TWO DRAIN MEN TO FACE LIQUOR COUNT

Two men were arrested by sheriff's officers Saturday night at Drain and brought to Roseburg to face charges of possession of intoxicating liquor. Glenn Baker and Harold Wooley, both of Drain, are the men being held for hearing. They were arrested at a dance at Drain.

IN ALL CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"God" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 7.

The golden text was "Prayer waiteth for Thee, O God, in Zion; and unto thee shall the vow be performed. O Thou that hearest prayer, unto Thee shall all flesh come." (Psalm 65:1, 2).

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-lesson was the following from the Bible: "Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised in the city of our God, in the mountain of His holiness" (Psalm 45:1).

The lesson-lesson also included the following glossary definition of "God" from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The great I AM; the all-knowing, all-seeing, all-acting, all-wise, all-loving, and eternal; Principle; Mind; Soul; Spirit; Life; Truth; Love; all substance; Intelligence" (p. 537).

RATIFY WORLD COURT PACT, PLEA OF ENDEAVORERS

(Associated Press Special Wire)
KANSAS CITY, July 8.—A resolution urging the United States senate to take action to enter this country into the world court of international justice and to ratify the inter-American treaty of arbitration was adopted last night by the delegates to the thirty-second annual international convention of Christian Endeavor.

"We believe that the United States, in order to make effective its pledges under the pact of Paris, should become a member of the world court of international justice and respectfully hope that without delay the senate of the United States will complete this relationship," the resolution stated.

SWIMMING SCHOOL CLOSES AFTER MOST SUCCESSFUL WEEK

More Than Sixty Beginners Out of Two Hundred in Regular Classes Can Swim.

Six Pass Tests Qualifying Them as Junior Life Savers; Women Set Records.

The Red Cross swimming school conducted by the local chapter the past week, came to an end Saturday night. It is believed that it was the biggest school of its kind ever held in the state of Oregon and one of the most successful. While there were some people who did not learn to swim, due to various handicaps, practically all have lost all fear of the water that they might have had, have learned how to keep themselves afloat, if thrown into the water in an emergency, and they can be rescued and have learned something about methods of resuscitation.

The school was conducted by Gene Eberhart, instructor in swimming at the University of Oregon, who left Saturday night for Boni, where his next school will be held. All who took the course here were greatly pleased with the results, and feel that the local Red Cross chapter has accomplished a fine piece of work in putting on this opportunity for free instruction.

Six took junior life saving tests and passed with good records, they were Ivan Brundage, Gordon Applewhite, Arthur Baum, Robert Hefel, Maud McLaughery and Richard Greenhaw. Miss McLaughery, the only girl in this division, passed the highest grade in the tests, scoring 95 out of 100 points. Gordon Applewhite was second with a score of 92.

In the women's class of 27 members the swimmers were required to swim 100 yards using two different strokes, swim on back using legs only, surface dive in 8 feet of water and recover an object from the bottom, plus front dive, and witness a demonstration of artificial respiration. All of these were beginners and were able to swim only to a small degree when the school started. More than half of the members of the class can now swim to some degree, although all were not able to pass the test in which the five leading members qualified.

The five who passed the test were Mrs. Nathan Fullerton, Mrs. H. J. Hildeburn, Margaret Jennings, Mrs. Richards, Mrs. Wiley. There were more than 100 regular members of the classes, while over 300 people took instruction in one or more classes during the school, 215 being signed up in regular classes.

Of the beginner children more than 100 passed the beginners test, swimming at least 50 feet, many others are able to get along in the water and will only need practice for development.

Age of the persons taking the swimming course ranged from 1 year to 75. The tiny girl, who was the youngest member, was able to keep afloat by the time the school closed, while the oldest, who had never learned to swim was able to float, swim a few strokes, and return to the surface from under the water.

Mr. Eberhart, the instructor was especially well pleased with the school. He was assisted by Maynard Bell and Stanley Kidder as instructors, and Loren Johnson, Gordon Applewhite, Marshall Hunt and Ivan Brundage, as life guards.

Mr. Bell, who is a well qualified instructor, has agreed to keep up the instruction for all of those who desire to continue their swimming lessons, and classes may be arranged so that the lessons at ready learned may be used to assure still further advancement.

Persons interested in having the classes continued are requested to notify Dr. H. H. Church, secretary of the local chapter, who will make arrangements whereby the classes may be organized and continued.

J. D. ROCKEFELLER REACHES 90; HAS GIVEN MILLIONS

Life's Creed Epitomized
Many years ago, when J. D. Rockefeller was a young man, while for perhaps $10 a week in a Cleveland commission office, he wrote in his diary:

"I believe it a religious duty to get all the money you can, fairly and honestly; to keep all you can, and give away all you can."

Today, at the close of the 90th year of his life, Rockefeller is able to look back at that old motto and say to himself that he has lived up to every particular.

At 90 he now knows just what his own fortune means, except that it is in the neighborhood of one billion dollars. His beneficence adds up to a half billion more.

"To get all you can—keep all you can—give away all you can"—and there you are.

He has given away more money than any but half a dozen men in all history have ever had.

Gave When Poor
Born in Richford, N. Y. in 1839 Rockefeller was taken by his family to Cleveland when he was 14, and shortly thereafter he went out to earn his living as a clerk in a commission house. An account book he kept in those days shows him earning $50 for three months work, and winning a promotion to a $25 a month salary in 1856. A year later his salary became $300 a year and all the time he was carefully saving every cent he could.

But he was also giving, even in those days. A quotation from his old account book reads: "In one month I gave to foreign missions, 10 cents; to the 24th Society, 50 cents; and there is also a contribution to the Five Points mission. To the venerable mother of my class I gave 25 cents to make him a present. To the poor of the church I gave 10 cents at this time, and in January and February following I gave 10 cents more and a further 10 cents to the foreign mission."

And this was the man who was to give away half a billion!

Built Standard Oil
In 1858 Rockefeller and Morris B. Clark were able to start a commission house of their own.

Oil had just been discovered in Pennsylvania. Gathering a cheap process of cleaning crude oil, Rockefeller went into the oil business, and so rapid were his strides that in 1870 he organized the Standard Oil Co., with a capitalization of $1,000,000.

Rockefeller quickly went to work to make Standard Oil supreme. He succeeded. Competitors were bought out or forced out of business, quietly and with dispatch. Rockefeller was often condemned for his ruthless methods, but he himself insists that he never warred on a rival without first offering to give him Standard Oil stock in exchange for his business, and he points out that every man who accepted this offer was made wealthy by it.

Thus, in 1879, Standard Oil controlled 95 per cent of the nation's oil refining business. From that time on the story of Standard Oil and Rockefeller is a story of steady unchecked growth.

Humanity Helped
But the acquisition of the Rockefeller fortune has long since ceased to be news. It is the way in which Rockefeller has given it away that has caught the imagination.

Now, as Rockefeller celebrates his 90th birthday, his gifts are responsible for those things—

Trained workers are cleaning up pest spots, breeding places of such diseases as malaria and yellow fever, all over the world.

Patients in hospitals throughout the world are being given medical help that they would not otherwise have had.

Specialists are teaching age-old maladies in the hope that they can free mankind from them forever.

Health organizations are functioning all over the United States. Education, sociological research and crime prevention studies are being carried on with Rockefeller money in the United States and foreign countries.

The Rockefeller Foundation has been the chief beneficiary of Rockefeller money, having received something like $200,000,000. Three other vast funds administered by Rockefeller are the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, the Rockefeller Education Board and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. In addition, there have been many other gifts to universities, churches and various other agencies and institutions.

The one word, "prevention," sums up the Rockefeller idea in charity. Prevention of disease, poverty, illiteracy and crime counts the cardinal points underlying his establishment of the four great funds.

Many years ago, while he was still a poorly paid clerk making his church contributions of 10 and 20 cents at a time Rockefeller, wrote: "It is a mistake for a man who wishes for happiness and to help others to think he will wait until he has a fortune before giving away money to deserving subjects."

Health Good, Cheerful
TAIRYTON, N. Y., July 8.—John D. Rockefeller, master of the fine art of living, celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary today.

The day marks the close of his third decade since, having amassed $1,000,000,000, Mr. Rockefeller relinquished his business interests to his son and began his pursuit of health and happiness.

In those 30 years he has evolved a philosophy of life based on moderation and quiet activity, a diet where at 60 he was a weak invalid, seeking a diet that would agree with him, today he announces that he was in perfect health, scanning the future with cheer and hope.

In a statement he said: "I have every reason to be grateful on my 90th birthday. Every one has been so kind and good to me all the years. With perfect health and full of hope and cheer for the future, I have nothing but kindness and good will for every body."

LOUIS E. BEAN OF OREGON'S UTILITY COMMISSION DIES

SALEM, July 8.—Louis E. Bean, member of the public service commission, died suddenly at his home Saturday night from a heart attack.

He was entertaining some friends at his residence when he complained of feeling ill. A doctor was summoned, but at 10:45 p. m. he died.

He was at his desk in the state house during the day and was apparently in perfect health.

His term as public service commissioner would have expired January 5, 1931. He was nominated October 20, 1926, by a vote of 17 to 2 by the republican state central committee to take the place of Thomas K. Campbell, who was re-nominated for public service commissioner, but was forced to retire due to illness.

He was born in Lane county in 1867. He was educated in Eugene public schools and attended the University of Oregon. He began the practice of law in 1894 with the firm of Williams & Bean at Eugene.

He was speaker of the house when Ben W. Olcott was governor and served as acting governor for a short time while both Olcott and Roy Ritten, president of the state senate, were absent from the state.

He was elected to the house in 1909-1911. He was speaker of the last year. In 1911 he was elected to the senate.

He was a member of the original state fish and game commission, and while a member of the state legislature furthered much of the state's highway commission legislation.

He was a candidate for governor on the republican ticket in 1922. He represented Lane county in both branches of the state legislature.

Mr. Bean was 59. He was a brother of United States District Judge Robert S. Bean of Portland; Riley Bean, bailiff in Judge Tucker's court at Portland; Chester Bean of Washington and Mrs. Estelle Pope, Ventura, Calif. He is survived also by his widow, Mrs. Katherine Bean, and four children, John, Portland; Alexander, Seattle, and Louis Jr. and Margaret, Salem.

He was an uncle of Dr. Harold Bean of Portland.

Mr. Bean was for several years a resident of Roseburg, having served as clerk at the Roseburg land office. He is well known here, not only because of the fact that he was a resident of the city, but through his public work he became acquainted with many Roseburg people.

back of the coupe."

She told of driving out of town, of stopping to buy naphtha and of leaving the main road for a little-frequented by-way. Then she continued:

"I took the bundle out and threw it beside the road in some weeds. I poured naphtha over it, threw the jar away and touched a match. It was blazing hard when I drove away."

That was on Sunday. The next day the bundle was still smoldering when the farm boys found it.

Trind to Hide Guilt
The Weaver woman returned to the room and sought to destroy all evidence. One of her efforts to divert suspicion, the sheriff said, was a letter to Kitzelman's brother, E. B. Kitzelman, of Peoria, in which she said that Kitzelman was "on one of his periodical drinks," and that she was leaving to return to her home in Naperville.

The Wyoming landlord, "from whom the Weaver woman and Kitzelman rented, became suspicious at the protracted absence of his roomers. He had heard of the finding of a body near Annawan, 20 miles away. He learned that fragments of a quilt had been found, and he identified these as being a quilt used by his roomers.

He then wrote E. B. Kitzelman in Peoria of his suspicions. This was started the investigation which ended with Laura Weaver's arrest.

The girl's father, Henry Weaver, is a prosperous Fox valley farmer. Until a short time ago she had been living in Peoria with Kitzelman, their common-law relationship having extended over a period of about two years, her statement said.
