motor will be required to drive the blower. Each planer and matcher requires two motors, a 75 h. p. and a 30 h. p. motor, one motor to drive the cylinders and side heads that carry the planing knives and cutting bits and the other motor to drive the roller mechanism that feeds the lumber through these machines. The timber surfacer requires a 40 h. p. motor and a 30 h. p. motor, while the pine surfacer will require a 75 h. p. motor. A 30 h. p. motor will be connected to the sticker, a 50 h. p. motor to the resaw, a 20 h. p. motor to the rip saw and the trim saws will each require a 5 h. p. motor. The various transfer chains will be driven through reduction gears and each set will use a separate motor; one will be 15 h. p. and two will be 10 h. p. motors.

A grinding room, about 20 by 30 feet in size, will be built into one end of the main planing mill building. Here there will be two 5 h. p. motors to operate the grinders used to sharpen the many planer knives and cutting bits that will be used when this plant is in full operation.

Lumber carriers of a type that straddle the load they pick up and carry, and can straddle anything from a timber to a unit load or package of lumber, are being used to carry lumber from the sawmill to the yard and from the yard to the planing mill and again from the planing mill to cars or to place of storage. A unit or package load, so called, is about 43 feet wide and varies in height from a few inches up to 60 inches. These unit loads contain anywhere from a few feet up to 5000 feet, board measure, of lumber. The planing mill building and the covered docks and sheds are built with 16 feet overhead clearance so these carriers can be readily driven in and out these buildings. As these carriers can be driven anywhere on the docks and platforms, and will turn in a limited space, they furnish an efficient and rapid means of moving lumber from place to place about the mill and yard.

A considerable area of docks and platforms remains to be built on the front or receiving side of the planing mill, in order to connect it with the yard, before the planing mill can be put into full operation, and which is expected to be completed sometime the latter part of the summer. In the meantime a portion of the new planing mill will be placed in operation within a few weeks.

The construction work on this new planing mill is under the direct supervision of C. F. Neipert. As soon as the plant is ready for operation, at Farrell, formerly with the Western Lumber Co. at Westfir, Oregon, will be the foreman in charge.

The plans of the Glendale Lumber company also include a battery of saw mills and dry sheds yet to be built, according to A. A. Snyder, the company's president and general manager.

POPULAR GLENDALE COUPLE MARRIED

(News-Review Douglas County Special)
GLENDALE, July 6.—Miss Ida Frank of Stayton, Ore., and Vernon A. Williams of this city were married at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage at Roseburg Wednesday. They were attended by the groom's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. Williams.

After the wedding ceremony the party motored to Myrtle Creek where they had a luncheon. Upon their return to Glendale Wednesday evening the newly married couple was given an enforced ride up and down the main streets of this city on one of the "straddlebugs" or lumber carriers from the Glendale Lumber company's mill by fellow employees of Williams.

Mrs. Williams taught sixth and seventh grades in the local schools last year during which time she made many friends here. She has been reengaged to teach here next year.

Vernon A. Williams is a well known young man of this city, having grown to manhood here. He is employed by the Glendale Lumber company as operator of a lumber carrier. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williams, who reside at the corner of Montgomery Ave. and 2nd street, presented the young couple with a city lot which adjoins Ed Holtz's place, as a wedding gift.

BROTHER OF DRAIN MAN IS INJURED

(News-Review Douglas County Special)
DRAIN, July 6.—Sidney Meacham, who has resided in this vicinity for many years and whose home is about a mile north of town received the account of a very serious injury to his brother, Roderick Meacham, which occurred on June 20th, last, near Dickinson Center, New York. Mr. Meacham and three other men had just finished milking the cows in the evening and were standing in the barn door awaiting the passing of a storm when a bolt of lightning struck the men down. Mr. Meacham's skull was fractured in the fall but his recovery was expected. The other men were seriously hurt but it was thought would recover.

ELKTON

(News-Review Douglas County Special)
ELKTON, June 6.—W. R. Sawyer of Medford is hauling out his lambs. He recently disposed of his farm to Mr. Mousley of Medford who, with his family, has taken possession of the place.

Mrs. Sarah Woodcock of Roseburg preached a very interesting sermon at the Methodist church Sunday. They are also having special music at the services. Mrs. Woodcock gave a delightful solo at the Sunday evening service.

LARGE CROWD FOR CELEBRATION AT BOSWELL SPINGS

(News-Review Douglas County Special)
DRAIN, July 6.—The celebration of the national holiday at Boswell Springs passed off without special incident, the weather being simply perfect for the occasion. People came in scattering during the morning hours, many not coming until afternoon, the estimate being more than a thousand during the day. After a few numbers by the band which, by the way, furnished good music, the Rev. J. K. Howard of Glendale delivered a splendid oration. A good majority of those present were, unfortunately, prevented from hearing this excellent address on account of the perpetual explosion of fire crackers. After the picnic lunch, with which everybody seemed well provided, a goodly number hied themselves to the swimming tank. Many others patronized the baseball game, the contest being between Yoncalla and a Drain team, the latter winning by a score of seven to six. A few other sports filled in the time. Dancing on the open air floor on the grounds concluded the entertainment features of the day.

IDLEYLD PARK TAXED BY CROWD FOURTH OF JULY

IDLEYLD PARK, July 6.—The Fourth of July celebration at Idlewild park was a great success, with more than 1500 visitors taxing the recreational facilities of the resort. The basket dinner, which opened the celebration, was well managed and thoroughly enjoyed. The program was unusually interesting and held the attention of the large audience from start to finish. Lincoln's Gettysburg address was effectively read by Miss Florence King. Miss Greta Wright offered as her selection, "The Last Tribute," another forceful word picture of the immortal Lincoln. Dexter Rice introduced A. C. Marsters, speaker of the day, who delivered a splendid oration in masterly style. The audience was deeply impressed and listened attentively from the beginning to the end of the very fine speech.

The crowd was well entertained throughout the day by a series of interesting events and comedy stunts. The calf race, pig race and pillow fight on a pole, kept the crowd greatly amused. The rodeo events were also very interesting. The night was given over to dancing on the open air platform, which was crowded by a happy and enthusiastic throng.
