NEW ANTLERS SHOW JUSTIFIES TALKIE, REVIEWER THINKS

By G. C. R.

If you are one of those theater critics who maintain that talking pictures are a failure, you should see "The Rainbow Man" which opened at the Antlers theater last night for a three-day run. Here is a sound film romance which thoroughly justifies the "talkies." It is one of the very best screen entertainments this reviewer has ever hearkened to or beheld.

In these dizzy days when jangling jazz seems to reach every parcel of life, it is refreshing to get an eye-filling and ear-filling entertainment which has for its motive more of the old-fashioned cowboys in the distant meadows than of raucous fanfare of xylophones in the immediate vicinity.

"The Rainbow Man" is an all-talking and singing screen romance, plentifully supplied with instrumental music which contains not one note of "blues" or "vo-deo-do." But the fact that it defies the great American jazz tradition is not alone the reason for recommending "The Rainbow Man." It is first of all a real, human story, simple, but true and plausible. In the second place it contains acting of a high caliber in the hands of everyone in the cast.

It is, furthermore, a clean picture. There is not a bit of filth or smut in it, and best of all it's a welcome relief from a flood of so-called "crime" pictures.

Eddie Dowling is a small-time minstrel man who adopts the little boy, Frankie Darro, after his father, George Hayes, is victim of a violent accident. Marian Nixon is the daughter of a small-town hotel proprietor. She falls in love with Dowling while his troupe is playing her town.

The plot goes forward through sunshine and tears and comedy, seasoned with episodic drama, until finally the lovers are joined in a touching scene wherein the rainbow of their romance comes shining through.

The melodies of the production, "Rainbow Man," "Smile Little Pal" and "Sleepy Valley" are of a pleasant quality, reminiscent of "Honey-moon Lane" and "Log Cabin of Dreams."

FAMOUS POTOMAC RIVERMAN DIES

(Associated Press Local Wire) WASHINGTON, July 12.—Captain Bill Luckett, who began life as William Edward Luckett and became the "grand old man of the Potomac," is dead at the age of 74.

In his career of more than 50 years as a river pilot, he knew intimately a long line of presidents and other government dignitaries, visiting kings, princes, generals and statesmen, and the youngsters of many celebrated families.

As the civilian pilot of the Mayflower from the time it was put into service as the yacht of the presidents until it was ordered decommissioned recently, his was the responsibility for their safety and that of their guests on all of its trips. King Albert of Belgium was one of his correspondents. Marshall Foch visited Mount Vernon with Captain Bill Luckett at the helm, so did Admiral Beatty and many others. Colonel Lindbergh returned to Washington aboard the cruiser Memphis from his Paris flight was another of his charges.

OFFICERS ARREST CANYONVILLE MAN ON BOOZE CHARGE

Arnold Casper, of Canyonville, was arrested last night at the Canyonville dance, charged with possession of liquor. He entered a plea of guilty and was fined $100 and given 30 days in jail, upon appearance this morning before Justice of the Peace Hopkins.

Sheriff Jackson, accompanied by Deputies Boone and Dietsch, visited the dance last night, and according to Sheriff Jackson, discovered that Casper was selling liquor. They spotted his cache, which was located at some distance from the dance hall, and they lay in hiding near the liquor.

The officers stated that a car, containing Casper and four other men, stopped at the cache, and that Casper directed one of the men where to find the liquor. This man stumbled over Deputy Dietsch and was so badly frightened that he ran into the brush, without warning his companions. Casper, thinking that he was unable to find the liquor, came over to the cache and was arrested.

The other men, seeing the officers, started to drive the car away, but Sheriff Jackson reached the machine and turned off the switch. All of the men disclaimed ownership of the car, but attempted to drive it away after Casper had been arrested. The sheriff, however, refused to release the auto to anyone except the owner, and forced the other men to walk back to Canyonville, and placed the auto in a garage. It was released to the owner today, however.

A definite reason for extra value in our USED CARS

When you buy a used car you should be sure the price is not above the actual worth of the car, to allow the dealer to recoup an excessive trade-in allowance.

Under the Ford policy there is no incentive for this sort of practice—for the price of the new Ford car is so low, and the value so high that unreasonable trade-in concessions are hardly possible.

We allow the buyer of a Model A just what his old car is worth—and we offer that used car for sale on the same basis. Model T Fords are reconditioned throughout, and guaranteed. Prices for other makes of cars are based on the service you will get from them. Right now we are offering unusual bargains in unused transportation. Step in today, and look over these, and others—
